BLOSSOM TIME CROWDS SNARL CITY'S TRAFFIC

New Record Is Believed Set, Despite Bad Weather.

EXCURSION TRAINS INCREASE THRONGS

Extra Policemen on Duty to Keep Autos and Buses Moving.

HEAVY RAINS OF DAY FLOOD SOME AREAS

Water Covers Chevy Chase Streets; Warning of Gale Is Issued.

The greatest traffic congestion in the history of Washington for this time of the year crowded the Capital streets yesterday, according to police officials. They even added that they could not remember many occasions, except inauguration, which drew more tourists and out of town visitors than the cherry blossoms around the Tidal Basin did yesterday.

It was estimated that 75,000 automobiles were on the streets during the day, the majority of them being cars from the neighboring States of Maryland and Virginia, with others from all the States of the Union freely mixed in the grand shuffle.

While there were remarkably few serious traffic accidents reported to the various police precincts, many were forced to climb out of their cars in the drenching rain, which poured down steadily all day, to disentangle bumpers which had become ensnared with the car in front or behind them, holding long lines of impatient motorists at a standstill while they were doing it.

Autos Packed Around Station.

Around Union Station Plaza cars were packed so tightly that it was practically impossible for cars to be driven across the wide opening, forcing many to detour by way of the Congressional Library and the House Office Building. Extra traffic policemen were stationed at all intersections around the Capitol and Union Station to keep traffic moving and assist pedestrians in making a safe crossing through the congested areas.

At times during the afternoon cars were lined up for three blocks awaiting their turn to cross the Avenue at Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. Extra traffic officers were also on duty there, in an effort to keep the long stream moving down Pennsylvania avenue and out through the northwest section. Traffic in some directions was held for more than three minutes while cars headed in the opposite direction were rushed across the intersections.

Union Station officials stated that more than ten excursion trains arrived in the city early yesterday morning, bringing thousands of visitors to the city. Other trains were forced to attach extra cars to take care of the added passenger traffic, so that with the number who motored here, the record for all time for this season of the year, fully two weeks before the Easter holidays, was undoubtedly broken.

Cool Weather Now Due.

The Weather Bureau, in making its forecast for today, stated that the rain would cease before this morning and that fair weather would prevail during the first of the week. By Wednesday more April showers are predicted and the temperature will drop slowly until cool weather comes back to cast its blight over holiday fun seekers. The bureau says further that by the end of the week warm weather will return, and perhaps next Sunday visitors to the city will be able to view the cherry blossoms without standing under umbrellas.

Sightseeing buses, in spite of the disagreeable weather, carried thousands of visitors around the city to the Tidal Basin, the Lincoln Memorial and other places of interest, including the National Zoo. At one time during the day more than twenty busloads of sightseers were at the National Cathedral, attending the special song service and exercises held there.

Lincoln Memorial was thrown open to visitors at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, an hour earlier than usual, and remained open until 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

Wait in Line at Monument.

Thousands cheerfully faced the large streams of water which were pouring over the sidewalks all through the parks for a glimpse of the famous statue of Lincoln in the memorial, and stood in the rain waiting their turn to enter Washington Monument for the view over the city.

Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, in charge of the park police, stated that the rain had not damaged the cherry blossoms to a noticeable extent, and that they would retain their beauty and profusion as long as there was

BATTLE IN ILLINOIS SPURS SENATE QUIZ

Sanction for Investigation of Campaign Funds to Be Asked at Once.

OTHER ELECTIONS EYED

(Associated Press.)

Aroused by the rumblings from the first of the biennial political campaigns, Senate advocates of an investigation into expenses of the senatorial candidates will move this week to get authorization for this inquiry.

The explosions from the Illinois contest, where Senator Deneen and Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick will fight it out at the polls tomorrow for the Republican senatorial nomination, have reverberated in Washington. The Capital is closely watching the outcome of the bid of Mrs. McCormick to be the first woman elected to the Senate.

Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, the author of the resolution for investigation of senatorial campaign expenditures, said yesterday his attention had been called to the complaints made by various candidates in the Illinois race of campaign expenditures, and he would ask the Senate to go into this primary "and all others."

The Nebraskan said he would seek action this week on his resolution, which is now before the elections committee. Chairman Shortridge, of this committee, is busily engaged as a conferee on the tariff bill, but he said he would try to get a meeting this week.

Meanwhile, the noise of another Republican senatorial battle, up in Pennsylvania, where Secretary James J. Davis is after Senator Joseph R. Grundy's seat, is attracting notice here. Senator Norris said this was another campaign which he wanted the Senate to inspect for expenditures.

However, the Nebraskan specified that he wanted a widespread inquiry, including investigation of all cases where charges of excessive campaign expenditures are made. He himself is candidate this year.

After the Illinois vote tomorrow, the next campaign of national interest is that in Pennsylvania between Secretary Davis and Senator Grundy for the Senate.

This race has divided the official family of President Hoover. Secretary Mellon, who serves in the Cabinet with Secretary Davis, is aligned with the Grundy forces. The Pennsylvania primary is next month.

CUTTEN'S HUNT FOR HOODLUMS IS NEARER END

Fifth Arrest Is Made in Millionaire's Search for Six Robbers.

SUSPECT IS THOUGHT ONE OF TERRORISTS

STRIPPED OF JEWELS AND LOCKED IN VAULT

Prisoner in Cleveland Seeks Habeas Corpus Writ, Denying Charges.

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Arrest in Cleveland, Ohio, today of a man believed to be Simon Rosenberg apparently brought nearer an end a multimillionaire grain dealer's eight-year search for the six hoodlums who terrorized his family March 27, 1922, on his country estate in suburban Downers Grove. The six fled under shotgun fire with nine cases of bonded liquor, $500 in cash and $17,000 worth of jewelry.

The grain man, Arthur W. Cutten, long a spectacular figure on the Chicago Board of Trade, was reluctant today to discuss the robbery of March 27, 1922.

"I never let up," he said. "When a man comes into my house and robs me and my family, then locks us in a vault, where we might have suffocated—well, I'll get him."

Four Already Arrested.

Mr. Cutten has already "gotten" four of the six men involved. Two, William Hart and John Cuda, are in the State penitentiary at Joliet, Ill. Two, who confessed, were put on probation. A fifth is thought to be the man seized today, and the sixth is Rosenberg's brother, Casper, still at large.

"And when Cuda gets out," Mr. Cutten added, "he's going to be reported back to Italy."

Joseph Vormittag, a butler, after being discharged by Cutten, it was charged conceived the idea of kidnaping his former employer. He went to various underworld hangouts and eventually enlisted the aid of nine men, according to his confession to authorities.

Six members of the gang drove out to Downer's Grove and waited near a railroad station, where Mr. Cutten always arrived from Chicago.

Car Goes Into Ditch.

The wealthy intended victim was met by his chauffeur and the gang trailed him, but, en route to the estate, the pursuers' car went into a ditch. They continued afoot, and, upon their arrival, took command of the house.

At the point of guns, the robbers stripped off the jewelry worn by members of the family and then forced them into a vault in which 100 cases of liquor were stored. Noticing the liquor, the men each grabbed a case, locked the family and all servants in the vault, and started away.

At this point a grocery truck drove up. The robbers tossed the delivery man and his groceries out of his truck, filled it with their loot and sped away.

Butler Wounds Two.

The butler, meanwhile, managed to work the vault door open, seized a shotgun and pursued in an automobile. He shot and wounded two of the men, but all escaped. Mr. Cutten at once started an investigation and got trace of the thieves because of appearance of the rare liquor at certain underworld haunts. Vormittag was recognized during the hour and

Hawks Reaches Goal In Motorless Plane

Brings Glider to Earth in Van Cortlandt Park in Bronx, New York.

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—The frail glider Eaglet cut loose from its towing plane and coasted gracefully to earth in Van Cortlandt Park late today, to end the first transcontinental flight in a motorless ship.

In its tiny glass-inclosed cockpit sat Capt. Frank M. Hawks, who holds both the eastward and westward records for nonstop transcontinental airplane flights. He was welcomed to New York by his wife and an official committee headed by Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen, while a crowd of several thousand, which circled the huge parade ground and pressed eagerly against the restraining police lines, cheered.

Capt. Hawks, who left San Diego, Calif., last Sunday morning, brought

KLEIN SEES STEADY BUSINESS INCREASE

Building for March Shows 45 Per Cent Increase, He Tells Radio Audience.

BIG BENEFITS ARE CITED

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said last night that statistics showed building contracts awarded during March increased 45 per cent over the preceding month and were only 5 per cent below those for March of last year when business was moving at high speed.

Speaking over the National Broadcasting System, Dr. Klein quoted figures compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corporation as indicating the steady improvement in business conditions this year, and said the rise in building contracts is "real news" indicative of the "anticipated dawn of a new day."

This is true, he said, particularly when consideration is also given to the fact that January of this year was 21 per cent below January of last year and February was about 12 per cent below February a year ago.

"Perhaps," he added, "even more important is the fact that some of the ultra-conservative governmental economists are right now boosting their estimates for Nation-wide construction this year by approximately $1,000,000,000, placing the new total at $11,000,000,000 instead of $10,000,-

THIEF CAUGHT IN ACT OF PURLOINING GEMS

Man, Who Smashed Door of Shop, Is Found Stuffing Jewels in Pockets.

$1,500 IN LOOT IS SAVED

A bold jewelry thief, unnoticed by hundreds of passersby, late yesterday smashed the front door window of the Charles Schwartz Sons Jewelry Store, at 708 Seventh street northwest, and was starting to make his getaway with $1,500 worth of gems, when surprised by detectives.

The way that brought about his downfall was by stepping on a burglar alarm as he walked through the dark recesses of the store selecting valuable jewelry from the various counters.

The sounding of the alarm caused three detectives to be dispatched to the scene. They raced through the heavy traffic, and, on their arrival found the broken window and the store apparently empty.

Detective Thomas Nally, with Police Chauffeurs Hilmar Carper and Hugh Robey, immediately began a search of the store, while policemen from the First Precinct Station guarded it from all sides to prevent the escape of the thief.

Chauffeur Robey and his companions were about to give up the search when Robey suddenly looked beneath the counters again. In the dark recesses of the counter he saw a man huddled in the corner.

Gibson Lauds Parley, Sees Five-Party Pact

Ambassador to Belgium Says, in Radio Talk, Treaty May Be Reached in Few Days; Outlook in London Gloomy.

(Associated Press.)

Holding out hope that a five-power agreement might be reached at the London naval conference, Hugh S. Gibson, a member of the American delegation, said yesterday in a radio address that the result should be determined within the next few days.

"We have good reason to hope that a five-power agreement may be signed before we leave here," Gibson said in his address, which was broadcast from London and given out here by the State Department.

"Whether this is to be," he added, "we ought to know within a few days. If this is to be, it will mark the most notable testimony to the existence of a more secure confidence and peaceful world than any five powers have given since the war.

"If the full measure of that agreement can not be had at this session, the three-power agreement can be made on a basis which will welcome in the other two powers when their difficulties have been solved. We feel sure of ultimate solution for the work that has been done here and the spirit in which it has been done is such as to spell either immediate or ultimate success."

Referring to the agreement already reached between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, Gibson, who is American Ambassador to Belgium, said it was "advantageous to all three countries and constitutes an important contribution to interntional friendship and good understanding."

"The great achievement of this conference," he said, "is that it has arrived at a basis for limiting all kinds of vessels in the largest fleets and the cruiser, destroyer and submarine tonnage under this limitation will be far below the lowest limit which was discussed at Geneva in 1927.

"To those of us who have followed the efforts for limitation since the Washington Conference the results attained here so far are beyond reasonable expectation; but, actually, reduction is not the most important part of this agreement.

"If the reduction had been less and the agreement were made on a higher level, it would still contain the major objectives for which the conference was called, which is the establishment of relationships between the countries, based on a limitation agreemnt which provides every country with a definite knowledge of the plans of the others and that sense of security which comes from such knowledge.

"I should like to make that point clear. A fixed agreed relationship be-

Virginia Man Dies After Head-On Collision; Student Suffers Concussion of Brain in Day Marked by Torrents of Rain.

Unprecedented motor traffic, combined with heavy rain yesterday caused one auto fatality and injury to numerous persons on thoroughfares in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The auto fatality occurred early yesterday in Virginia. The victim was identified at the District Morgue as Walter Croxson, colored, of Halls Hill, Va. The identification was made by his sister, Ida Bowman, of Falls Church, Va.

Croxson met death when his machine collided head-on with an auto operated by Private Benson Amorosi, 22 years old, of Fort Myer. Amorosi suffered cuts and bruises on the face and his companion, Mrs. Rachael Davis, 22 years old, of Franklin Park, Va., suffered a broken left arm. Amorosi lives at 930 L street.

Chester L. Hayden, of 1014 Atlantic avenue southeast, lost control of his machine, according to the police, and struck a telegraph pole at Seventh street and Mount Vernon place northwest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital suffering a possible skull fracture. His condition is regarded as serious.

Karl Voehl, 40, of Seat Pleasant, Md., was seriously injured when the steering knuckle of his auto broke, causing the machine to overturn at

PROMPT PASSAGE OF CRAMTON BILL URGED

SOMERVELL IS CITED ON EXPENSE FACTOR

Maintenance Would Come From Federal Coffers, Not From States.

The American Institute of Architects urges the immediate passage of the Capper-Cramton bill for the acquiring of Great Falls and the Potomac Valley by the United States before it passes into the hands of a strong power syndicate, in a statement issued yesterday by the institute National Capital committee, of which Horace W. Peaslee, of Washington, is chairman.

Pointing out that the measure, now before the Senate District committee, would place the valley in the control of Congress "for use as a great natural park," the statement adds, "If and when the need for power ever becomes pressing, Congress would be able to proceed with power development."

"The power interests, notably the Byllesby Co., of Chicago, working through a subsidiary, the Potomac River Corporation," the statement continues, "are bending every effort to obtain the adoption of an amendment making it mandatory upon the Federal Power Commission to grant a permit for private development. Such an amendment would give control to a private corporation, damming the gorge and draining or drowning the Great Falls, thus depriving the people of the country at large of one great natural park which should be their chief pride."

Park Values Cited.

The remainder of the statement follows, in part:

"The Potomac River Valley may be useful to the Nation in many ways—for park, power, navigation, water supply, flood control, &c. To permit development for water power by private interests now means making all other uses subservient to water power and the sacrifice of enormous values—in money, scenery, recreation and inspiration. To acquire the land as provided in the bill and to use it as park pending the time when the public interest demands its use for other purposes means conservation of all the resources of the river under public control.

"The frantic efforts of the power interests to amend or defeat the Capper-Cramton bill indicate their realization that if the area is made more accessible as a natural park and its value becomes known to the public, the Congress and people of this country will never permit the sacrifice of park, navigation or other values to the development of water power by a private company.

Hit Revenue Argument.

"During the last few days senators, Washington organizations and Washington papers have been flooded with so-called information, largely originating with the executive officer of the Federal Power Commission, Maj. Brehon Somervell, but featured sensationally by the attorney of the power interests. An effort is being made to create the impression that failure to adopt the power amendment would mean a terrific loss of potential revenue, although as a matter of fact, the adoption of the

Fund to Ransom Kidnaped Engineer Sent to Mexico

Bandits Hold Mock Execution to Frighten J. B. Bristow Into Asking That Federal Troops Be Withdrawn From Pursuit of Outlaw Gang.

Nogales, Ariz., April 6 (A.P.).—Ransom money to be paid to Mexican bandits for the release of J. B. Bristow, 60, Texas oil man being held a prisoner near Tepic, Mayarit, Mex., was received by telegraph by a Nogales bank today and immediately forwarded by telegraph to Mazatlan, Sinaloa, bank representatives.

The ransom, approximately $9,000, was sent here by Texas and Oklahoma banks. Information was that the money must reach the bandits tonight to bring about Bristow's safe release.

Mexico City, April 6 (A.P.).—A dispatch from from Tepic to Excelsior today said that the bandits who for three weeks have been holding J. E Bristow, Texas oil man, as prisoner, had frightened him into asking that Federal troops sent to rescue him be withdrawn. A dispatch said the outlaws stood Bristow against a wall and conducted a mock execution. So well was the drama acted that Bristow believed he was about to be shot and agreed to ask withdrawal of the troops.

Several hundred Federal troops have been gradually closing in on the band of ten or fifteen bandits holding Bristow. The outlaws have said that they would execute the prisoner unless the government recalled the troops.

MAHATMA GANDHI.

Dandi, India, April 6 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader of India and Hindu philosopher, waded into the sea near this little village on the Gulf of Cambay at 6 a. m. today and violated the salt monopoly of the Indian government by dipping up sea water in an earthen jar to be heated for the manufacture of salt.

Thus he opened the long-awaited Nationalist campaign of nonviolent resistance to the government with an overt act of disobedience, which has been the goal of his 200-mile march from Ahamdabad with his band of volunteers.

The consequences of this simple action, performed in a primitive setting of marshland, small villages and long, monotonous coast line, will be felt throughout the great peninsula of 300,000,000 inhabitants, and may ultimately be grave for the British authorities.

Gandhi's Son Arrested.

Though Gandhi himself was unmolested in violating the salt monopoly, police swiftly acted against volunteers attempting similar action elsewhere, and there were a number of arrests.

Gandhi's own son, Ram Das Gandhi, was taken into custody with four volunteers at Bhimrad Village in the Chorasi District for gathering salt. They were taken to Surat, where they refused bail. They will be tried on Tuesday.

A larger round-up was operated by the police at Viramgam, a large town 40 miles west of Ahmadabad. The police arrested Manilal Kothari, one of Gandhi's lieutenants, and 55 volunteers. Kothari was later sentenced to a fine of 500 rupees or six months' simple imprisonment.

A large quantity of salt collected by 150 volunteers in the Bardoli and Jalapur districts was confiscated.

Rail Strikers Riot.

Beyond the police action in these cases, all restricted to the area in which Gandhi himself is operating, no reports of repression of the disobedience movement were received at the Mahatma's headquarters. There were no signs of any other immediate government move against the lawbreakers, and there were no rumors of plans for the arrest of Gandhi.

The only violence reported occurred between striking workers of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway and police. The workers, who have been striking for several weeks for better conditions, enthusiastically began to make things unpleasant for the authorities.

At Thana Station 20 miles from Bombay, strikers stoned and injured policement and workers who had remained on the job. At Kurla, also near Bombay, strikers were fired on by the police and seven were injured.

At Thana, they also tried passive resistance by standing on the tracks and trying to block trains, but Pathan policemen beat them off.

Six Strikers Sentenced.

Nineteen strikers, including two leaders, have so far been arrested. Six, already tried, have been sentenced to three weeks of rigorous imprisonment.

There weer no police in sight when Gandhi, at last at the end of his month of marching, and after prayer,

COMMUNIST REVOLT IN MEXICO CHECKED

Red Headquarters in Four Cities Raided by Police to Halt Uprising.

PLOT WAS NATION-WIDE

Mexico City, April 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Raids on Communist headquarters in four cities in the State of Vera Cruz, wholesale arrests of known radical leaders there and in Mexico City and quick concentration of government troops in localities where Mexican "reds" are active, frustrated Communist plans to start a nation-wide revolutionary movement in Mexico today.

The planned uprising fizzled out dismally in Vera Cruz, Orizaba, Cordoba and Jalapa, the four cities where the Communist element is strongest, when virtual martial law went into effect there. All public buildings were heavily guarded by Federal troops. Particularly elaborate precautions were taken in Vera Cruz to protect the water front works. At the first signs of disorder anywhere the troops at once made clear the government's intention to prevent any demonstrations.

The plot missed fire completely here. Communist calls to action had stated that 1,000,000 unemployed Mexicans were expected to join in demonstrations. In Mexico City there were only 500 demonstrators, and these were mostly women. They marched from Zocalo to Chapultepec Castle, the presidential residence, a distance of 4 miles, unmolested. But when they sought to reach the castle gates they found all the approaches leading up to it blocked by mounted police armed with rifles and machine guns. A deputation of the marchers sought an audience with President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, but their request to see him was turned down.

The Communist plans in the state of Vera Cruz were more extensive, but equally fruitless. The police and military authorities, who learned yesterday of a plot to overwhelm garrisons and raise the flag of the Third International over public buildings, took drastic measures to suppress the revolt before it could get started. In their raids on Communist headquarters they captured documents, including correspondence, which put them in possession of the Communist plans for an uprising. With these in their possession, it was easy to checkmate every move of the Reds in advance.

The Third International at Moscow is believed by officials here to have been behind the frustrated movement.

meditation and fasting, gave the signal for disobedience to the salt laws all over India.

Leaning on the shoulder of the daughter of Abbas Tyabji, retired Baroda district judge, who will lead the volunteers if Gandhi is arrested, the Mahatma went down into the sea to the accompaniment of shouts from his followers.

"Long live Mahatma Gandhi!"

He dipped up a jug of water from the long gray line of breakers rolling in from the Arabian Sea and carried it to the shore. Within the space of a few minutes the great campaign had begun.

Wants Dry Law.

Immediately after coming out of the water, Gandhi issued a statement to the press, repeating that the fight against the salt tax should be accompanied by a campaign of propaganda for the boycott of foreign cloth and prohibition of liquor.

"Now that a technical or ceremonial breach of the salt law has been committed such a course is open to any one who will risk prosecution," said Gandhi. "He may manufacture salt wherever he wishes and wherever convenient.

"My advice is that workers should everywhere manufacture salt and, where they know how, prepare and clean salt and use it and instruct the villagers to do likewise. At the same time the villager should be told that he runs the risk of prosecution. In other words, the villagers should be fully instructed as regards the salt law and the manner of breaking the regulations connected with it, so as to have the salt tax repealed. It should be made clear to the villagers that the breach is open and that such conduct is no way stealthy.

Should Continue War.

"They may help themselves to salt manufactured through nature in creeks and pits near the seashore, and use it themselves or for their cattle, and sell it to those who will buy, it being well understood that all such people are breaking the salt law and risking prosecution or being subjected by the so-called salt officers to harassment.

"This war against the salt tax should be continued during national week, that is, up to April 13. Those engaged in this sacred work should devote themselves to vigorous propaganda for a boycott against foreign cloth and the prohibition of liquor. I am preparing a message now for the women of India, who, I am becoming more and more convinced, can make a larger contribution than men toward the attainment of independence."

No policemen appeared on the scene while Gandhi was breaking the salt law.

Gandhi also dictated the following message to the children of India: "Let the kiddies spin while their elders court jail."

Eight Face Trial For Mob Murder

Kentuckians Are Accused of Slaying Prisoner on Christmas.

Irvine, Ky., April 6 (A.P.).—The trial of eight men in connection with the mob murder of Chester Fugate, who was taken from Breathitt County Jail at Jackson last Christmas Day and shot to death, is scheduled to open here tomorrow.

Fugate was in jail charged with the slaying of Clay Watkins, attorney, when a mob abducted him and left his bullet-riddled body in a ditch beside the road. Although wounded thirteen times, Fugate lived some time after the shooting.

Six of the defendants are relatives of Watkins. They are Allie Watkins, 16, a son; Sam Watkins, brother; L. K. Rice, son-in-law; Ben Howard, nephew; Earl Howard, nephew, and Lee Watkins, nephew. All are charged with murder.

The other defendants are S. L. Combs, jailer of Breathitt County at the time of the abduction and his son Lewis, deputy jailer. Both are charged with accessory to murder.

Piani Acquitted by Jury In Rich Widow's Death

Mount Holly, N. J., April 6 (A.P.).—A county court jury last night acquitted Frederick Piani of the murder of Mrs. Isabel Shedaker December 20, 1927. The defense had contended that Piani was insane when he shot and killed the wealthy widow and then attempted to end his life. The court, in instructing the jury of eight women and four men, emphasized that it should determine the defendant's mental condition at the time the crime was committed.

The prosecution, in asking for a verdict of first degree murder, had declared that letters and statements of Piani showed that, while he became insane after Mrs. Shedaker had been killed and attempted suicide, he was sane at the time of the shooting.

CASE OF WETS FAILS, BISHOP CANNON SAYS

House Hearing Testimony Aided Dry Arguments, He Believes.

WITNESSES ARE SCORED

(Associated Press.)

In a statement cabled from London to the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Bishop James Cannon, jr., said last night that the wets appearing before the House judiciary committee had "made out no convincing case for the repeal of the prohibition law."

Summarizing the testimony given in the hearings, Bishop Cannon said "they did make out a case for more education and stricter enforcement."

"No prohibitionist claims that the prohibition law is fully enforced or that conditions can not be greatly improved," he said, "but it is confidently asserted that political, industrial, economic, domestic and general social conditions of the great masses of the people have vastly improved under prohibition as compared with the old saloon days.

"The case for admittedly imperfect observance and enforcement is to press the campaign of education as to the evils of alcoholism and the benefits of rpohibition and the great need for it in our complex social life, and at the same time to call upon the Government to furnish whatever money and men may be necessary to secure effective enforcement.

Education Is Suggested.

"All admit that return to pre-prohibition conditions is impossible. The wets insist that the present bootleg regime in certain sections is intolerable. Why not try education and strict enforcement and see what results will follow?

"A careful reading of the press reports of the House judiciary committee hearing," he said, "indicates:

"First, the wet chairman made an amazingly unjudicial opening statement. The hearing was not expected to result in favorable action on proposed wet legislation, but to furnish an opportunity to emphasize the wet opposition, which attitude the wet chairman maintained throughout the hearings, regardless of the impartiality demanded of a chairman.

"Second—The witnesses against Federal prohibition were almost exclusively those who have always been advocates of selfish individualism versus the general welfare, who fought local and State prohibition as now they fight Federal prohibition. They were mostly representatives of groups not Nation-wide but social, racial and sectional. They openly justify social flaunting of the law as martyrs smugglers or bootleggers shot while resisting arrest and they criticize or denounce Government officials for enforcing the law and characterize the friends or advocates of prohibition as bigoted Puritans, fanatics or hypocrites.

Oppose Saloon's Return.

"Third—With few exceptions they testified that the conditions prevailing under the legalized saloon were so demoralizing to political, social and economic life ha they are opposed to its return.

"Fourth—They declare that the prohibition law is not enforced and that conditions today with the traffic branded as criminal are utterly intolerable and because of the reign of the bootlegger, they demand the repeal or modification of the law. They admit that they have made no effort to stop the bootleg traffic. Indeed, most of them intimate that they think any one is justified in patronizing bootleggers. * * *

"Fifth—The principle underlying Federal prohibition was set forth and emphasized by President Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was probably the outstanding witness against prohibition. He read the regulation of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which prohibits their employes to use intoxicants at any time, whether on or off duty.

"Why is the Pennsylvania regulation necessary, and why effective? Because of the safety of freight and passengers, the general welfare demands it and few men are so fanatically wet as to deny that the general welfare is promoted by the prohibition regulation. But to insure the observance of the regulation is admittedly necessary for the general welfare. Violation of the regulation is punished by prompt dismissal from the company's service. That is, the general welfare demands the observance of the regulation and the fear of punishment insures its observance."

LEADERS PLANNING HOUSE DISTRICT DAY

RUM STATUTE PLANNED

Representative Clarence L. McLeod, of Michigan, acting chairman of the House District committee, is expected to confer with Representative Tilson, majority floor leader, today on the former's proposal to set aside a District day for the consideration of pending local bills in the lower legislative body. If the plan is adapted it may become a periodical observance.

The Michigan legislator hopes to obtain the consent of the House leaders to schedule the first District day next Monday, April 14. Among the bills awaiting action are the measure to raise the pay of policemen and firemen, the bill to regulate the carrying of firearms, the proposal to regulate the real estate business, and the measure to convert the old Ford Theater into a Lincoln museum.

The Senate District committee will take up the nomination of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby as District Commissioner at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A favorable report is expected.

The Howell bill to enact a strict prohibition statute for Washington is to be considered this week. The Senate committee will hold a public hearing on the measure at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Senate conferees on the retirement bill will hold another session today to study the new bill to liberalize the civil service retirement law. They will hear the testimony of experts at this meeting, and later in the week they intend to arrange a conference with the House conferees.

Rich Oil Man Kills Wife, Then Himself

Quarrel Results in Double Slaying; Infant Near as Mother Is Shot.

Dallas, Tex., April 6 (A.P.).—Augustus Philip Minchew, 49, wealthy independent oil operator, shot his wife to death and then killed himself at the Minchew home here today after a family quarrel. A coroner's verdict of homicide and suicide by Minchew was given. Minchew was manager of the Yates Oil Pool Development Syndicate.

Ora Robinson, Negro maid, told officers the Minchews were quarreling and that Minchew left his wife, entered the bathroom and returned a moment later with something in his hands. Sensing trouble, the maid said she took Ada Jean Minchew, 3-year-old daughter of the couple, and went downstairs. Nancy, a 6-month-old daughter, was in the room when her mother was killed. Minchew then returned to the bathroom and shot himself.

The couple had been married four years. She was the oil man's second wife.

Harem of Sultans Opened To Infidels and Faithful

Istanbul Yields Last of Her Mysteries to World at 25 Cents Per Person; Terror of Old Crimes Lurks in Hidden Rooms.

Istanbul, Turkey, April 6 (A.P.).—Once royal dispenser of terror and mystery to the mystery-loving world, Istanbul is now selling the last of her secrets.

Tomorrow, by order of the Turkish Republic, the doors of the imperial harem of the Seraglio Palace of the Ottoman sultans will be thrown open. Then infidels and followers of the prophet alike may pass, for the price of 25 cents, the threshold whose crossing would once have cost them their lives.

For almost two years repairs have been under way to make ready this last portion of the Seraglio Palace for opening to the public. For four and a half centuries this was the most jealously guarded corridor of the vast palace, and of the vast Ottoman Empire. Great walls, heavy bronze gates, thousands of soldiers without and hundreds of eunuchs within kept inviolate the mystery of the imperial harem.

Now the public may stalk through the dusky labyrinth of rooms and corridors that seem to trail on and on indefinitely. One after the other, still faintly glowing with the same brocaded hangings and silken couches, tiled walls and frescoed ceilings of the imperial days, but empty of the sultanas and dowagers, the eunuchs and thousands of slaves who lived their hidden lives within these walls.

Those who enter now will get more than their money's worth of beauty if they have an eye for inlaid wood, old rugs, old silks and curiously wrought bronze. They will get their fill of shivers, too, if they are equipped with a bit of historical lore.

There are shivers aplenty in one small dark room where stands the bed in which the Dowager Sultana, Kersen, so beautiful even in her old age that she was called "Body of the Moon," was strangled by Janissaries with the cords of her bed curtains. More shivers, too, in the cagelike room where Sultan Ibrahim the Mad, whose insanity had carpeted and hung the entire palace with fur, met the frequent Ottoman fate of strangulation.

Terror and majesty walk in the apartments of the Sultana Hoursen, whom the Western world knows mistakenly by the name of Roxelana. She was the Russian slave girl whom Sultan Suleiman, the magnificent, made his wife and of whom he said: "To be husband of this woman is more to be desired than to be the greatest sultan of the greatest empire in the world."

The powerful sultan's passion for this slave girl and her passion for power marked Ottoman history with some of its most sanguinary pages. Grand viziers who would not bow to the slave-sultana's will were murdered, and treacherously murdered, too, was the splendid Crown Prince Mustapha, whom his implacable stepmother, Hoursem, could not let stand in the way of her complete control of the sultan and of the empire.

There is one room of the harem apartments where the public will not enter tomorrow, or perhaps ever. Outside its heavily grilled windows, where 40 Moslem priests chant from the Koran year in and year out, the public may stand and peek. Only sultan-caliphs have ever entered that sanctuary, reputed to hold the mantle and the beard of the prophet.

TARIFF CONFEREES ONE-SIXTH THROUGH

NIGHT SESSIONS HINTED

(Associated Press.)

The ten senators and representatives sitting in judgment on the varying tariff views of the two branches of Congress go into their fourth session today united in a determination to compose all differences in three weeks at the latest.

One-sixth of the more than 1,200 amendments added by the Senate to the Hawley-Smoot measure, which has been before Congress fifteen months today, have been adjusted by the conferees, either by virtue of the House or Senate group receding or by compromise of the differing rates in the first two schedules embracing chemicals, oils, paints, earthenware and glassware.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, head of the Senate conference committee, said yesterday that all noncontroversial duties will be cleared up first. Major rates on which deadlocks occur or which either side has pledged not to settle without permitting the Senate or House to vote upon them, he added, will be reserved for disposition later.

Night Sessions Indicated.

Although both Republicans and Democrats have expressed satisfaction with the progress of the conference, there are indications that night sessions will be resorted to before long to accelerate the work. This procedure already has been broached, but unanimous consent has not been forthcoming.

Of the 203 Senate amendments passed on thus far, a big majority have been accepted, meaning the revision is more or less downward. The House group, however, has insisted and won a dozen or more of the House bill increases and compromises have jumped Senate duties in several additional instances.

Rates on only two commodities—casein and cement—have been deferred for future decision. The House group is bound under a gentleman's agreement to bring the cement controversy back to the House for a vote. Indications point also to a House ballot on casein. Other provisions slated for votes either in the House or Senate are the export debenture amendment and the provision withdrawing presidential power to change duties, and the duties on sugar, lumber and shingles.

Hides, Leathers, Shoes Are Difficult.

Hides, leathers and shoes also form a triple impediment for the conferees. The Senate retained all of these commodities on the free list, while the House placed them in the protective category.

Urging that politics be left out of the discussions over these commodities, the United States Leather Co., of New York, in a brief submitted to the conferees yesterday, appealed for free hides and a protective tariff on sole, harness and belting leather.

As a protest against enactment of the tariff bill, Dr. Gertrude M. Duncan, secretary of the women's nonpartisan fair tariff committee, announced yesterday that a mass meeting will be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, April 23, with Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, and former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming listed as principal speakers.

Representative Norton to Preside.

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, will preside.

"To the best of our knowledge," said Dr. Duncan, "this is the first great mass meeting in American history ever organized by consumers as a protest against an outrageous tariff measure."

"In its desire to jam into a tariff bill the highest duties ever conceived, Congress has scorned the millions of housewives who must pay the bills," she said.

She explained that the committee sponsoring the meeting was formed last year as a national council of women's organizations for tariff research.

000,000, as estimated a few weeks ago."

"The effect of brisk and widespread construction activity," the Secretary said, "in reducing unemployment is so apparent, so generally recognized, that I need not dwell long on it. Construction makes jobs. It helps to keep the wheels of manifold industries revolving. The 'construction dollar' is split into tiny fractions, and the pieces fly out and alight in the cash drawers of practically all the major economic activities of the country. And when we consider how many billions of 'construction dollars' are expended in America each year, we see how giant benefits are inevitably piled up."

New York, April 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Employment data gathered by the New York Board of Trade and made public today tend to show that conditions are not so bad as charged by other groups. Ninety per cent of the employers reporting to the board have said the number now on their pay rolls is equal to, or greater than, their average number.

Optimism also was expressed by the subcommittee on unemployment of the industrial relations committee of the Merchants Association, which reports the peak of unemployment has passed. The committee has drawn up an "unemployment relief code," which includes recommendations to avoid staff reductions, to speed repairs and to work a full force part time rather than part of a force full time.

Murderer to Leave Jail With Tidy War Pensions

Pittsburgh, April 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Rocco Cirrulo, 58, after serving twenty years in the Western Penitentiary, will walk out of that institution this week with more than $2,000 in his purse and will receive an income of $105.60 a month. The money comes from war insurance paid to the prisoner on the lives of his two sons, Daniel and Louis, who were killed in the World War. The sons who fell fighting for their country were small boys in 1910 when Cirrulio was committed to life imprisonment for the murder of their mother at their home in Blair County.

With a record of good behavior in the penitentiary, Cirrulo appealed for a pardon and this was granted on condition that the man, an alien, be turned over to the Federal immigration authorities for deportation to Italy.

PRESIDENT RETURNS FROM RAPIDAN CAMP

Hoover Party Motors Back to Capital in Face of Driving Rain.

FINDS FISHING GOOD

(Associated Press.)

Refreshed from the week-end trip to the mountains, President Hoover returned late yesterday to the White House.

Throughout the 100-mile automobile trip to Washington from the camp on the headwaters of the Rapidan River in Virginia the presidential party faced a driving rainstorm. The return trip was without incident, although the White House cars passed three motorists who had come to misfortune in the ditches.

Yesterday morning President Hoover visited the schoolhouse established through his efforts for the mountain children. A few people were present at the school at the time. President Hoover chatted for a while with Miss Christine Vest, the school teacher. None of the Presidential party fished yesterday, and after a lunch at the lodge, started on the return trip to Washington.

Mr. Hoover's catch of eleven mountain trout stood as the high mark of the party, although each member had good luck at the stream Saturday.

JEWEL THIEF CAUGHT WITH LOOT IN STORE

"Come out or I'll blow your head off," Robey shouted at the man.

The man obeyed as Detectives Nally and Carper joined Robey. The prisoner swung at the detectives, they reported, and attempted to break away, but was quickly subdued.

A hurried search revealed the prisoner had stuffed a large quantity of jewelry in his pockets. It included diamond rings, wrist watches, necklaces and mesh bags.

At police headquarters he said that he was Sam Jones, colored, 29 years old, of Eighth street near S street northwest.

"If you let me out," he said to the police, "I will never return again."

Jones, however, was sent to the First Precinct Station, where he will be held pending further investigation. His fingerprints will be taken to determine whether he had any connection with recent thefts in the city.

Information given by the captive to the police later led to the arrest of an alleged accomplice who gave his name as William Powell, 33 years old, colored, of Seventh street near G street northwest. Powell was booked at headquarters for investigation.

There have been numerous store robberies whereby entrance was made by hurling bricks through showwindows in the District recently. In the Schwartz robbery a covered brick, muffling the sound of the breaking glass, was used.

not a heavy wind to tear them from the branches. They have reached their full glory now, and will remain in full bloom for probably a week longer. By that time the double blossoms will be opening around the Potomac Speedway, creating another scene of splendor.

Reports last night from police precincts and nearby Maryland and Virginia indicated that rain which fell steadily all day had caused many streets and roads to be flooded. Chevy Chase streets were reported as being covered with 5 inches of water. Dirt which had been replaced in an excavation on Rodman street, from Thirty-second to Thirty-fourth streets northwest, was washed out and police from the Fourteenth Precinct were forced to close the street for the two blocks.

Baltimore Boulevard Flooded.

On the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville, where 20,000 cars are reported to have passed during the day coming in the direction of Washington, a large percentage of them from Pennsylvania, it was said that 5 inches of water was covering the road.

Seven inches of water covered the road north of the Peace Monument.

Similar reports came in from Muirkirk and from Bethesda, and at a late hour last night it was reported that the road to the Congressional Country Club, by way of Wilson Lake and the Bradley Hills boulevard, was almost impassable, with water standing in some places more than 14 inches deep.

The Weather Bureau late yesterday afternoon issued a storm warning to the Eastern section of the country, advising that heavy winds were expected along the coast from South Carolina to the New England States, which might strike the coastal section with considerable intensity. The warning stated that heavy gales would probably strike off the coast, and that vessels were to observe caution.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison Morrow Senate Backer

Trenton, N. J., April 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The supporters of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in the New Jersey senatorial primary fight yesterday announced that Mrs. Thomas Alva Edison has joined the ranks advocating the selection of Mr. Morrow over former Senator Frelinghuysen, his opponent.

"We have it in our power right here in New Jersey to give the United States Senate the great ability, talent and intelligence of Dwight W. Morrow," Mrs. Edison wrote in a letter to Mrs. Roy V. Wright, chairman of the women's division of the Morrow campaign. "Let us make this a women's victory," Mrs. Edison concluded.

TRAFFIC COLLISIONS BRING ONE FATALITY

RAIN BOTHERS DRIVERS

Central avenue, near Forty-ninth street northwest. He was extricated from the machine by a passing motorist, who took him to Casualty Hospital. Mr. Voehl suffered a fractured skull and had several ribs broken.

Marion Coffrren, 6 years old, of Greater Heights, Md., is in a critical condition in Casualty Hospital as result of being injured by an auto which leaped over the curb, crashing through a fence and pinning the girl against the house. The girl was playing in the yard of her home when she was struck.

Three persons were seriously injured late yesterday when an automobile in which they were riding struck the steel uprights on the Highway Bridge near the Virginia side.

Visitors in Capital.

The injured were riding in a machine operated by Louie Bloom, 35 years old, of 239 Fowler avenue, Jersey City, who was one of the host of visitors to the District to see the cherry blossoms.

The injured are Bloom's wife, Eva, 29 years old; their son, Buddie, 4 years old, and a friend, Rose Oppenheim, 59 years old, of 3569 Rochambeau street, New York City. The Blooms suffered from shock and lacerations of the scalp. Mrs. Oppenheim suffered possible fracture of the left arm and internal injuries. All were detained at the Emergency Hospital.

Jean Yadkowsky, 9 years old, of 1030 Four-and-a-half street southwest, suffered a scalp laceration when an automobile in which she was riding was in collision with another machine at Four-and-a-half and L streets. The girl was treated at her home by a family physician.

Drivers Are Listed.

The girl was riding in a car operated by Sophia Zupnick, 35 years old, of 1414 Chapin street northwest. The other car was driven by Leland Ellsworth Meader, 30 years old, of Cumberland, Md.

Mrs. Charles Lyter, 46 years old, of Daphna, Va., was severely injured early yesterday when an automobile operated by Charles Lyter skidded and overturned on the Rockville pike just south of Rockville. She was taken to Emergency Hospital in an automobile driven by H. B. Haddox, jr., of 2115 F street northwest. She suffered from shock and lacerations of the left wrist.

Jessie Grimes, 35 years old, of 417 fifteenth street southeast, suffered a probable skull fracture and laceration over the left eye last night when he was struck by a taxicab at Kentucky avenue and C street southeast. Grimes' injuries were treated at Casualty Hospital. The cab was operated by James Wilson, 26 years old, of 1227 E street northeast.

Man Hurt as Auto Hits Tree.

Severe body bruises were received by John E. Davis, 26 years old, of 1004 C street northeast, when his machine struck a tree at Sixth and M streets northeast, after it was sideswiped by another car, which failed to halt. Davis' injuries were treated at the Casualty Hospital and later he was permitted to return to his home.

A broken collarbone was suffered by Henry S. Graniger, 38 years old, of 3329 Georgia avenue northwest, when car skidded off the road near Meadows, Md. He was removed to Casualty Hospital.

Collision of two automobiles at Seventh and N streets northwest, injuring two occupants of a car when it vaulted a curb and crashed into a building, led to arrest of the driver of the other car on a hit-and-run charge after his capture in a long chase.

Pair Slightly Hurt.

William H. Gibson, colored, 35 years old, of 23 Fifty-third place northeast, driver of one car, and his companion, John Cunningham, colored, 36 years old, of 405 O street northwest, suffered minor hurts. They were treated at Freedmen's Hospital and dismissed.

Second Precinct police booked Henry R. Brooks, colored, 43 years old, of Swann street near Sixteenth street northwest, on hit-and-run charges after he had been overtaken at Eighth and L streets northwest in a chase by Rudolph Johnson, colored, 35 years old, of 903 O street northwest.

Minor lacerations on the shoulder were suffered by a colored woman at Seventeenth and Q streets northwest, when the car in which she was riding collided with an automobile driven by Charles Herberman, 22 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., a stu- years ago, and a guest at the Mayflower Hotel.

The woman was Adelaide Ward, 22 years old, of 448 First street southwest. She was treated at Freedmen's dent at Georgetown University two Hospital. Joseph Williams, colored, 27 years old, of 235 F street southwest, was listed as the driver of the machine in which she was riding.

Student Severely Hurt.

Preston Grant, 20 years old, of near Rockville, Md., employe of the National Savings and Trust Co., and a night student at American University Law School, received concussion of the brain and severe head injuries early yesterday morning when the automobile he was driving crashed into a telephone pole near Poolesville, Md., while he was en route to a dance there.

Frank Anderson, 20 years old, a neighbor and fellow law student, suffered minor lacerations in the same accident. Grant was removed to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition was reported as serious.

Mrs. Jesse Lee Cassidy, of 1330 Massachusetts avenue northwest, suffered lacerations abou the legs from flying glass when the automobile in which she was proceeding north along the Baltimore boulevard with her husband was sideswiped by a hit-and-run machine yesterday afternoon near Berwyn, Md. The hit-and-runner, bearing a Maryland tag, also sideswiped a Pennsylvania car which gave chase for more than a half mile but lost the trail in the traffic jam.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., April 6.—The condition of Mrs. Norvall Glover, 28, of Keyser, W. Va., who was seriously injured in an automobile accident yesterday, is reported this afternoon as slightly better and the authorities of Loudoun Hospital, where she was taken, believe that she will recover. Her husband, Mr. Glover, 37; Miss Marie Lipscomb, and Mrs. Marion Renick, who are also in the hospital suffering with bruises, cuts, lacerations and broken legs, are improving. Miss Lillian Harrison, school teacher, who was also in the accident, left the hospital today, where she received treatment last night, and returned to Keyser, W. Va.

GREAT FALLS PARK PROJECT DEFENDED

amendment would mean a far greater loss to the people, in that it would deprive them of the rights which might be theirs for the taking at the relatively small cost now possible.

"Much of the 'information' is so presented as to create impressions contrary to fact, both as to the attitude of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and as to the cost to the taxpayers.

"Those favoring power development appeal to the taxpayers of Maryland and Virginia to kill the bill by stating that 'under the terms provided in H. R. 26 for the purchase of these lands, it is necessary for the States of Maryland and Virginia, or political subdivisions thereof, to agree not only to pay one-half of the cost of the lands originally, but to pay the entire cost of the future maintenance and upkeep of the park after the lands are acquired'—which is not what the bill provides.

Financing by U. S.

"This attempt to scare the people of these two States is further emphasized in the brief by quotations on the inside cover from Mr. Cramton's speech in the House of Representatives which have been lifted from their context in a manner misrepresenting the situation.

"The facts of this matter are that the original purchase of the land is to be financed one-half from the Federal Treasury and one-half from the States, political subdivisions or responsible private sources. The future cost of maintenance and upkeep of the park is not at all to come from the States but entirely from the Federal Government.

"The quotations from Mr. Cramton's speech refer to the section of the bill devoted to the extension of Rock Creek Park, Anacostia Park and stream valleys wholly in Maryland and do not apply to the Potomac project.

Somervell Claim Scored.

"Maj. Somervell claims that with power development it would be possible to preserve '90 per cent of the present scenic values and 100 per cent of the major scenic features.' It is stated that he 'talks the language of the landscape architect and scenic artist as well as of the utilitarian engineer.'

"It may well be asked whose judgment as to scenic values is likely to be more accurate—that of an engineer who is naturally prejudiced in favor of man-made features, or that of the landscape architect and the chief of the national park service whose primary occupations in life are preservation and making available natural scenery.

"We have yet to hear of a single landscape architect in this country who agrees with Maj. Somervell. The American Society of Landscape Architects is on record as indorsing the Capper-Cramton bill.

"Maj. Somervell, according to a feature article favoring power development in The Washington Post, believes that the national park on the Potomac planned by the National Park and Planning Commission 'would seem to be the most expensive park the world ever knew except, of course, the Garden of Eden.'

Power Not Jeopardized.

"There is ample reason to doubt the 'if-and-when' of losses or gains which double themselves every few months, but aside from that a wrong impression is being created of the kind of park which the Park and Planning Commission proposes.

"The power advocates would have you believe that a manicured, barbered garden with expensive improvements is contemplated in the Valley of the Potomac above Washington. No such park has ever been even suggested by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which has consistently advocated a natural park merely made accessible which would not interfere with the future use of the valley for navigation or power if such use should later be shown to be in the public interest.

"In regard to the controversy as between park and power interests, the institute submits, first, that if power development were necessary it would be better to have any such development immediately adjoining the National Capital under the control of the Federal Government; second, that no power emergency exists at the present time; third, that if and when the need for power arises, possession of the property by the Government makes such power developmens more feasible and easier of accomplishment at less expense than if the property is not acquired at the present time; finally, that immediate acquisition of the property makes possible its use as a great park for several decades, without in any way jeopardizing its power possibilities."

Detective Fires Gun While He Pursues Alien in New York Crowd.

FIVE PUT UNDER ARREST

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—While police attempted to arrest an Italian alien for deportation today, as he spoke against Fascism to an audience of 1,500 in Cooper Union, an unidentified member of the audience was shot dead, another man wounded and five others arrested.

As the officers entered Amanda Borghi, the alleged alien, jumped from the speaker's platform and fled through the crowd, shouting "Stop the police!" He escaped through a door.

Detective Thomas Lillienthal said he dashed after Borghi, but was held and attacked by the crowd. He said he fired one shot in self-protection. The bullet apparently glanced across the chest of Salvator Velucci, 31, of Brooklyn, and buried itself in the abdomen of the unidentified man, who died later in a hospital.

In the disturbance that followed, police reserves arrested five men, three in the auditorium and two others who said they were helping the critically wounded man to the hospital. The dead man was about 27 years old. Neither Velucci nor the detective was seriously hurt.

Immigration authorities said Borghi has been sought since 1926, after he came to this country from Canada and overstayed his leave. They said he was marked for his radical and anarchistic activities.

FIFTH ARREST MADE IN CUTTEN'S SEARCH

a half that the robbers spent at the Cutten home.

The relentless victim learned that several months ago Simon Rosenberg had been seen in Pittsburgh, Pa. He immediately made arrangements with the Chicago police to have Lieut. Frank Johnson detached for special duty, Mr. Cutten paying all expenses.

Cleveland, April 6 (A.P.).—Police here tonight held a man in jail who gave his name as Charles Davis, but whom they declare is Simon Rosenberg, alleged leader of a gang of nine who eight years ago held up a brilliant social gathering at Wheaton, Ill., and escaped with loot valued at $25,000.

Habeas Corpus Writ Asked.

Davis secured an attorney today who filed petition for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging Davis is not Simon Rosenberg. Hearing on the petition will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in common pleas court.

All the gang of nine which held up the party of Arthur W. Cutten, prominent Chicago stock broker at Wheaton, have been arrested except Simon Rosenberg and his brother, Casper, police said.

Davis had been in Cleveland only one week. He had worked in Detroit three years as a bond salesman. A Chicago detective, who has been trailing him, went to an apartment house here this morning with a Cleveland detective and were looking about, the said, when Davis and a party of friends drove into the garage. The Chicago officer identified him as Rosenberg and he was placed under arrest.

Father Held in Murder Of Daughter by Fire

Norwich, N. Y., April 6 (A.P.).—Charged with murder in connection with the death of his 11-year-old daughter, Ralph H. Mumbulo, 34, and his wife, Edna, 37, were arrested here today and held for extradition to Erie, Pa.

The clothing of the little girl, who burned to death in her bed at her Erie home March 22, was soaked with gasoline, police said. The child inherited property valued at about $8,000 from her mother, Mumbulo's first wife, when she died seven years ago. Mumbulo was named guardian. The girl's life was insured.

MORMONS OBSERVE 100TH ANNIVERSARY

7,000 Gather to Consecrate Big New Auditorium in Missouri.

CELEBRATION IN UTAH

Independence, Mo., April 6 (A.P.).—Communicants of the reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints celebrated the centennial of Mormonism and consecrated their large new auditorium here today. A lineal descendant of Joseph Smith, who called a small group into his religion in Fayette, N. Y., April 6, 1830, summoned to communion more than 7,000 of the international church membership a century later.

At the bidding of Dr. Frederick M. Smith, grandson of Joseph Smith, delegates to the centennial conference filed into the new temple to receive communion at two services directed by 200 ministers. Another descendant of the founder, Dr. Elbert A. Smith, officiated at the evening vesper services, following an afternoon concert by the centennial band.

The million-dollar auditorium, upon an eminence visible for miles around, is 250 by 270 feet on its major axes and its dome towers 114 feet from the street level. Its interior height from the main floor is 67 feet. The building, seating 7,000, has no pillars and no steps, ramps being used for elevation.

Church of Christ Celebrates.

Across the street the Church of Christ celebrated the 100th anniversary, on its temple lot, with similar communion observance. This group has no titular head. Two years ago its members undertook construction of a temple to cost from $600,000 to $700,000, and excavation has been mostly completed. The problem will be considered at its centennial conference this week.

Another problem facing this group is the case of Otto Fetting, of Port Huron, Mich., "silenced" last autumn by the general conference for alleged heresy. Fetting preached and practiced "rebaptism" of persons coming into the church from other Morman factions and has continued to do so since the "silencing." Fetting is here now, preaching at the Church of Jesus Christ, a third group, havng smll church nr aeaaiO group, having a small church near the others.

Observed in Salt Lake City.

Salt Lake City, April 6 (A.P.).—The centennial of the establishment of Mormonism was celebrated here today by thousands of persons, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. They came from many parts of the world.

Opening the day's activities, Heber J. Grant, president of the church, delivered a message from the first presidency of the church which asked the world to judge the body by the fruits of its first 100 years. Tonight the initial presentation of the pageant "The Message of the Ages" was given by a cast of 1,000 actors, singers and musicians.

The conference sessions will continue until Wednesday. The pageant will be presented each night for two weeks.

Handbag Is Reported Stolen.

William Forrest, of 1310 I street northwest, reported to the police yesterday that a fancy beaded handbag valued at $25 and containing $10 was stolen from his apartment. The thief also took several keys and toilet articles.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

IN appearing before the Senate lobby committee tomorrow the Hon. Josephus Daniels, doctor of letters, doctor of laws, newspaper publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, comes up from a State where the threat of disaster bitter as Athenian tragedy stalks the valleys and gibbers on the mountain tops.

The impending calamity is the probable defeat of Senator Simmons of North Carolina for renomination in the Democratic primary June 7.

If the balloting were to be done tomorrow, it is claimed by political leaders who have been in Washington recently, the senator would undoubtedly lose. His one chance to win lies in the possibility that his gift for organization will regain much of his lost ground.

NOTE the stage setting: In his seventy-seventh year and having been a senator for 30 uninterrupted years, Mr. Simmons at last faces the dreary possibility of spending his last days far from the legislative arena he so dearly loves.

For more than a generation he ruled the Democracy of the Old North State with an iron fist. When he opened his imperial mouth, no dog dared bark. At the crack of his punishing whip the boys fell into line or under the juggernaut of his vengeance. Talk of bolting the party was, in his code, the unpardonable sin, crime and treason.

So absolute was his sovereignty that press and public referred to him as "The Senator," and the remainder of the State's congressional delegation was merely a wheel to revolve around the hub of his infallible authority.

Then he, the high priest of party regularity, bolted Al Smith and, with the aid of his dry support and a howling religious intolerance, retained a supremacy of a sort.

* * * *

WHEN the high-strung, silver-tongued and hustling Josiah W. Bailey came out against him for the Senate nomination, it was at first thought that the challenger had no chance. The ghost of the Simmons mastery haunted the people's minds. They still felt the rowelling spurs.

But today, with the torch of the Bailey oratory lighting up the State, it's another story. If the bulletins are accurate, the east and west parts of Tarheelia are Bailey's, while the Simmons strength is in the central or Piedmont section—which means that the senator is the minus man.

A double handicap for Mr. Simmons is that the opposition has control of the primary machinery, and that death has deprived him of the astute services of "Aus" Watts, an organizing genius who for years was his chief whip cracker.

Nevertheless, the fight is not finished. Shrewd, fearless, a magnificent fighter and an expert in crowd psychology, "the senator" can not be counted out until the returns are in.

If he is beaten, Dr. Daniels will be a pallbearer to the body of the tragedy. And that's queer, because this, the year when defeat menaces the senator, is the first time the good doctor has been for him in many years, if ever. The explanation of that about-face is another story.

SMOOT IS SPEAKER AT MORMON SERVICE

Church Centennial Celebrated in Washington With 500 Attending.

SMITH PROPHECIES CITED

The centennial of Mormonism was celebrated in Washington Sunday with special services in the Washington Auditorium, at which a message from the first presidency in Salt Lake City was read and a spirited address was delivered by Senator Reed Smoot. Approximately 500 persons, most of whom are members of the church living in Washington, attended.

Senator Smoot, who is an apostle in the church, spoke on the prophecies of Joseph Smith, the founder. Mr. Smith organized the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints on April 6, 1930, as a result of heavenly revelations he claimed to have received. The church is willing, Senator Smoot said, to "rest its case on the revelations of that marvelous man."

In brief, he told the story of how Joseph Smith, known among the Mormons as "the Prophet," prayed for religious light, how he saw a vision and was told that all the existing sects had gone astray, how the gold plates, from which he claims to have translated the Book of Mormon, were delivered to him after being hidden in a hill in New York for 1,400 years. Senator Smoot then turned to the question of whether or not this unlearned lad told the truth.

Prophecies Are Cited.

In 1831, he said, Joseph Smith prophesied that the church he had organized would flourish and become a great power in the world. He recited brief statistics of growth and achievements during the last 100 years in support of this point.

Senator Smoot quoted from a revelation Mr. Smith made public in 1832, in which the Civil War was predicted. Nearly 30 years before that conflict began Mr. Smith said it would commence in South Carolina, that Great Britain would be called upon for assistance, and that death and misery would be "poured out" upon this whole country, according to Senator Smoot. He recalled that South Carolina was the first State to secede, and that the first gun was fired at Fort Sumter.

One interesting prophecy concerns Stephen A. Douglas, who ran for the Presidency against Abraham Lincoln. Joseph Smith told Douglas in 1843, Senator Smoot said, that he would aspire to the Presidency, and warned him if he ever turned against the Mormons he would be defeated. At that time Douglas was friendly to the Mormons, but in 1857 he denounced them in a political speech at Springfield, Ill. After receiving but two electoral votes he died in disappointment and grief, the speaker said. Senator Smoot argued that Smith would never have dared to make such statements had he been an impostor. No one has ever disproved one of Smith's prophecies, he said.

Progress Is Recounted.

The statement from the first presidency of the church, which was read by Marion Earl, called attention to the progress that has been made during the 100 years that Mormonism has existed, and touched upon significant points in the history of that church.

Dr. E. B. Brossard, president of the Washington branch, was in charge of the services. The invocation was offered by Representative Don B. Colton, a prominent Mormon churchman, and the benediction was pronounced by Frank Murdock, a member of the branch presidency. Music consisted of congregational singing, "We Thank Thee, O God, for a Prophet," "The Spirit of God" and "Praise to the Man Who Communes With Jehovah." A duet, "An Angel From on High," was sung by Jesse R. Smith and Mrs. Claire Murdock.

Special services were also conducted in the Sunday school during the morning and at a priesthood meeting Sunday evening. Representative Colton was the principal speaker at the latter session. Similar gatherings were held throughout the world, for Mormonism has spread into every civilized country.

Rudy Vallee Appears At New York Palace

Famous Band Finally Booked to Play at Theater Which Is Goal of All Vaudeville Acts and Receives Tremendous Ovation.

By RUDY VALEE.

CHAPTER XVI.

"I PLAYED THE PALACE."

Mr. Schwab is a very busy man, which accounts, I suppose, for his failure to hear us or see us. I suppose everything happens for the best, because had he liked our work and seen our possibilities, he probably could have signed us up for a relatively small salary, because although I had an idea that we were popular, I had no conception of our drawing power in a theater, which power was amply demonstrated during the weeks of vaudeville and Paramount work following our opening at the Eighty-first Street Theater.

A friend of ours named Charles Bayha, believing that we had great theatrical possibilities, took me to the owner of a theatrical publication, who in turn arranged an audition before Earl Carroll, at the Heigh-Ho Club. I was ill at the time, and could not show the band off to the best advantage.

The Keith booker came eventually to the Heigh-Ho Club for dinner with several Keith managers from the Middle West, and although he himself was impressed, it was really the enthusiasm of the other men that convinced him that we should be given a tryout for vaudeville work. The Keith publicity department began playing up our radio publicity and the stage technicians operated in every way to give us a beautiful set. It was decided that instead of opening cold at the Palace we should have our premiere at the Eighty-first Street Theater, at Eighty-first street and Broadway. This was a small neighborhood house in a very nice, respectable neighborhood, where it was felt that our popularity was well established.

Opening Makes Sensation.

One theatrical paper described our opening as "an explosion in the theatrical world," and I guess it was, because we broke all records there both for attendance and for cordiality of reception, and we were held over from the end of one week to the first of the next week, which had never been done before in the history of the house.

Theatrical critics did not know what to make of it. We appeared against a black and silver stage setting, wearing morning suits, just eight men down close to the footlights. On the opening strains of "Down the Field" the house went mad, and after our opening number, as I stepped forward to say "Heigh-Ho, Everybody," my greeting was received with deafening applause, and at the beginning of every number there was a tremendous outburst of handclapping. I was astounded by the power of radio!

Engagement Farther Uptown.

We were a little shaky for the first show, but by the second show we were in full command of ourselves, and the warmth and appreciation of the audiences did our hearts good.

The head of the Keith office sought a contract for further Keith vaudeville, but I could not say anything definite as I did not know just how long we could stand two or three shows a day with a night club every night from 7:30 until 3 a. m. However, I tentatively accepted ten weeks at a figure that then seemed tremendous but today seems very insignificant. We were promised the goal of all vaudevillians, the Palace, in our second week, so after the first half of the week at the Eighty-first Street Theater was completed, we moved to the Coliseum uptown at Washington Heights.

The audiences at the Coliseum were the most enthusiastic we have ever met and it seemed as though the house must come down under the terrific rain of applause that greeted the mention of our name and our appearance. If we ever "stopped the show" it was there. We remained there just long enough to give the manager gray hair by almost failing to appear at the time scheduled, due to our night club work. However, the Coliseum stands out in our memories as the scene of the greatest ovation we have ever received at any time or place, and I have often wished that we could have gone back there for a longer engagement.

At Last, the Palace.

Then came the Palace! We met on Sunday noon in the little, old-fashioned but clean dressing rooms of the Palace. To the layman the Palace means little or nothing, but to the dyed-in-the-wool vaudevillian it is the crowning achievement of all his vaudeville dreams, the acme, the goal, the fulfillment of all hope and the climax of his career! There are those who have toured "the sticks" in vaudeville for years before playing the Palace; and those who have died with spirits broken by their failure to appear at the Palace, and I suppose many a layman has wondered as I did just what the vaudeville actors mean by that phrase which they say with such a burst of pride, "Why, I played the Palace!"

The theater itself is just another theater; in fact, as far as modern conveniences and comfort both for audience and actor go, the Palace would not even be considered third rate, but it has become a tradition, a myth, a fad if you will, and all the theater's shortcomings are forgotten in the mad scramble to appear before its footlights. Its stage hands and doorman are the most complacent lot that we have struck anywhere. Their egotism, born of the fact that they work at the Palace, is almost laughable and yet we found them very wonderful and cooperative. I dare say the Palace stage hands get the highest tips of any stage hands in the city; they expect them and receive them.

And here we were, on a Sunday morning, rank amateurs booked to play the Palace. There was a certain air of disbelief and incredulity on the part of the doorman and stage hands. Still they knew something had happened or we never would have been there. I came down in their little old rickety elevator run by Morey, one of the oddest characters we met anywhere, and to calm our nerves I went to the boys' dressing room and asked them to listen to two verses of the melody I had in mind for the verse of "Vagabond Lover," because both verses were entirely my own work. About an hour later we found ourselves before that most blase of all audiences, the most critical to be found anywhere, the Sunday afternoon Palace audience.

How Audience Reacts.

Before they raised the prices of the Sunday matinee, the first show on Sunday found in the audience every other vaudeville actor not working, and of course the Palace acts were on their toes realizing that they had the hardest audience in the world to please. Most of the vaudevillians now come on Monday afternoon since the Sunday price is a little high for any one who can wait until Monday, when it is much cheaper.

You can not always gauge results by applause. There is a contagion in the air while you are playing that tells you whether or not you are pleasing your audiences. To me the applause is superfluous; the telepathic interchange of appreciation with which the air becomes charged is sufficient for me. I can not recollect whether or not we received big hands, but I do know that they kept us there for three weeks and would have kept us longer but that the other Keith houses were calling for us and there were only a few weeks left for us to go the rounds of the most important Keith houses in other sections of the city. Saturday night we found the coolest of all our audiences, but even their reception was gratifying.

I was told that two very famous orchestra leaders, both of whom I admired tremendously, came to see us and could not comprehend the reason for this demonstration of applause. Had they really thought about the matter they would have realized that the applause we received on the stage was not so much a commendation of our actual stage work as it was an opportunity for our radio public to tell us just how much they appreciated our radio work, and that has always been my belief; we are a radio band first, last and always.

Noted Leaders Attend.

Naturally I felt gratified and thrilled that these two men should take the trouble to come to see us, and it seemed incredible to me that they should be perturbed over our success, since they should have remembered that there is always room enough for another success and that there was no essential conflict between us.

We changed our show at the Palace almost completely, as we had plenty of numbers to present. Our audience there was composed largely of New Jersey people that our broadcast over Station WOR brought to us.

And then followed an engagement down at Fourteenth street. Here was the test. How would we fare down in that ghetto-like section? Its audiences were mainly composed of Slavic and Oriental people. They received us just as enthusiastically as did our audiences elsewhere.

Then came Flushing. While at the beautiful new Keith Theater there I discovered that Flushing was the home of my idol, Rudy Wiedoeft, and twice I made him come out on the stage while I told the audience what he had done for me and how highly I regarded him.

Then came the Bronx, and the cordiality of the Bronx was perhaps as great as that received in the Coliseum. In fact, we were wonderfully received everywhere we went.

Ready for Paramount.

The E. F. Albee Theater in Brooklyn has always been noted for cool receptions, but even here we broke all records.

Our vaudeville tour came to an end at Proctor's Eighty-sixth Street Theater. Here I had my first taste of crowds at the stage door. Every one seemed to want pictures, so I began having thousands of pictures printed to give away. I look back on these ten weeks of vaudeville as one of the happiest experiences of my life. For me it is proof of my belief that radio had built us up for appearances in vaudeville, and that an orchestra could be presented in a simple and dignified way without a great deal of moving, clowning, eccentric dancers or beautiful women to bolster it up, and yet go over. How we would have fared without our radio prelude is problematical. However, even in places where we were not radio favorites, our reception was very wonderful.

The ten weeks were enlivened by hairbreadth escapes from missing the show, and by one occasion at the Palace when two of the boys missed the show, leaving the six of us to pull the act through—we got a tremendous hand! (Imagine a six-piece orchestra at the Palace!) We improved in make-up and in stage technique and thus prepared ourselves for our appearance at the crossroads of the world—the theater that it had always been my goal to appear at once we had entered into showdom—the New York Paramount!

$1,500 Damage Done by Fire.

Fire did $1,500 damage yesterday to the storage room of the Southern Hotel Supply Co. at 628 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The blaze originated in the rear room of the first floor of the building, which is used as a storage room for smoked meats. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

FOUR ARE WOUNDED AFTER HOLDUP FAILS

Bandits Are Alleged to Have Shot Down Gang Member, Fearing Betrayal.

TWO ARE UNDER ARREST

New York, March 6 (A.P.).—A detective, a drug clerk, an alleged holdup man and a man "who knew too much" were wounded early today as the result of an unsuccessful attempt by six men armed with revolvers and sawed-off shotguns to hold up a Brooklyn drug store.

The five other holdup men escaped with the aid of an automobile after a running battle through the lower East Side, in which two carloads of policemen vainly tried to capture them.

The shooting started when Detective Paul Higgins walked into Harry Cohen's drug store and found a clerk, Israel Finkle, 30, and a patron lined up against a wall by the holdup men. In the battle which followed Higgins was shot in the leg and thigh, Finkle in the stomach, and Frank Diana, 25, a former convict alleged to have been a member of the bandit gang, was wounded in the head.

Two hours later Charles Fava, 25, a bartender, was shot with a sawed-off shotgun in a hallway in lower Manhattan. Police said that the five holdup men tried to kill him after they had vainly urged him to go into hiding. They feared, detectives said, that he would "squeal" if they got him.

Doctors said that the conditions of Diana, Finkle and Fava were critical. The detective's wound was not serious. Diana and Fava were charged with assault and robbery.

Slayer of Youth Taken to St. Paul

Admits Brutal Killing, but Gives No Reason for Act.

Dubuque, Iowa, April 6 (A.P.).—Anthony Mann, 40, Negro, confessed slayer of Earl Tague, 16-year-old St. Paul youth, was returned to St. Paul today in the custody of Minnesota officials.

Arrested last night by Dubuque officials as he hopped off a Chicago Northwestern freight train, Mann shortly after confessed the killing. He admitted that he had lured the boy to his home, beaten him about the head with a pic., stripped him and took the body to a lonely spot along a railroad track near the St. Paul airport. Mann would add nothing to his confession today. He gave no reason for killing the boy in his statement to Chief of Police John G. Giellis. Police described the slayer as being subnormal mentally.

After the killing, Mann said he boarded a freight train for Oelwein, Iowa, where he was seen yesterday afternoon. He disappeared before police could effect a capture, but was later apprehended at Dubuque, after a general warning had been broadcast to Iowa cities.

FIVE PERSONS DIE IN PLANE CRASHES

Three Are Killed as Craft in Kansas Comes Down in Tailspin.

TWO DEAD IN NEBRASKA

Hays, Kans., April 6 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed late today in an airplane crash at the airport 1 mile west of here.

The victims were Leslie Marshall, 34, of Hays, the pilot; Orville Herbert, 20, and Melvin Ridgeway, 20, both of Ellis, Kans., passengers.

The plane crashed in a tail spin from an altitude of approximately 500 feet. When the biplane struck the ground flames burst from the fuselage and the bodies were burned badly.

Airport attendants said the pilot on returning to the airport had gone into a "wingover," and the ship failed to come out of the turn.

Misjudged Speed of Ship.

They said Marshall apparently misjudged his ship's speed in the downward wind current.

The pilot had taken the two students for a flight over Hays.

The plane was owned by Harry Tirk, of Hays, an official of the Phillips Petroleum Co. Marshall, an employe of a machine shop, had done considerable flying, both as pilot for Tirk and the Hays Flying School.

The pilot is survived by his widow and six children.

Two Killed in Nebraska.

Tilden, Nebr., April 6 (A.P.).—Two young men were killed instantly and a third was critically injured near here late today when the airplane in which they were riding went into a tail spin and burst into flames as it crashed to the ground from a height of 500 feet.

The fatal descent was made in view of several thousand persons attending the dedication of a new State game reserve. All three men were residents of Plainview, Nebr.

The dead: Leon Baldwin, 24, and Leonard Alexander, 22.

Pilot Not Expected to Live.

Kenneth Kirk, 26, pilot and part owner of the plane, was so severely injured that he is not expected to live. He suffered two broken legs. Alexander and Kirk were coowners of the plane which they had been using for passenger service at Plainview.

The trio had been attending the dedication ceremony and had taken off but a few minutes before the crash.

Baldwin and Alexander were dead when members of the crowd and State officials rushed to the flaming remains of the plane. Kirk was extricated from the wreckage and taken to a local hospital.

Denver Man Succeeds In Fourth Suicide Try

Denver, April 6 (A.P.).—Joseph Primock, 57, wealthy Denver jobber, today was successful in his fourth attempt at suicide. Primock shot himself to death in a hotel room. Police who had been searching for him since late Tuesday said a quarrel with relatives apparently caused the jobber to take his life.

Police records show he made three previous attempts to end his life, once at Greeley, Colo., by means of gas; a escond time when he jumped from a bridge in Chicago, and a third time in another city.

HAWKS COMPLETES HIS GLIDER JOURNEY ACROSS CONTINENT

with him a palm tree sprout, the gift of Mayor Harry C. Clark, of San Diego, to the City of New York. Bronx Park Commissioner Thomas Dolan planted it as a memorial on the spot at the southwest corner of the parade ground where the Eaglet came to a stop. Commissioner Whalen turned over the first sod.

The glider, in tow of a plane piloted by J. D. "Duke" Jernigan, jr., came here today from Buffalo on the last leg of its trip from the West Coast. It stopped at Albany for fuel and appeared over the park at 4 p. m. with an escort of Army planes from Mitchel Field.

At an altitude of 4,500 feet Hawks cut loose the tow cable, which was reeled in by the plane, circled the park several times, coasted down to a perfect landing at 4:17 p. m.

Jernigan flew to the Newark, N. J., Airport, where a crowd of 16,000 was on hand. He said the trip from Albany had been the worst part of the entire journey. There was rain and they had to buck a 40-mile headwind which cut the aerial train's speed down to 40 miles an hour.

This necessitated elimination of their scheduled swing over New Jersey and delayed their arrival over New York City by nearly an hour.

Jernigan left the Newark field at once with a delegation of automobiles and escorted by motorcycle police rode to Van Cortlandt Park to participate in the welcoming ceremonies.

Among those who were on hand to welcome Hawks were Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous Arctic and Antarctic explorer; Lady Wilkins, John Henry Mears, former holder of the 'round-the-world speed record; R. C. Holmes, vice president of the Texas Co., which sponsored the flight, and Walter Camp, jr., and his wife, the former Ruth Elder.

The glider was dismantled and removed to a department store, where it will be placed on exhibition.

After the brief welcoming ceremonies Hawks went to the general postoffice, escorted by a convoy of motorcycle police, to dispatch the "glider mail" he brought from the coast.

Hawks' flight was made in eighteen hops, leaving San Diego early last Sunday morning. The total distance covered was 2,855 miles.

The total time of towed flight between San Diego and New York was 36 hours and 42 minutes. In addition, the glider soared for 5 hours and 58 minutes, not including today's final glide.

"Towing is all right when the air is smooth," Capt. Hawks said, "but when the air is rough it's not so good." He exhibited his badly blistered hands as proof of the difficulty in controlling the glider in bumpy weather.

Eaglet's Flight Told In Day-by-Day Account

March 30 (A.P.).—Took off from San Diego, Calif., and arrived at Tucson, Ariz., at 10:25 p. m. (E. S. T.) after stops at Yuma and Phoenix, Ariz. Stiff gale.

March 31—Sudden gust of wind broke tow-cable at start of trip for Lordsburg, N. M., en route to El Paso. Repairs delayed second take-off until April 1.

April 1—Made two days' scheduled flight, landing at Sweetwater, Tex., from Tucson—710 miles—after six hours and 35 minutes. Terrible squall over Lordsburg, N. M.

April 2—Reached Tulsa, Okla.

April 3—Landed at Parks Airport, East St. Louis, Ill., after stop at Springfield, Mo., for fuel for towing plane.

April 4—Forced down near Terre Haute, Ind., by broken tow cable. Stopped at Indianapolis and made Columbus, Ohio, at night.

April 5—Stopped over at Columbus for fuel and dinner, then proceeded to Buffalo, N. Y., for the night.

April 6—Landed in Van Cortlandt Park, New York City, at 4:17 p. m. (E. S. T.)

GIBSON OPTIMISTIC ON PARLEY, OUTLOOK IN LONDON IS GLOOY

tween navies is what produces security and consequent good will. At just what level that relationship is established is not so important, so far as security is concerned."

London, April 6 (A.P.).—In the common sense language of dollars and cents, which every American taxpayer can understand, Ambassador Hugh Gibson, of the American Naval Conference delegation, this evening broadcast from London to the United States a clear-cut analysis of the American - British - Japanese naval agreement.

This is a definite achievement of the conference, no matter what fate befalls the final efforts now being made to bring France and Italy within the scope of a naval armaments treaty.

MacDonald Is Disconsolate.

Americans who listened in to Mr. Gibson's speech did not have to understand parity, naval ratios, global tonnage, political formulas for security or any other of the hobgoblins of the disarmament negotiations to comprehend that a three-power pact in the item of battleships alone means a saving to the American, British and Japanese governments of between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000.

Mr. Gibson's outline of the conference achievements was as clear as a company's balance sheet. He boldly listed the net profits of disarmament at London, and the losses that may have to be written down he handled in most diplomatic fashion.

Meanwhile, the conference marked time. It was learned tonight that Prime Minister MacDonald was more disconsolate than ever over the prospects for a five-pdwer treaty.

At a press conference tonight, the British spokesman said that if anything that could cause optimism had happened in Paris yesterday or today the prime minister had not learned of it. Foreign Minister Briand, who is expected back in London on Tuesday to resume political negotiations with Mr. MacDonald, appears, according to Paris dispatches, to have made little progress in moving the French cabinet into action on security formulas.

Even with a formula found, hopes for a comprehensive pact do not run high, for beyond the barrier of the security problem still stands the Franco-Italian parity dispute.

Even certain parts of the proposed treaty, such as the humanizattion of submarine warfare, the technical scheme for limitation of tonnage by categories, &c., now are of doubtful value as far as all five powers are concerned, though it had been previously thought that France and Italy might be able to subscribe to them.

RASKOB VS. RASKOB.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, prefers wet Republicans to dry Democrats, and has backed his opinions by a contribution of about $65,000 to the organization that opposes the eighteenth amendment. The Democratic national committee is thus committed to the policy of placing wetness above Democracy. It has not yet been disclosed whether Mr. Raskob's money has already been used to defeat dry Democratic candidates for Congress, or whether it is being held in readiness for that purpose in the approaching campaign. That it has been or will be used to promote the wet cause, against dry Democrats, is a foregone conclusion, as Mr. Raskob is a practical business man who does not throw money away.

Mr. Raskob has been both a Republican and Democrat, and therefore he harbors no prejudices. At present he is officially a Democrat, and apparently he is convinced that the surest method of making the country wet is to prevent the dry wing of the Democratic party from controlling its policy. As national chairman he intimidated rampant Southern drys in many cases, and compelled them to support a wet candidate for President. But when these Democrats come up for reelection they are forced to advertise themselves as extra dry, in spite of the danger of incurring the opposition of Chairman Raskob. All of them are running the risk of meeting determined opposition from the wet organization that has received money from Mr. Raskob.

The Democratic national committee is not officially trying to kill off dry Democratic candidates for Congress. But the committee has a wicked partner that is undertaking the task. The situation is similar to that in Russia, where the Soviet government denies that it is spreading communism through the world, while its wicked partner, the Communist International, does the work.

Chairman Raskob may prefer to be entirely ignorant of the anti-Democratic uses to which Mr. Raskob's money is put. His right hand may not know what his left is doing; but in that case he is a poor guardian of the Democratic party. He ought to know what influences are at work to defeat Democrats for Congress, and it is his duty to combat those influences or resign as field marshal of Democracy. He says, however, that he has no intention of resigning.

Why should he resign, if the Democratic party is willing to have him remain? Why should he give way to some chairman who might be a dry, and thus handicap the organization to which he has contributed $65,000 of his personal funds?

WAR-TORN CHINA.

All hope for peaceful settlement of the feud between the northern and southern war lords of China has been abandoned and war has been virtually declared. Throughout the winter negotiations have been going on between the Nanking government and the northern forces under command of Gens. Yen-Hsi-Shan and Feng Yu-Hsiang. At various times it has been reported that Feng would leave China, but he has not done so, and the relations between the two factions have gone from bad to worse.

Chang Hsueh-Liang, dictator of Manchuria, has joined with President Chiang Kai-Shek in opposition to the northern alliance. Both sides are reported to be prepared for war, in the Chinese fashion, and actual clashes may be expected in the next few weeks. Gen. Feng is pledged to destroy the authority of President Chiang, and is launching his campaign under the pretense of ridding China of a tyrant. The government forces on the other hand, are trying to preserve the regime that has existed at Nanking for three years They consider the northern factions as rebels, fighting against unified China.

China is already exhausted by long fighting, banditry, famine and poverty, but the end of this military intrigue is by no means in sight. Those who have the best interests of China at heart are hoping for a decisive outcome of the impending war, but military maneuvers are seldom decisive in China. It appears that the stage is all set for a showdown between the rival military factions, but the kaleidoscope may change within a few weeks and bring another temporary cessation of hostilities.

Western logic would advise the Nanking government to test its strength, either to crush the northern rebels and turn the country to peaceful pursuits, or admit its failure. But the Chinese are not guided by western customs, especially in their warfare. These exhausting military campaigns may continue indefinitely. In an advanced country the people would rise in rebellion against such conditions, but the wretchedness of the Chinese forbids any effective protest. All that can be hoped for is a compromise after the military chiefs get tired of fighting.

FERRY TO EASTERN SHORE.

The proposed ferry between Chesapeake Beach and Cambridge would cut the distance between Washington and points in the southern section of the Eastern Shore by at least 24 miles. In the event the Interstate Commerce Commission grants a permit to the Chesapeake Beach Railway to establish the service, a large and attractive summer resort region will be opened up to Washingtonians. Hearings on the project will begin before the commission today.

Motor traffic to the Eastern Shore is already heavy enough to make an additional ferry service highly desirable during certain seasons. Were additional ferry facilities regularly available, it is probable that they would have all the business they could handle without cutting appreciably into the traffic of established lines. The need for more convenient access to Eastern Shore points has long been felt in Washington and the people of Cambridge, Ocean City and Salisbury are vitally interested in more ready access to the Capital. Evidencing this is the fact that the Chesapeake Beach-Cambridge ferry project was originated by Eastern Shore business men who invited the railroad to undertake its promotion.

The demand for readily available salt-water bathing facilities is increasing in Washington. The Chesapeake Beach-Cambridge ferry would open up a most picturesque salt-water country.

RAILROAD MERGER PROBLEMS.

While the House prepares to launch an investigation into railroad holding companies to establish a basis for new railway consolidation legislation, Senator Couzens, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, introduces a joint resolution that would have the effect of definitely suspending the consolidation movement pending the enactment of new legislation. The resolution recites the present status of the merger program and points out that the commission, in its recent annual report, declared that "public regulatory policies would be defeated unless means were found to control company operations whereby railroad companies now are being consolidated, in effect, without any exercise of that public control which is necessary to protect the public interest." The resolution provides that the authority of the commission to approve consolidations or unifications shall be suspended and that any consolidations or unifications made without the approval of the commission may be enjoined in any court of competent juridication pending the enactment of legislation on the following points:

1. Covering the operation of holding companies.

2. Providing for adequate protection of the public interest through additional authority conferred upon the commission.

3. Preventing widespread injury to communities through decrease and disruption of their transportation service.

4. Checking unnecessary uncompensated losses to railroad employes.

5. Insuring that consolidations authorized shall produce better or more economical transportation service and positive advantages to the public.

The Couzens resolution came as a surprise to both the commission and railway circles. It should, however, meet with the support of both. The commission is on record to the effect that existing legislation is not adequate either to compel consolidations or to enable the commission to properly safeguard the public interest. The railroads, on the other hand, have professed a desire to consolidate even though they have shown little disposition to effect actual combinations and unifications. They have, of course, been jockeying for favorable positions and they probably would welcome the interim of inactivity that would result if the Couzens resolution were approved.

Recently a sentiment against consolidation and unification has been gaining ground. Coming from widely diversified sources, the anticonsolidation sentiment is summarized in a brochure recently issued by the National City Company of New York. The bank contends that general consolidation would necessitate a sweeping readjustment of financial structures and involve difficulties with minorities. The bank says further:

> After all, the final criterion should be the maintenance of existing routes and channels of trade so as to create as little disturbance as possible in existing business conditions, in the public interest. Disruption of existing routes and channels of trade that might affect favorably business conditions in certain localities, at the expense of other localities, certainly is not in the public interest. In the slow tide of events, which in our vast scheme of industry differ in detail from time to time, it is well to pursue a policy of caution and deliberation.
> Railroad consolidation, in order to be carried out in the public interest, must be dealt with in a practical way. Dismemberment of well-articulated systems that are now functioning must not take place.

The practical difficulties that would attend a general program of consolidation should be thoroughly aired. The Couzens resolution would provide an opportunity for their consideration.

INTERURBAN SPEEDWAYS.

With the growing congestion on trunk highways interest in the Barlow plan for "superexpress" connecting links between the large population centers of the country has increased. Mr. Barlow, a Detroit engineer and inventor, submitted his scheme to President Hoover and to individual congressmen a year or so ago. It evoked general enthusiasm even among those who recognized the practical difficulties of making the project a reality. Briefly, Mr. Barlow proposed that the existing highway system should be considered as of only local importance, and that the new express roadways be constructed to pass over or under side roads for through interurban traffic. Upon these roads unlimited speed would be permitted.

It now develops that a company has been incorporated to construct a "superexpress" highway according to the Barlow principle. The company has caused a bill to be introduced in the New York Legislature that would grant the necessary authority for the undertaking. The proposed road would link New York with New Haven and, ultimately, with Boston, and similar bills will be introduced in Hartford and Boston. The plans call for an expenditure of $200,000,000 on a four-track highway having a high-speed and a low-speed lane in either direction. The bill contains a recapture clause whereby the States of New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts can supervise the expenditures for construction and purchase the motorway at a future date at a figure representing the cost of construction plus interest charges.

The Barlow plan seems to offer urgently needed relief from highway congestion, while providing a means whereby the latent speed of the modern motor vehicle can be put to use. It remains to be proved whether or not the scheme is financially practicable.

RETIREMENT LEGISLATION.

The Dale bill to liberalize the Civil Service retirement law would increase the maximum annuity to $1,200, lower the retirement age two years and permit optional retirement after 30 years' service. This bill passed the Senate twice and the House once, but was pocket-vetoed by President Coolidge. The Lehlbach bill would lower the retirement age two years and permit optional retirement after 30 years' service, but it would allow a maximum annuity of $3,000 or more based upon the individual employe's contribution to the retirement fund. The Lehlbach bill is offered as a more scientific and more equitable measure than the Dale bill, and it has been approved by the House. When the two measures were brought before Senate and House conferees this week, a deadlock resulted. The Senate conferees stood by the Dale measure; the conference broke up in confusion without even so much as setting a date for another meeting.

There appeared before the several hearings on retirement legislation a parade of former employes, all of whom were struggling to keep body and soul together on the pittance they receive as retirement pay. The committees invariably expressed the greatest sympathy with their plight, promising them liberalized retirement legislation. Both the Senate and the House, by enacting liberalizing measures evidenced their desire to correct the injustices that have been wrought under the present law. No conference dispute should be permitted to stand in the way of liberalized legislation.

THE RED JACKET CASE

From the Charlotte Observer.

The American Federation of Labor is opposing Judge John J. Parker's appointment as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States on the ground that he places property rights above human rights, and bases its charge on a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals written by him.

The decision of which labor complains is that in the Red Jacket case. An analysis of the case clearly shows that Judge Parker and the other members of the Circuit Court of Appeals, when they rendered their decision, were deciding no new points, but were following decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States previously rendered on similar points.

The controversy in the Red Jacket case, reported in 18 Fed. (2d) 839, was not between employer and employes, but between the employers and an outside labor union which was attempting to interfere with their business. The complainants in that case were operators of mines in West Virginia. They were operating on the nonunion basis and their employes had entered into contracts not to join a union while continuing in their employment. These employes were not members of the United Mine Workers of America; but that organization decided to bring them into the union. It thereupon declared a strike in the nonunion West Virginia field and sent numbers of armed men into that field to induce the nonunion workers to join the union and go on a strike. These armed men engaged in a pitched battle with State officers, and martial law was declared. The United States District Judge in southern West Virginia granted an injunction restraining the United Mine Workers and their officials from interfering with the employes of complainants, or from inducing them to violate their contracts by joining the union and going on a strike.

On appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals the injunction granted was attacked chiefly on the ground that a conspiracy to prevent the mining of coal was not a conspiracy to interfere with interstate commerce. The Supreme Court had decided the question directly to the contrary of this contention in the Second Coronado case, 268 U. S. 295, U. S. vs. Brims 272 U. S. 549, and the Stone Cutters' case, 274 U. S. 37. The injunction was criticised in that it forbade peaceful persuasion as well as forcible interference with and intimidation of employes; but the duty to enjoin such persuasion had been expressly laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of Hitchman Coal Co. vs. Mitchell, 245 U. S. 229. In other words, the court in the Red Jacket case declared no new law, but merely applied the law as it had previously been declared by the Supreme Court. The United Mine Workers petitioned the Supreme Court to review the case, but it refused to do so, which, in view of the nature of the questions involved, not only amounted to an approval of the decision, but an indication that the principles followed had been settled by prior decisions of the court.

This decision did not involve the right or wrong of contract between the employer and its employes; and did not recognize the contract in any way except that in which the Supreme Court had previously said in the Hitchman case that it must be recognized. It did not strike at the right of labor to organize, but, on the contrary, expressly upheld the right to organize and the right of the union, even in the face of the contracts referred to, to extend its membership in all lawful and proper ways. But it did hold that when the union turned aside from its normal and legitimate objects and purposes and engaged in an actual combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade, it was accountable therefor in the same manner as any other organization.

It is quite evident that the protest against Judge Parker is not well founded, and that the decision complained of supports the claim of the judge's friends that he is an able, fearless and unprejudiced judge.

"WHOOPEE."

The energetic Mr. Vizetelly, editor of Funk & Wagnalls dictionaries, has put "whoopee" into his new volume as an accredited synonym for "a gay frolic or lark," says the New York Times. An attempt is made to take the word centuries back under the guise of "whoope." To nonlexicographers that seems like straining the point, for the dramatists who used the word in 1622 had the newfound Indians on their mind and obviously meant the battle-cry. As presented in New York by Walter Winchell the extra "e" or two have been slangily added, and "making whoopee" has come to be the standard description given by light-minded persons of their efforts to be joyful.

Purists may be disturbed by the inclusion of this argot, but the editors of the Oxford Dictionary liberalized the rules of recording current speech, and Mr. Vizetelly follows that distinguished lead. It is not likely that creators of pure literature or masters of phrase will ever be obliged to employ Mr. Winchell's foster-child. But it is a fact that any author seeking to give the normal dialogue of Broadway for the past few years will have to insert the phrase. If it give such pleasure to have dictionary backing, the indorsement should not be begrudged. New slang will come along soon, and "making whoopee" will (thank heaven) rest forgotten in the lexicons.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

I shall come some day to your grave
In Arlington, and at my side, —
Shall be the boy I hope to save
From all the shams of foolish pride.

And standing there, to him I'll say:
"This great, courageous soul remained
Against the perils of the day
Gentle, and kindly and unstained.

"Power from his charm could not detract,
With sympathy his life as sweet,
He never did one scornful act
To snatch a triumph from defeat.

"Men loved him best who knew him best,
In him the poorest found a friend;
By every spiritual test
His life was noble to the end.

"Here sleeps a strong man who was kind,
A great soul who had time for mirth,
Who rose, but would not leave behind
The simple beauties of the earth."

When Words Meant Different Things to Different Men, Work on the Tower of Babel Stopped.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"FIRST," said Voltaire, "define your terms."

It is impossible for two people to discuss any moot question intelligently and profitably until they learn one another's definitions.

They may hold the same opinion and possess unusual intelligence but they will argue long and bitterly and end by calling one another half-wits if a key word used in their discussion means one thing to one of them and to the other means something quite different.

Consider, for example, the word "religion" as defined by its enemies in Russia and by its friends in America.

The Soviet government is doing its utmost to destroy religion.

To an American who regards religion as the foundation of all decency, that means an effort to destroy righteousness and truth and chastity and honor.

It means the destruction of Sunday Schools and the Christian Endeavor and similar societies.

It means abolition of the morning and evening services he has enjoyed each Sunday since childhood, and the persecution of gentle and unselfish men who preach the gospel of peace and love.

But that isn't what "religion" means to the Slav who hates it.

To him it means rogues in priest's clothing who get drunk and pollute his daughters—a cruel system that robs him of his earnings and connives with heartless rulers to keep him a beast of burden—a debased and shocking tyranny that Americans would hate even more than he hates it if they knew its nature.

Consider the word "prohibition"—a word of so many meanings that merely to utter it is to start an argument.

To one group it means an ideal state of society in which vice and crime are reduced to a minimum and all men work soberly to develop a Utopian prosperity—the gradual but ultimate and complete abolition of alcohol in a land of churches and schools and happy, healthy children.

To another it means the enormous sale of intoxicants without Government supervision—organized smuggling and outlawry, bribery and corruption, hypocrisy in high officials, intemperance, youthful debauchery and the eventual destruction of all respect for law.

Can you wonder that men disagree when their definitions are so far apart?

All decent men hate the same evils, yet the evils endure and flourish because men who might overthrow them separate into hostile camps and waste their energy to defend the definition of a word.

THE ONCE OVER

More Returns From the Literary Digest Poll.

Guncheon Cove, Mass. — While trying to make up his mind whether to vote wet or dry, Abner Flittergill was badly hurt by the explosion of a copper still, which he had neglected to watch. Doctors and nurses expressed the opinion late tonight that he would be able to take up his deliberations again in about six weeks.

Oyster River, Conn.—Eph Dill, the local civic leader, after working on his family of seven for the past two weeks, has about abandoned the idea of the straw vote getting anywhere. Eph and his three boys voted for repeal. Mrs. Dill and the three girls voted for enforcement. Mr. Dill's mother, who lives with them, ran away rather than dissolve the tie and take the consequences. She is still missing.

Duzzleport, Me.—Doc Winterbottom, the town dentist, reported today that since the Literary Digest poll began he hasn't been able to keep a copy of the magazine in his office. Patients now have to read the World's Work, January to October, 1919, and the National Geographic of May, 1921, whether they want to or not.

Whiffenpoof Falls, Ohio.—The two Breckinridge brothers, it was learned today, have torn up their ballots. They had voted for repeal or modification, but before they mailed them they rented their vacant store at Main & Pine streets to a bootlegger for a bottling plant on a six-year lease.

Osprey Creek, Iowa.—Ajax Cropsey, local business man, was locked up tonight for observation. He has been acting strangely since he discovered that he sent his Literary Digest vote to the Income Tax Department and sent his income tax return to the Literary Digest.

Oak Hill, Ga.—Feeling here over the prohibition straw vote is very intense. Abner Puddicombe, while on the way to the postoffice to cast a vote for enforcement, was waylaid and his ballot taken from him by four men believed to be straw-vote hijackers. "I don't care about losing the ballot," said Abner, "but they stole my flask, too."

Visa Heights, Pa.—Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Gwinnett are mourning the loss of 30 cents. They bought two Digests to vote in the dry poll and then sent the blanks to Collier's Weekly by mistake.

They Always Come Back for More.

"Never again!" cried Pete McDuff
As the market crashed and how!
"Cured am I of the Wall Street stuff,
I'm through with the market now!"

That was October, far away;
Now as the prices soar,
"Whaddya hear?" he asks today,
"Buy me a hundred more!"

Calvin Coolidge has abandoned that $32 a month Massasoit street flat after 25 years and purchased a $40,000 estate. That ought to go about as far toward restoring optimism in this country as anything that has happened in months.

Mr. Coolidge's new place, The Beeches, has a swimming pool, a rippling brook, rose gardens, tennis courts and everything, which just goes to show the danger of letting a man of such simple tastes visit Hollywood.

The United States Congress has in it a man who can't spell "kimono" and the country is split on the question of regarding this as a reflection on that body or not.

"Well," said the eighty-third New York policeman as he got his retirement notice from Commissioner Whalen, "three weeks ago the police were suppressing unemployment parades. Today we're marching in them."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Representative Cramton Says Maryland and Virginia Taxpayers Will Not Be Asked to Maintain Metropolitan Park.

To the Editor of The Post, Sir:—In your "Letters to the Editor" section of The Sunday Post today I note with interest the discussion of the so-called Cramton bill for acquisition of lands for park purposes in the National Capital and its environs, this discussion being by Elisha Hanson, who signs himself as attorney for the Potomac River Corporation.

I am especially interested in his statement therein, referring to "preserving the Potomac Valley for the Nation," when he says:

> As stated by Mr. Cramton himself in his appearance before the Senate committee on March 18, all that the Federal Government will do is to contribute a portion of the original cost of acquiring these lands and then forever fasten upon the taxpayers of nearby Maryland and Virginia the obligation of perpetually maintaining them for park purposes.

That statement is entirely incorrect, as to the cost of maintenance of the George Washington Memorial Parkway if and when it comes into existence as proposed in H. R. 26, introduced by me and now pending in the Senate, and which is intended to preserve the scenic beauties of the Potomac area Mr. Hanson refers to. I am sure Mr. Hanson has had no thought or purpose of misleading the readers of The Post and can only conclude he has not read H. R. 26 with care and did not honor me by paying close attention to my statement before the Senate committee. If he had done either he would know it to be the fact that H. R. 26 proposes and I have urged the perpetual maintenance of the George Washington Memorial Parkway at the sole expense of the Federal Government and nothing is to be fastened on the taxpayers of nearby Maryland and Virginia for that purpose.

The bill does provide for maintenance of the Rock Creek and Anacostia Park extensions into adjacent Maryland by adjacent Maryland taxpayers, but that does not conflict with any plans of the Potomac River Co.

I am glad to make this correction for the benefit of readers of The Post, including Mr. Hanson.

LOUIS C. CRAMTON.

Rugged Grandeur of Potomac Gorge Would Be Spoiled by Making an Artificial Lake.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is an esthetic reason why the Potomac gorge should be preserved as nature has developed it which, so far as I am aware, has not been advanced. Thus preserved, according to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission's scheme, it will be made accessible to the public as a panoramic park of rare scenic ruggedness, diversified as it is with green and rock slopes and cliffs banking turbulent cascades and verdant islets of the river. This in contrast with the more formal aspect of Potomac and Anacostia Parks.

If there were no other wide expanse of water here, the upper Potomac Park with its artificial lakes, as proposed by the hydroelectric landscape engineers, might possibly have my approval in preference to the gorge development. But why add a third to the spacious water parks which already adorn the metropolitan area?

Washington is famous as a city of trees. The charm of Potomac Park, with its Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial and Japanese cherry blossoms is celebrated everywhere, and Anacostia Park in a short time will be equally attractive. Contrasting with these is Rock Creek Park, unique and picturesque. Yet, splendid as it is, this combination will be incomplete without the Potomac gorge addition. When that is developed no city in all the world can ever rival Washington in the scenic magnificence and diversity of its system of parks.

GEORGE WILLIAMSON.

Vicious and Immoral Propaganda in Colleges Parading as "Academic Freedom."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with Secretary Wilbur's assertion before the Progressive Education Association that the standard American college is a "misfit," the movement of the American Association of University Professors for "academic freedom" in teaching is interesting. The movement is an outgrowth of the recent dismissal of University of Missouri professors for submitting a "sex questionnaire" to the student body.

If, as seems to be the case, the professors seek "academic freedom" to spread pernicious or immoral propaganda, a dangerous educational trend is thereby indicated. Parents do not send their children to school to be taught the beauties of free love and trial marriage.

Academic freedom in the broad field of politics is all right. When experiments in morals are proposed, "freedom" should be judiciously abridged.

To the enthusiastic young modernist professor who disagrees with this, I take the liberty of suggesting that his ideas, although unripe, are already rotten. If he will learn more of old wisdom he will be better qualified to teach modern knowledge.

A MOTHER.

Anything That Might Happen to Democracy Would Be an Improvement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an article in Saturday's Post, you contrast the calmness under examination of Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic party, with the perturbation of Chairman Huston during a recent similar experience.

May the contrast not be that of a man who has something to lose with one who has nothing to lose, rather than that of an innocent man with a guilty one?

In other words, anything that might happen to the Democratic party's prospects would be an improvement.

Mass Meeting To Hear Talk By Mrs. Sabin

Wet Reformer to Speak to Gathering on Dry Law Change.

By JEAN ELIOT.

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN, aptly dubbed a "Venus risen from the reform wave," who is the driving force of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, will come from New York to address the mass meeting which the Washington group is to hold Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the ballroom of the Willard. This, with meetings in many other cities, is preliminary to the national convention of the organization in Cleveland, Ohio, April 23 and 24, at which a constructive program for modification will be drawn up.

The Washington branch of this national organization, which believes that prohibition has incited crime, increased lawlessness, hypocrisy and corruption, and that modification would promote real temperance, has now been permanently organized, with Miss Bell Gurnee as chairman and Representative Mary T. Norton as vice chairman. Its other officers to date are Mrs. William B. Mason, secretary, and Mrs. John F. Dryden, treasurer. More than 1,000 members are already enrolled in the local group and the national membership of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform has passed the 60,000 mark.

Representative Norton will preside at the meeting on Wednesday and the speakers, besides Mrs. Sabin, will be Senator Millard E. Tydings, leader of the wet bloc in the Senate, and former Senator James W. Wadsworth, jr.

Women who have been actively interested in the Washington organization since its beginnings a few months ago are Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, Mrs. Victor Cushman, Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke and her daughter, Mrs. Charles Parker Stone, who has been recruiting a group from among her young friends to help with the campaign. Informal meetings have been held from time to time through the winter, but this is the first public demonstration of the local organization.

Mrs. Sabin, daughter of the late Paul Morton, has been active in politics for a long time. She was a Republican national committeewoman for New York but resigned her post as a protest against the Republican stand on prohibition, determining to do her bit to bring about modification.

Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Mooney were the guests in whose honor Dr. Everett M. Ellison entertained at dinner at the University Club yesterday.

Mrs. Ira Davenport, sister of Gen. H. G. Sharpe, is visiting at the Martinique as his guest for several days.

Mrs. F. L. Chapin To Sail for Europe.

Mrs. Frederick L. Chapin will sail Wednesday for Europe, where she will visit her son, Mr. Selden Chapin, who is Third Secretary of the Embassy in Rome. Mrs. Chapin will return to this country early in July and will pass the summer with her son-in-law and daughter, Commander and Mrs. Alan G. Kirk, at Black Point, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Heber Curtis and their son, Mr. Malcolm Curtis, who have been passing a week at the Wardman Park Hotel, left yesterday for Detroit, where their son attends school. They will go from there to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis and their son have been entertained a great deal during their stay in Washington.

Mrs. Robinson Downey entertained at luncheon in the crystal room at the Willard yesterday.

Mrs. Harry Huse entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon at the National Women's Country Club in honor of Mrs. van dem Bosch.

Further patronesses for the annual spring card party of the Entré Nous Club to be held in the Spanish garden of the Hotel Washington Wednesday include Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, Mrs. Oscar Bland, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Ben Gardner, Mrs. Paul Bestor, Mrs. Brandon Batton, Mrs. Howard Strine, Mrs. John B. Gordon, Mrs. Ella Knight, Mrs. Thomas Sterling, Mrs. John King, Mrs. James Councillor, Mrs. Sumner Curtis, Mrs. Charles Conradis, Mrs. Charles Kiefner, Mrs. Theodore Alfred, Mrs. Arthur Kreh, Mrs. T. Priest, Mrs. William Bagley, Mrs. Philip M. Ashford, Mrs. Stanley Ridings, Mrs. Robert McNeill, Mrs. Charles Hayden and Mrs. Charles Dasher.

Mr. J. Kenney Miller is in Norfolk for several weeks at the Hotel Heart o' Ghent.

Mrs. R. Hunter Dulany and Mrs. Frederick McElhone, of Upperville, Va., are spending several days at the Willard while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont Return From Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont have returned from Newport, where they went to open their summer home, Belcourt, which they will occupy for the summer from July 1.

An Easter party for the children of members of the Pi Beta Phi Fraternity in Washington is to be given tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Edward L. Bullock, jr., 3430 Porter street. It will take the place of the regular April business meeting of the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club.

Mrs. Bullock will have assisting her as hostess Mrs. Benjamin McKelway, Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., and Miss Marion Ferguson.

Miss Elizabeth Howry and Miss Mary Howry will return to their home in Georgetown today from Hot Springs, where they have been for a short stay. They passed February and March at the Plaza in New York.

Mrs. Clarence W. Grosner left yesterday to pass several days in New York.

Mask and Wig Show Occasion of Parties.

Box parties and theater parties, including in their company many distinguished Washington men and women and the entire local alumni body of the University of Pennsylvania, will characterize the single performance of the 1930 Mask and Wig show, "John Faust, Ph. B.," at the Belasco Theater Friday night of this week.

Senator Lawrence C. Phipps is among the prominent men in official life who has taken a box for the annual event, and Mr. Warren F. Martin will have a large box party of well-known Government officials and others in the social life of the Capital City. A very large proportion of the boxes for Friday night has already been taken and the demand for tickets is heavier than ever before for a Mask and Wig show in this city.

Among those who will attend the performance are Miss Laura Harlan, Admiral Hutchinson Cone, Maj. and Mrs. Charles F. Wilson, Maj. Wirt Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Faust, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell H. Smith, Mr. Cochran Fisher, Mr. James A. Stokely, Mr. John S. Bixler, Mr. W. F. Brenizer, Dr. M. W. Perry, Dr. William F. Burdick and other members of the District of Columbia Alumni Association of the University of Pennsylvania.

The performance will be preceded by countless dinner parties to be given by Washington hostesses, at which the various members of the big cast and company of 90 men will be the guests of honor.

Announcement is made by Mr. Frank Frost, president of the National Symphony Orchestra, of those who have taken boxes for the third concert of the National Symphony which will be given at Constitution Hall tomorrow afternoon at 4:45 o'clock under the management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene. Hans Kindler, celebrated concert cellist and conductor, will conduct the concert. The list of boxholders includes:

Mrs. H. H. Barton, jr., Miss Alice Clapp, Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Mrs. Raymond Lee, Mrs. Frank Frost, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, the Polish Ambassador, Mr. Tytus Filipowicz; Mrs. Adolph C. Miller, Mrs. James G. West, Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, Mr. H. Barrett Learned, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. James Wentz, Mrs. Avery Coonley, California Federation of Music Clubs, New York Federation of Music Clubs and the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs.

The patronesses of the concert are Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Raymond E. Lee, Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mrs. Frank J. Frost, Mrs. Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Calderon Carlisle, Miss Grace D. Guest, Representative Ruth Pratt, Mrs. James G. Wentz, Mrs. Richard S. Aldrich, Mrs. L. W. Douglas, Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, Mrs. Vincent Massey, Mrs. John Philip Hill, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. David S. Ingalls, Mrs. Carl A. Droop, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Overton Lea, Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Winant have come from their home in Brooklyn and have joined their children, Miss Elfreda Winant, Mr. Daniel Winant, jr., Mr. Peter Winant and Miss Cynthia Winant, at the Wardman Park Hotel, where they have been for several days.

Judge and Mrs. William F. Connally, with their sons, Mr. William F. Connally, jr., and Mr. Jack Connally, and their nephew, Mr. Walter O. Briggs, jr., are passing a short time at the Wardman Park Hotel on their way from Florida to their home in Detroit.

U. S. Feminists Keep Eyes on Hague Voting

Fight Waged for Adoption of Equal Rights Pact in World Code.

The eyes of America's feminists are turned toward The Hague, where this week the voting on the World Code will be completed in plenary session and where the Inter-American Commission of Women, under the chairmanship of Miss Doris Stevens, is fighting for the adoption of the equal rights treaty, which will eliminate sex discrimination in the basic draft of the World Code.

Final voting on the code began on Friday.

Last week, a delegation of women lawyers, headed by Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel, of New York, appealed to President Hoover to instruct the United States delegation at The Hague to demand either that the equal rights treaty be adopted or that action by the conference be postponed.

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of the National Woman's Party, made a four-minute transatlantic telephone call to Miss Stevens to ascertain the situation at The Hague. She learned that many of the foreign delegates still hold to the Old World standards concerning women. Cables yesterday to Miss Paul informed the women that this was the majority opinion of the conference that unless further pressure is brought to bear by the United States, a discriminatory clause will be written into the code.

Among the other well-known women who have joined in the campaign are: Miss Elsie Hill, of Reading, Conn.; Miss Anita Pollitzer, of Charleston, S. C.; Miss Laura Berrien, of Georgia; Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, Hazlehurst, Miss.; Miss Mary Connelly, New York; Miss Helen R. Carloss, of Mississippi; Miss Mabel Hiatt, Nebraska; Miss Mabel Owen, New York; Miss Julia Jennings, Virginia; Miss Mary Connor, Maine; Miss Clare Greacon, Michigan; Mrs. James Garfield Riley, District of Columbia; Mrs. Alma B. U. D. C. Reception To Be Held Saturday.

The annual reception of Stonewall Jackson Chapter, U. D. C., which was to have been given last month, but which was postponed on account of the death of former Chief Justice Taft, will be held Saturday evening at Confederate Memorial Hall.

The principal speakers are to be Representative John McSwain and former Gov. Robert Cooper of South Carolina. An interesting musical program is to be given by well-known artists. Mrs. Elizabeth C. Fred, president of the chapter, will be assisted in receiving by the chapter officers.

Mr. Dewitt Croissant will give a lecture on the drama and a dramatic reading of the Community Drama Guild prize play, "The White Dress," will be presented tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the studio of the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women. This play, which was written by Ruth Welty, has sixteen characters and was the first choice made by the judges after examing a number of other plays which were submitted for the contest. Members are privileged to bring guests to this dramatic evening, which has been arranged by Mrs. Edith Ogden Heidel, chairman, and Mrs. Walter E. Hilton, vice chairman, of the league's playwriters group.

ILLINOIS PREPARES TO VOTE TOMORROW

G.O.P. Cohorts Gird for Fight Between Deneen and Mrs. McCormick.

J. H. LEWIS TAKES LEAD

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Siege push scheduled for tomorrow when stilled today preparatory to the big push escheduled for tomorrow when senatorial candidates and their cohorts will attempt to marshal voters into line for the primary elections Tuesday.

Holding the center of interest in Illinois and in the Nation is the rough and tumble primary campaign being conducted by Senator Charles S. Deneen and Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, aspirants for the Republican nomination as United States senator from Illinois.

Inherited political sagacity of "Marse Hanna" is pitted in Mrs. McCormick, against the equally politics-wise Senator Deneen and his board of strategy, in a campaign in which neither side asks nor gives quarter.

All Agencies in Use.

From the Wabash north, hamlets, villages, towns and cities have heard discussed attitudes of the candidates, with particular reference to the world court and League of Nations, as the senator and his opponent utilize mail, radio, press and personal appearance to drive home their respective sides of the electorate.

Senator Deneen, wily of the ways of Illinois politics through his terms as prosecutor in Chicago, governor of Illinois and United States senator, defeated the late Senator Medill McCormick in 1924.

He now finds his right to return to the Senate contested by the widow of Senator McCormick, who is backed by a number of powerful political cliques which augment the political wisdom she gathered at the knees of her father, the late Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, who stormed up and down the land "making Presidents."

Few campaigns for Illinois' senatorial toga have been as colorful; few as bitter.

International Stand Fought.

Using the votes of Senator Deneen on international matters as her basis, Mrs. McCormick has appealed to the audiences in every Illinois county to "keep out of foreign entaglements," and Senator Deneen, in an equally enterprising schedule of addresses, has defended his votes on the world court and kindred legislation. Tariff, prohibition and local problems have been submerged and the world court and League of Nations have been brought to the fore during the talks of the two principal candidates.

In contrast with the Republican race is the Democratic contest for the senatorial nomination, which has virtually been conceded to former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis. Although four opponents have filed against him, the former senator has the united support of the State organization and thus far has not found it necessary to deliver a campaign address.

ILLINOIS SENATORIAL FIGHT SPURS QUIZ

senator from Missouri, investigated the campaign expenses of candidates in the Republican senatorial contests in Illinois and Pennsylvania. On the basis of its report, the Senate refused to seat either of the successful candidates from these States—William S. Vare, the senator-elect from Pennsylvania, and Frank Smith, the senator-elect from Illinois.

Senator Norris introduced his resolution for a Senate investigating committee of campaign expenditures a month ago, but it was laid aside by general agreement until after the tariff bill was acted upon. Now, the Nebraskan wants the Senate to take it up and there is every indication that it will be acted upon perhaps this week.

Clothing Needed For Capital's Poor

Number of Men Seeking Aid Increases, Central Mission Reports.

Men's old clothing and shoes in wearable condition are urgently needed by the Central Union Mission. John S. Bennett, superintendent, said yesterday that the number of men seeking aid has increased instead of decreasing with the passing of severe weather. Of 2,945 men furnished free beds in four months, March exceeded the average with 2,655. The 3,702 free meals given men in March were more than in any other month of the winter. On the other hand, Mr. Bennett said, the mission's employment branch could find but fifteen jobs for men in March as compared with a winter average of 45 monthly. For this unusual demand the supply of old clothing normally furnished by the public is inadequate.

Children's clothing suitable for wear in schools, for boys and girls between 5 and 12 years of age, is also needed for the Mission's Children's Emergency Home which has had its capacity of 40 children taxed this winter. Clothing for babies and for children up to kindergarten age can also be used to advantage.

Articles of clothing may be left at 613 C street northwest, or the mission will call for them on receipt of a telephone call to National 4349.

"My Buddy"

We had safely crossed the sea; left behind us Glasgow, Scotland, by way of the little third-class coaches of the Calidonian Railroad, pulled by screaming oversize tea-kettles; enjoyed an interval of peace and quiet at English rest camps; made long hikes under full pack with 5-pound hob-nails biting at our heels; rode the dizzying waves of the English Channel and spent more time at "rest-less" camps in Le Havre. Then we rode an "8-40" for two days and nights with hardly enough room to sit down on our packs, putting on the "nose-bag" wherever we encountered a promising show-line and afterward pitching our pup-tents for a few hours rest—always interrupted by hurried orders to "roll out" and fall in—until at last "my buddy" and I arrived at the final classification camp at Thase, France.

Amid torrents of rain we pitched our pup-tents and were obliged to lay our blankets on the wet ground and crawl in. The rain continued and on the second day I noticed that R—— looked rather peaked and suggested that he report at sick call. He insisted, however, that he would be all right.

On the third morning I was awakened by "first call," but dozed until the second when I arose to a sitting position and gently rapped R—— with a hob-nail shoe. I told him to "come out of it," but received no response.

As the "last call" sounded I discovered that "my buddy" had already answered.

"Compre Pas"

Private Kleibotch boasted of his fighting prowess after returning from the front, and the report of his "man-killing" abilities was finally noted by the lieutenant who decided to promote him to the rank of corporal.

Kleibotch was not keen on the idea of taking charge of a squad because of his difficulties with the English language, but the lieutenant solved that problem by composing the squad of others of Kleibotch's nationality.

The day following his promotion the third platoon was ordered to assemble while the sergeant took the squad reports * * * First squad! "All present." Second squad. "All present. Third squad—"Hull beezness," reported Corporal Kleibotch.

The sergeant gulped as though some one had hit him in the back of the neck with a ripe tomato. Then repeated in his best military manner, "Third squad report!"

Kleibotch looked carefully around at his men and again piped up, "Hull beezness."

The sergeant grew red in the face and yelled, "Damn it, third squad report!"

"Damn it," echoed Kleibotch, "Hull beezness"—and the sergeant accepted the report.

Got 'Em Anyway

If you believe all that is written about war, in "All Quiet Along the Western Front," or "In What Price Glory," the old war was not a joke; yet it handed out many a laugh, and we who were in it will have to agree "that it was the best war we were ever in."

Take, for instance, the St. Mihiel walkover. I was attached with an infantry intelligence unit that was exploring what was left of a French town for any information that might be valuable for those who desired it.

Veterans' Bonus

The Washington Post will pay $1 for each High Light of the war published; $5 for the best reminisence published during each week, and $100 will be paid the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars or Disabled Veterans Post which has the greatest number of anecdotes published during the contest, which closes April 16.

Upon entering this village we were met by a Kraut, who immediately gave us the hailing sign that he was tired with war and would relish some of Uncle Sam's home cooking. We acknowledged his kamerad and began relieving him of all of his personal belongings, as well as those he had in his possession belonging to the imperial German government. After divesting him of a Luger, a belt buckle and other articles that by right of capture went to the captor, we clipped the buttons off his trousers and marched him back to the intelligence officers for questioning. Some of the questions asked and answers given were as follows:

Where did you learn to talk English?

In the United States, where I was a barber in Brooklyn, N. Y., before the war.

Why do you think Belgium got into this war?

Because she claimed her neutrality was violated.

Why is Great Britain in the war?

She was just looking for the chance.

Why do you suppose that the United States entered the war?

Well, judging by my experience, I think she is in the war for souvenirs.

Did He Kick?

The following incident doesn't pertain so much to war stories, but it gave me quite a thrill at the time:

It was after the armistice and we were in camp doing squads right and having inspections most every day, besides doing road repair work between times.

We received an order one day to prepare for a brigade inspection and review, but we did not know who the visitors were to be.

I was the smallest man in the outfit and looked very young at the time, having enlisted as soon as eligible, also being in the Heavy Field Artillery, 155mm. made it seem more absurd.

The review was made by Gen. Pershing and staff. While passing down the line he halted in front of me and asked how old I was, how long I had been in France and how long I had been in the Army. After answering these questions the general passed on, but I got a real kick out of it, as did the others in the outfit.

Gangster Angle Claimed In Insurance Death Plot

Bentonville, Ark., April 6 (A.P.).—A St. Louis gangster angle was brought into the foreground of the William Robert Pearman murder mystery today by John R. Duty, of Rogers, Ark., chief counsel for Dr. A. J. Bass, Columbia, Mo., retired dentist, held in connection with Pearman's slaying, which authorities allege grew out of a $200,000 insurance swindle plot.

Duty said that, in his opinion, based on information now in his possession, St. Louis gangsters were the principals in both the insurance plot scheme and the murder.

KIDNAPED CHILD, 6, GUARDED ON RETURN

Michigan Girl Held for Five Days Found Safe on Street Corner.

REPRISALS ARE FEARED

Detroit, April 6 (A.P.).—Mary Subok, 6-year-old girl who was found late last night after being held by kidnapers since last Tuesday, was taken to the Detroit Juvenile Detention Home today to guard against reprisals by the kidnapers. Police said they feared the little girl might be carried off again.

Meanwhile detectives were searching for "Joe," the man who Mary said beat her while she was being held captive. They also were looking for the "big woman," to whose house Mary said she was taken.

Mary is daughter of a factory worker of Dearborn, Detroit suburb. The Subok family is not wealthy, but Mary's mother is heir to $1,700 and police advanced the theory that the kidnapers hoped to collect a ransom. No demands for money had been made on the Subok family so far as police know.

Detectives and the child's parents at about the same time last night received information from an unknown source that Mary would be found on a specified corner in the Italian section of the city. Detectives went to the corner and found the girl walking on the street with John Reno, 17. Reno said he was taking Mary to a man known to him only as "Joe." Reno is held on a fugitive warrant.

Mary said she was taken to two houses, one of which was cold. She was fed only bread and butter and given coffee to drink. She said "Joe" whipped her for complaining. Her story to police checked in nearly all details with that told by her 9-year-old brother, Joseph, who said a man in a small sedan took her away Tuesday afternoon.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

Seldom in this or any other season has a play succeeded in holding over the second week in Washington. "Journey's End," S. C. Sherriff's impression of the World War, gained from a trench near the front lines, made the grade—went into its second week at Poli's Theater last night.

* * * *

Paens of praise have been sounded for Richard Bird, as the Capt. Stanhope in "Journey's End;" for Henry Stephenson, as the schoolmaster, turned soldier; for Don Booker, as the cockney cook, dealing 'em off the arm of the boys in the dug-out, and for most all the cast playing here in one of the real plays of all time.

* * * *

W. M. Wilkinson, manager of "Journey's End," reports that the business of the past week practically broke all records—which means that Washington, when it gets the plays its likes, turn out en masse. Chances are the second week's business will be equally as good.

* * * *

Down at the National Theater tonight the populace will have a chance to see what a real repertoire company can do in the small space of time allotted to rehearsals. Mr. Walter Gilbert, leading man of the National Theater Players, will essay the role made famous by Bert Lytell in "Brothers," a play that has to do with the criminal code, filial affection, and plenty of romance. The lead role in this powerful drama is one of protean proportions, wherein Mr. Gilbert must impersonate two brothers. It requires fast changes. Mr Lytell had weeks and weeks to become acquainted with this sort of chamelion-like behavior. Mr. Gilbert has had since only last Tuesday. However, when a man knows his business a little handicap like time doesn't phase him; or shouldn't. And Mr. Gilbert, they say, knows his lines.

* * * *

Where Washington was good to Mr. Fritz Lieber and his Chicago Civic Shakespeare Society, New York turned a deaf ear to the glories of Shakespeare. After a good getaway, with "Hamlet," Mr. Lieber and his troupe soon found out that in this the jazz band era the samples of the Bard of Avon are not wanted on Broadway.

* * * *

Reminded of his success some years ago with an all-star revival of "The Rivals," George Tyler, the producer, is rigging up another cast of glorious names and sending it on the road in the Sheridan play. Mrs. Fiske will play Mrs. Malaprop, and Jimmy Powers Bob Acre, due in Washington next month.

GAYETY

Maiben, not that sturdy jockey, but cute little Mae Maiben, pride of Joe Catalano's "Get Hot," is the little personality kid that will draw them to the Gayety this week.

Mae, the cutest little soubrette to appear here in some time, with her dainty dancing, her lovable voice, and other entertaining qualities, brought down the house, but when she and her sister, Joe, put on their musical specialty, "I Look Like I Would," fans applauded as though Anna Corio, Hinda Wassau or Zona Duvall were going through their strip number. This cute little "kid" appeared to be the best of the splendid talent offered by Catalano, which also brought out a dazzling, blonde, who knew what it was all about, in the person of Alice Duvall. Montague, a clever juvenile, went through with some fancy dancing and showed a good voice. A scene in which Miss Maiben and Montague, with their pretty chorus, formed a human canoe, was well to look at. "Get Hot" has the same color as Catalano's other two productions, "Moulin Rouge" and "Flapper Follies." When Joe produces them they are produced. Al Hillier and Joe Forte were much in evidence with their humor characteristics yesterday. Some classy scenery, splendid lighting effects and some pretty chorus crowd the 32 scenes which comprise the performance of "Get Hot."

The long-awaited Ina Thomas and her "Take a Chance" company is booked for next week. The two big nights this week are in order in amateur and auction nights.

WHOZIT?

("WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He was an Englishman.
2. He was a distinguished soldier.
3. Because of his distinguished services with the British forces in Egypt and South Africa he was given a title of nobility.
4. He held high military rank during the early stages of the World War.
5. While on a military mission during the World War he was lost at sea.

Answer to Saturday: Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania.

New Treasury Issue Announced by Mellon

(Associated Press.)

The third issue of Treasury bills to finance the Government was announced yesterday by Secretary Mellon, who called for bids for $50,000,000 or thereabouts, to be opened on April 11.

The issue is to raise funds for the usual spring financing of the Treasury heretofore done through the medium of Treasury certificates. The Treasury bills were authorized by Congress last June, and are sold to the highest bidder and redeemed at par instead of being sold at par and redeemed at par plus the interest.

ARTHRITIS
Even moderate twinges in joints or muscles are warnings—signs that your tissues are carrying trouble-making poisons and noxious agents. This condition may be either the result or cause of infections and lowered vitality. Neglect may spoil your life. Mountain Valley Mineral Water, with its beneficent action on all natural channels of elimination should be one of the first things to invoke. It helps in the control of harmful agents—and in removing the waste products of cell metabolism and faulty digestion. It thus aids in relieving some of the causes of pain. DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

EVERYBODY thought the peak had been reached at Chicago last June, but with the national spring radio show at Atlantic City still more than two months away, 200 exhibitors have already reserved more space than at Chicago.

Black sheep are uncommon, but twin black sheep are considered quite a rarity. Such a combination was born on a farm near Laporte, Ind. The farmer has named them "Amos 'n' Mandy," because one was a lady sheep.

WE have just received two passes for the world's first Radio Television Theater, which will be inaugurated tonight in Jersey City by Wendell McMahill.

One wave will carry the image of the players and another their voices. The television, or image part of the broadcasting, will be over the 139-meter wave length of W2XER, of the Jenkins Television Corporation.

The event is attracting so much attention that 200 policemen are to be on duty to keep the crowds back.

Having secured a site in West Baltimore, Station WCAO is to blossom out with new equipment valued at $80,000.

Unofficial reports are that C. B. Jolliffe, new chief engineer of the Radio Commission, has been victorious in his first brush with a congressional delegation who tried to bear down on him for concessions which he did not believe were in the public interest.

"Sorry, gentlemen, but it can not be done," was Dr. Jolliffe's reported answer to the senators who attempted, with a little political salve, to fix the matter for their constituents.

A NEW local radio program takes to the air tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock over Station WMAL, the Vogue Cleaners Entertainers featuring Miss Kitty Garner and an orchestra.

The sponsors are endeavoring to make it an all-request program, and they ask that the radio audience send in the names of their favorite selections, whether they be old tunes, modern popular numbers, or show numbers. Miss Garner comes to Washington heralded by praise for her radio work in New York and other cities.

Considerable nerve was required by Zeh Bouck, wireless operator on the seaplane Pilot, in undertaing the first trip from New York to Bermuda. Mr. Bouck has been a cripple for many years and moves around with great difficulty on crutches.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will inject a little pep into the Consumers League banquet in New York at 9 o'clock tonight (WOR); a description of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus will be broadcast from the three-ring arena in Madison Square Garden at 9:30 o'clock (WMCA), and at 10 o'clock the Rochester Symphony Orchestra has a program which looks good (WJZ and net.).

"IF the large glass curtain that separates the radio performers from the visible audience in the WEAF-WJZ Studio atop the New Amsterdam roof was a salable product, such as coffee, cigarettes, ginger ale or bread," says Brother Dunlap, of the New York Times, taking a shot at the latest N. B. C. ballyhoo, "it would probably be sold before this time.

"Whenever a program is broadcast from that theatrical studio the announcer never fails to mention the big glass curtain five or six times during the hour and the fact that it weighs 6 tons."

Which is a reminder that an added feature to the festive party to be given in the above-mentioned 6-ton glass-curtained studio at 10:30 o'clock tonight (WRC) will be a Penrod sketch perhaps in honor of Booth Tarkington now in Baltimore.

The acid test of Charles G. Dawes as an ambassador will be whether he can tell "The Truth About Chicago," the topic of his broadcast from London Wednesday night, without mentioning Helen and her twin sister, Maria.

RAY and Bestos patter:

Ray—I wrote out a check for my wife for $5,000 even.

Bestos—Even what?

Ray—Even if I didn't have that much in the bank.

Dare Interprets the Mode

O-o-o-o-o! Look what pink marocain is trimming itself with these days—navy blue and white stripes! (Courtesy of Drecoll-Beer, Paris.)

Paris, April 6.

VANITY, vanity — all is vanity! And it's more so than ever this year, because seemingly in an effort to outglitter the glitter of crystal, strass and simiiline, miladi has commanded the brilliance of tiny circles and squares of mirrors to reflect the electric lights and the sparkle in her own pretty eyes.

Tiny mirrors make modernistic jewelry, extraordinary necklaces that a few seasons ago would have been permitted only on the stage, but now serenely reflect the glittering chandeliers of the casinos and Ritzes of the world.

And then there are the little mirrors that form all or part of buttons. This is a particular fancy of Worth's, although other couturiers feature the same thing.

Not bad, what?

With a little help, which you can get from our illustrated leaflet, you can make some really beautiful screens, and dress up friend house in a new spring dress! Look around and be figuring out all the places where screens large, screens small, screens practical and screens frivolous could go, while you automatically make out a stamped self-addressed envelope to send to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's fascinating leaflet telling you how to make a variety of unusual screens.

One for the nursery, one for the telephone, one with very Japanese-looking silhouette made out of tinfoil—hurry!

I love the way the couturiers give names to their creations! Sometimes the names are misleading, but quite often they are very descriptive of the garment—"Pre-Catelin," for instance, that I have sketched for you today. Can't you just see it in all of its lovely pink marocain, with that sophisticated touch of white and navy blue stripes, and withal its Drecoll-Beer air of sophisticated simplicity?

* * * *

What did I tell you? About large straw hats being so modish for dressy afternoon wear! And just to prove it, I had to sketch this one of natural color straw, with its quite ravishing large flowers of two shades of mauve, sewn on the underside of the brim, just to hide the ears, I 'spect.

And what have suede gloves gone and done but matched themselves with the deeper shade of the mauve! Nothing could be "fetching-er."

* * * *

In Russian, French, Scandinavian, Greek, Serbian, Italian and Spanish we are working out a most amusing leaflet for next week—no, not in all those languages, but with the assistance of people of all those nationalities. It's-gonna-be-good! Watch for the announcement.

Then, watch also for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Post each week.

Au Revoir!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

TRAINING THE BABY, 10TH, 11TH AND 12TH MONTHS.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Sleep—Put the baby to bed at 6:30 in the evening to sleep until morning. He should still have his regular long morning nap.

Feeding—Give up the 10 p. m. feeding time. Finish weaning in the tenth month if it is not already done.

When the baby has been weaned feed him from a cup rather than a bottle. Teach him to hold the cup and spoon.

Give the baby a drink of milk at 6 a. m. and three regular meals but no food between meals, and no sweets in any form. If he is never allowed to taste candy or ice cream he will not miss them. Do not give him tastes from the family table.

Exercise and play—Let the baby learn by himself to stand and walk; do not try to teach him this. Let him pull himself up in a play pen or in a crib with high sides. Give him simple toys, too large to go in his mouth. Let him find out for himself how to get back toys that he has dropped.

Baby's Diet.

Cow's milk—Give 1 quart of boiled milk a day in four feedings, 7 to 8 ounces at a time.

Cereal—Give 3 to 5 teaspoonfuls of well cooked cereal twice a day.

Eggs and green vegetables — Give egg daily, for breakfast or dinner. Keep on giving green vegetables.

New foods—Give dry toast, zwieback, rice or baked old potatoes, baked apple pulp, apple sauce, prune pulp, crisp bacon and milk soups. Add one at a time.

Water—Offer the baby boiled water, not sweetened, at least twice a day—oftener in summer.

Religious Drama to Be Staged.

The Young People's Society of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will present the religious drama, "The Rock," on Good Friday night and Easter Sunday night at the church. The play is in three acts and depicts incidents in the life of Simon Peter.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

IRIS FOR EVERY GARDEN.

IRIS from every clime and, I might add, iris of every hue. We have taken the iris for granted so long that some who have never heard of the Iris Society nor seen the new varieties are not especially enthusiastic over the "common garden flag."

But once they attend an annual show, or visit some botanical gardens where this iris has, as it were, "come into its own," they join the ever-increasing company of devotees of this plant of ancient lineage. For the iris, you know, has not only flaunted its colors on the historic fields of the Old World, but has graced the crests of royalty.

The iris is at its best when placed about the edges of a pool, or when it outlines a tiny stream of water leading from some springhouse where, wandering in and out among the trees, the flowers form "a long, long trail of irresistible lure." Pindar expresses this so beautifully:

Pale water, green along its marge,
Where dipping willows have dropped their image
And feathered ferns uncurl slim finger tips;
Set about by glimmering iris buds
And proudly lifted blooms
Of purple, primrose and tawniest gold.

Also, few of us can furnish our iris with so fine a natural setting. But even in a wee garden, this flower will proudly lift its blossoms with majestic dignity, against the deep green background of a few shrubs, to the gleaming blue beyond.

The German flag is the variety with which we are all familiar. Though not the most beautiful of all the iris family, it is the most reliable; in fact it is so hardy that it is almost impossible to kill.

In planting German iris, set it in a rich loam and be sure, when incorporating the manure with the soil, to place it rather deep, so that the roots can reach it after they have been growing for some time. This class of iris can be had in a wide range of color, from the pure white of White Knight to the deep blue of C. P. Connell. In April it is well to fork up the soil about the roots of your iris lightly, and give them a top dressing of well-rotted manure.

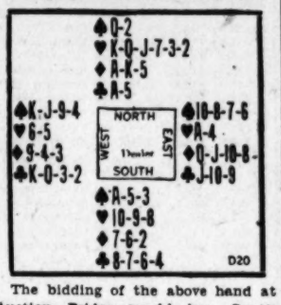
All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

WORK ON BRIDGE

Misplayed Hands I Have Met.



The bidding of the above hand at Auction Bridge would be: South pass, West pass, North one Heart which would be followed by three passes.

At Contract Bridge, after the first two players had passed, North would bid three Hearts which would be jumped by South to four.

When the hand was played, East led the Queen of Diamonds; North took the trick and started to exhaust the adverse trumps. East played his Ace of trumps and led a second Diamond. North won again, drew the remaining adverse trumps and led his third Diamond, hoping that it might force the adversaries to lead a Spade; but East won and led a Club instead. North won and returned the Club; but was forced on the third round of Clubs and then had to lead a Spade and consequently to lose one Spade trick. So the adversaries saved game by taking one trick in each suit.

The Correct Play.

After Declarer had won the first trick, he should have seen the danger of losing a trick in every suit if played in the normal way above described. He might have seen as well that there was an even chance of avoiding the loss of a trick by discarding one of North's losers on South's Spade Ace. This can be accomplished by leading a Spade from South if the King of Spades should happen to be in the West hand. To trick 2 North should have led a small trump on which East probably would have played small, allowing dummy to win; if East's Ace of trumps took the first trump trick and the Diamonds were continued, dummy would be put in on a second round of trumps. Either way, a small Spade should be led from dummy.

Played in this way, with the King of Spades held by West (as it was), it must be played on the first round; and with the Queen taking the second Spade trick, North will obtain a discard on South's Ace. If East hold the King of Spades, the game is hopeless.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

New Stage Play's Cast Completed

Rehearsals for "Adam," Work of Ludwig Lewisohn, Now Under Way.

The cast for the production of "Adam," Ludwig Lewisohn's new play, which will be produced at the Jewish Community Center April 17, has been completed, and rehearsals are being held regularly, according to Oscar B. Glick, the director.

Those included in the cast are Adrian Mayer, Helene Freidlander, Bess Litman, Elenor Felser, Miriam Rothstein, Sophie Mink, Jeannette Mannell, Morris Weingarden, David Waldinger, Philip Soldstein, Jack Kassan, Morris Arkin, Jerome Harris and Mr. Glick.

The play with which Mr. Lewisohn enters the field of dramatics is said to be very beautiful and convincing. In seven widely diversified scenes he unfolds the tragedy of a great American financial figure. Mr. Lewisohn has been acclaimed as displaying one of the wittiest and suavest pens of the age in his fiction.

HOOVER'S CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM PROGRESSING, FISHER SAYS

Building Activity Begins To Disclose Upward Trend

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., April 6.—To what extent has the public and private building program, projected last December by President Hoover's National Business Advisory Counsel, helped stabilize business?

Acceleration in the construction field was one of the two "balance wheels of stability"—the second being our foreign trade—to absorb otherwise idle labor, both in building and in production and transporting building material. The program included large expenditures for repairs, maintenance, improvements, with a temporary expansion and acceleration of public works. That would react immediately on the cement, brick, glass, steel, lumber and construction industries, and indirectly on coal and metal mining, auto truck and machine tool manufacture, equipping and furnishing public and commercial buildings, as well as private dwellings. Finally, workmen in these industries would promptly spend most of their added earnings for food, shelter and clothing, thus reviving all industries and trades.

At this time the building industry is just beginning its spring time activities. The pushng forward of public works contracts and the beginning of huge utilities building programs should bring construction to a comfortable, if not seething, activity by the middle of May.

Unemployment, of which building is just now the sensitive barometer, should be considerably eased in a month's time. According to a statement by the American Federation of Labor, unemployment in building was worse during February than in January, and had reached the danger point. During January 38 per cent of the Federation's members were out of work, and this figure rose in February to 43 per cent, or more than two out of every five members in the building trades.

Smallest Volume Since 1925.

Building construction volume in general for the last year has been a good deal smaller than for any corresponding period since 1925. Still, because of stimulated Government building there was a slight betterment during January. Building contracts of all kinds awarded during February showed a decrease of 2 per cent from that of January, but this decrease was 10 per cent less than the decrease for the same period in 1929. The first three weeks of February had very low contract records, but the closing week of the month showed a sizable increase, indicating the beginning of the spring revival.

How fast this revival will assume full-blown proportions depends upon the speed with which the public works and utilities contracts are let. The size of these programs is comforting to builders and contractors. Federal and State construction, which, according to Secretary of Commerce Lamont, is being speeded, calls for an expenditure of $7,000,000,000. Expansion of facilities of the electric light and power, manufactured and natural gas, and electric railway utilities of the country will probably exceed $1,400,000,000. The latter figure will aggregate 8 to 9 per cent higher than that for 1929.

Residential Branch Weak.

The underlying cause of the building industry's depression has been the slowing down of residential construction. This branch of the industry, which normally absorbs nearly one-half of the money spent on construction, has shown a decline of more than 31 per cent since 1928. In view of the fact that the total slump in building activities since that time has been 12.2 per cent, the importance of the residential drop is easilly apparent.

Outside of hotel construction the decline has been heavy in every branch of residential building. Construction of apartments has declined by 44 per cent since 1928, while two-family houses went off 40 per cent. This can not be considered other than a normal reaction to the heavy construction period from 1925 through 1928. It is now realized that the former housing shortage was relieved long before the building eased off. Even now apartments are still 11 per cent empty.

The great recession in residential building may quite possibly prove a blessing in disguise. Public works and utility contracts will, it is hoped, supply the industry with enough work for the spring and summer seasons. Meanwhile, the natural increase in the demand for housing will have made itself felt. It is fair to assume, then, that when the contracts for public works and utilities have been completed, the residential situation will demand immediate increase in construction.

Normal Demand Unaffected.

An excellent augury for steady progress in the building industry is found in the fact that new public works do not create an undesirable building supply. That is, they do not cut into the natural demand for housing.

Another excellent sign—and a very important one—is that the domestic credit situation continues to grow stronger. There seems to be good reason to expect still further decline in money rates for some months to come, including the central bank rates. This favorable situation, which is now visible, may be expected to work very soon in earnest as soon as the banks are free of their extra burden of collateral securities taken over from the stock market.

The rushing of governmental, State and municipal awards, and the letting of huge utility contracts, coupled with a natural revival of residential construction later in the summer, may reasonably be expected to lift the building industry from its winter slough of despond.

Flight Record Seeker Is on Way Back Home

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Albert W. Mooney, Wichita flier, whose attempt to establish a transcontinental record for light airplanes, ended in a forced landing at Fort Wayne, Ind., yesterday after a 2,000-mile flight from Los Angeles, arrived here today in the plane.

Leaving Fort Wayne this morning, he decided to stop over here until tomorrow, when he will hop off for Wichita. He said he believes his flight has set a record for light model planes. Mooney started his cross-country attempt early Friday from Los Angeles.

NEW YORK MARKET IS FORGING AHEAD

Rise in Stocks Exceeding All Expectations; Selective Character Lost.

INDUSTRIALS GAIN MOST

By J. W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service).

While many brokerage houses were urging short-swing customers to lighter speculative commitments last week, the market as a whole forged ahead. By Friday its hitherto rather spotty complexion had so cleared that the market seemed to lose much of its selective character.

Warning words were based on the expectation that the technical position of the market was weakened after a sustained rise in many leading issues, and that a period of irregularity was indicated. Many stocks popular with the "outside" element have come forward rapidly. Of the radio and amusement group, after temporary inactivity, the eight leading stocks regained their foreground position, occupied through February and early March.

The index of all common industrial equities on the "Big Board" ended the week at a high point since the crash, at 162.1, showing a 56 per cent recovery of the loss from the September high to the subsequent November low. Last week 42 per cent of the 320 stocks rose, 30 per cent fell and 28 per cent were steady in price when compared with the preceding week's close.

Radio, Theaters Foremost.

Fifteen groups participated in the rise, radio and theaters being foremost with merger rumors in the air. This group has regained 62 per cent of the loss registered last fall.

Electrical equipment shares made nearly 7 per cent gain over the week, showing a recovery of almost three-quarters of the ground forfeited between September and November last. Utilities were strong, and household products, oils and farm machinery made substantial gains. Utilities, electrical accessories, radios, oils, building supplies and farm machinery closed the week at new 1930 highs. Rails, machinery, steels, chemicals, accessories and foods likewise reached peaks during the week, but sagged off slightly at the close. All declines were small.

Stock Trading Values Rise.

Average daily values of industrial common shares traded last week rose by 4 per cent to $206,300,000. For railroads the rise was 6.7 per cent to $12,000,000, for utilities 31 per cent to $59,500,000, while preferred stocks declined slightly. Daily values of tradings for all stocks rose by 10 per cent to $282,700,000. Eleven groups declined while nine groups made substantial gains.

Stocks on the chief European exchanges rose last week in brisk response to the lowered money rates; Berlin, by 4.3 per cent to the level of February 7, to a gain of 8.3 per cent in two weeks over the low of 83.0 on March 21; Paris, by more than half the 4.1 per cent from the low of March 14; London, by 0.8 per cent, to a gain of 5.6 per cent over the recent low of 93.0 on March 7.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

All Grades of Stocks Rise.

Speculative stocks again took the lead last week in the graded groups, closing 4.8 per cent up from the preceding week's close and at the high level since the crash.

Investment stocks following the 3 per cent gain during the week of March 29 rose 1.9 per cent last week and closed high.

The semlinvestment group rose to the high of 134.8 on April 1, and after slight recession closed the week up by 1.3 per cent, almost to the April 1 figure.

What Price Earnings Ratio Is.

The price earnings ratio is the number of times the stock market price of a security is its indicated yearly earnings per share. For example, if a stock sells at 100 with indicated earnings of $8 per share, the price is then 12½ times earnings, and the price-earnings ratio is 12½ to 1; or, briefly, the ratio is said to be 12½.

BOND PRICES LOWER FROM PROFIT TAKING

Index Falls Off to 101.1 From 101.6 Registered on March 21.

MOST ARE MUNICIPALS

Readjustment due to profit-taking in the bond market has produced a downward trend that began following the peak of March 21. This persisted through April 2, the index falling from 101.6 to 101.1. Slight recovery toward last week's close registered a gain of 0.01 per cent over the preceding week's close, reducing the loss for the past two weeks to 0.4 per cent.

It is significant that more than half, or $43,885,000, the new bond issues totaling $80,705,000 last week were municipals, the rise reflecting the governmental public works program in combatting the business recession. Total bonds issued last week were nearly four times the issue of common and preferred stocks, which totaled $20,252,500.

Of the 70 bonds in the Fisher selection, 41 per cent fell, 29 per cent rose and 30 per cent showed no change at the close over closing prices for the preceding week. Trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange last week was 35 per cent below the 1930 high for the week ended March 21, while utility and United States Government groups made slight gains.

Unruly Oil Gusher Shut After 11-Day Rampage

Oklahoma City, April 6 (A.P.).—The Mary Sudik gusher was shut in at 7:15 o'clock tonight. It was the third time a crew of experts had succeeded in muzzling the gusher which for eleven days ripped and snorted in defiance to all the ordinary methods of control.

Twice before, since the well came in on March 26, control gates had been attached only to be quickly eaten away by the great pressure of oil and gas, abetted by a tremendous sand blast in the geyser's stream.

Operation Performed On William A. Brady

New York, April 6 (A.P.).—William A. Brady, veteran Broadway theatrical manager, underwent an operation for appendicitis today at a private sanitarium here. His physician reported that he was in good physical condition for the operation and would shortly leave the sanitarium.

He has been ill for the past two weeks.

COMMODITY PRICES IN UPWARD TREND

DOLLAR IS BUYING LESS

After several weeks of hopeful sign, the index of commodity prices finally turned upward last week, thus terminating worrisome decline that began on February 7. The price level rose 0.4 per cent over that of the preceding week, which had dropped 0.3 per cent from the week before.

The halting of the commodity price decline appeared to be definite, since there were 80 per cent more commodity rises than falls, as compared with the preceding week, when there were 40 per cent rises to 60 per cent falls.

The long-looked-for rise in the commodity price level found its reciprocal in the decline of the purchasing power of the dollar, the latter falling 0.5 per cent last week to a mark of 110.1. This is still more than 10 per cent higher than the 1926 level.

New Leaf Is Turned.

The agriculture division turned over a new leaf last week and brought the commodity price level out of the doldrums. This was especially true in the case of the farm products group, which made a sharp rise of 1.71 per cent over the preceding week. The index now stands at 95.0. This group until last week took the fastest fall of any commodity, from the high of September 7, at 110.3, to 93.4 for the week ending March 28. It was a 15 per cent loss.

Among heavy gainers in the farm products group were beef steers, apples, potatoes, corn, wheat, oats and cotton.

The purchasing power of farm products went up 0.65 per cent, for the first rise since February 7.

The general division of agricultural products rose 0.7 per cent, the first upward movement since February 14. Nonagricultural products have risen gradually for three weeks, showing a gain of 0.3 per cent since March 21.

Foreign Commodity Prices Rise.

Foreign commodity price levels continue to gain strength as the result of liberal credit accommodations. Rises were recorded last week of 2.3 per cent for Germany and 0.2 per cent for France.

England, which has been stubbornly weak, showed a gain last week of 0.1 per cent, the belief being that the low of 82.3 on March 21 will not again be touched.

DROUGHT CONTINUES SOUTHWEST IS HURT

Winter Wheat Crop in Area Will Be General Failure, It Is Feared.

SNOW BENEFITS OHIO

Last week's report from winter wheat areas was somewhat less favorable than in recent weeks. The trade is scanning weather reports from the Southwest closely, as drought has held on so long that unless something more than local precipitation develops within a few days, that section's crop will be in general a failure.

Add to this bullish news from the price standpoint that growth was retarded by cold weather and lack of rain in the central sections. The Ohio Valley, on the other hand, was benefited by snow, and conditions for a good yield in that section are improved, although there has been some heaving. In the Northwest, dryness was general.

Cold weather has retarded spring wheat seeding.

CRONIN LEADS NATS IN 10-TO-3 DEFEAT OF BRAVES

A. A. U. Ring Meet Opens In Boston

125 Amateurs Seek Crowns in Tourney Starting Tonight.

D. C. Boers to Face Philadelphians in Three Classes.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., April 6.—The struggle for the national heavyweight crown, the most prized title of the fistic universe among the simon-pures from the four corners of the country, promises to provide the outstanding feature of the national boxing championships—the twenty-fifth under the direction of the Boston A. A.—which opens tomorrow night at the Boston Arena.

For three nights these hopefuls of the ring, eagerly anticipating the day that they will step in to replace the present corps of gold-backed professionals, will bring all their wits and heavy punching into play in an effort to batter their way through the long list of entrants, one of the classiest ever provided for such a tournament.

Eight classes from the 112 pounders to heavyweights, will be in action and with the various associations limited this year to eight entries in an effort to reduce 24-hour sessions only the cream of the amateur crop will be seen. The 125 entrants include boxers from New England, New York, Baltimore, Buffalo, Washington, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Fort Eustis, Va.; Los Angeles and San Francisco and three boys from Honolulu, who traveled 5,400 miles to participate.

Washington Boxers In Debut.

It is Washington's first year with official representatives in the championships, and the lads who will carry the Capital's colors are Angelo Tardugno, 118-pound class; Nevin Barber, 126-pound class; Jocko Miller, 135-pound class; Eric Sonnicksen, 147-pound class, Henry Irving, 160-pound class.

The opponents drawn in the pairings by the Washington boxers are new to championship discussion and there is no information at hand on which possible predictions can be made.

Angie Tardugno, Washington Jewish Community Center bantamweight star, will meet Louis Pugiese, of Philadelphia. Nevin Barber, featherweight, of the Knights of Columbus, will fight Harry Serody, also of Philadelphia. Jocko Miller, Jewish Community Center lightweight, will engage Alex Santera, of New York City, and a third Philadelphian, Tony Maronia, will be opposed by Eric Sonnichsen, Knights of Columbus welterweight. Henry Irving, middleweight, of the City Club, will meet Anthony Balash, of Buffalo.

Generals' Frosh Win Opening Track Meet

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., April 6.—Washington and Lee University's freshman track team nosed out the S. M. A. Team, 61½ to 55½ in the season's opener. The meet was hotly contested throughout and the Little Generals' supremacy in the dashes, pole vault and high jump was the deciding factor. Edmunds, of the yearling team, was a double winner, breasting the tape in both the 100 and 220 yard sprints.

100-yard dash—Won by Edmunds (W. and L.); Allen (W. and L.); second; Perry (S. M. A.), third. Time, 0:10.4.

Mile run—Won by Darden (W. and L.); Kolb (S. M. A.), second; Henry (W. and L.), third. Time, 5.

220-yard dash—Won by Edmunds (W. and L.); Rosser (S. M. A.), second; Perry (S. M. A.), third. Time, 0:23.4.

High hurdles—Won by Kolb (S. M. A.); Edwards (W. and L.), second; Miller (S. M. A.), third. Time, 0:16.8.

440-yard run—Won by Abbott (W. and L.); Metcalf (S. M. A.), second; Vonnett (S. M. A.), third. Time, 0:54.5.

Low hurdles—Won by Edwards (W. and L.); Field (S. M. A.), second; Miller (S. M. A.), third. Time, 0:29.0.

880-yard run—Won by Leach (S. M. A.); Squires (W. and L.), second; Ovesen (S. M. A.), third. Time, 2:11.2.

High jump—Triple tie for first between Curtis (W. and L.), Kelly (S. M. A.), Cook (W. and L.). Height, 5 feet 6 inches.

Pole vault—Tie for first between Curtis (W. and L.), Richardson (W. and L.); tie for third place between Donham (W. and L.), Perry (S. M. A.). Height, 10 feet.

Broad jump—Won by Whitson (S. M. A.); Perry (S. M. A.), second; Schoeller (S. M. A.), third. Distance, 20 feet 6 inches.

Shot put—Won by Chapman (S. M. A.); Bacon (W. and L.), second; Minot (S. M. A.), third. Distance, 43 feet, 6½ inches.

Discus—Won by Bacon (W. and L.); Chapman (S. M. A.), second; Minot (S. M. A.), third. Distance, 112 feet 8 inches.

FRANCE WINS GAME.

Charlottenburg, Germany, April 6 (A.P.).—For the fourth time since 1927 France today defeated Germany in a rugby match. The score was 31 to 0. The French team, with one exception, was the same that lost to England at Twickenham.

YALE MEETS G. U. NINE TODAY

Maryland at Raleigh; Harvard and C. U. Play Thursday.

THE second active week of the season for Capital college baseball teams opens today, weather conditions permitting, when Georgetown meets Yale in the first game of a two-game series at Washington Barracks, and Maryland journeys to Raleigh, N. C., to engage North Carolina State in the opening contest of the Old Line's Tri-State League campaign.

The week's schedule is an attractive one, there being eight games listed for home fields with two of the better known teams of the East being slated to appear two times each. At least one local game will be staged every day from today to Friday, inclusive.

Yale will play Georgetown twice, today and tomorrow, both games at Washington Barracks, while Harvard will appear on Thursday against Georgetown and on Friday against Catholic University at Brookland.

In the Yale line-up at shortstop will be the most talked of football player of 1929, Albie Booth, who is said to be almost as good a baseball player as he is a gridiron performer.

Yale and Harvard. Here.

With Yale and Harvard on the scene it is expected that the attendance at Washington Barracks and Brookland Stadium will increase over the number that has visited these fields thus far. Hundreds of alumni of the New Haven and Cambridge institutions reside in Washington, and many of them usually turn out whenever the athletic representatives of their respective alma mater perform here.

To date the attendance has been gratifying to Georgetown and Catholic University. Georgetown has played to crowds of more than 1,200 on a couple of occasions, while Catholic University entertained between 500 and 600 at its opening game, and about 400 at each of its succeeding two games last week. Judging from those figures, college baseball has attracted a good deal more interest here this year than for the past two or three years.

Maryland's Tri-State League debut

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

THE poor old neglected sport of college baseball seems to have found several shots of digitalis, swallowed them in one gulp and gone on a rampage around these parts to "pull" the fans.

Teams of the Capital area as a whole are far stronger than they were last year, or, for that matter, the last three years, while the crowds of spectators are larger. Successful teams naturally draw the fans and thus far the combined attendance at games of Georgetown, Catholic U. and Maryland has nearly equaled that of the entire 1929 season.

Of course, comparatively the 1930 crowds are small alongside football crowds, but no college for many reasons even stops to hope that its baseball team ever will attract the fans as does its football team. That would be wild dreaming.

Only one defeat has been charged against a local college nine so far. Georgetown dropped its opener to Davidson by a margin of one run in a ten-inning game. The Hilltop since, however, has stepped along at a lively pace, winning its last seven games. This number is just three short of the total number of victories won by Georgetown last spring.

Catholic has already equaled its 1929 winning record by defeating its first three opponents, and Maryland and Gallaudet have triumphed in their respective debuts, each having played but one contest to date.

Bill Werber Makes Auspicious Debut.

Bill Werber, Washington boy, started tearing the seams loose in his first game of the season for the Duke University Nine last Saturday. He hit a homer, double and single in five trips to the plate, playing a conspicuous part in a 12-6 defeat of Navy at Durham, N. C. Weston Byng, another Capital lad, failed to repeat previous batting feats for Navy, going hitless in five times up. They say Werber's seat in the majors is already being dusted off. He graduates from Duke in June.

Navy's lacrosse defeat at the hands of Oxford-Cambridge last Saturday doesn't speak so well for the Tars' chances for a successful stick season. But on the other hand, perhaps the Tars kept one hand behind their backs while playing the Englishmen. We saw the latter perform, or do some exercising in company with the St. John's twelve last week at Central Stadium, and mindful of their weak showing and the Tars' usually strong teams, it is hard to conceive of Navy being beaten by them.

British Players Wore Long Shorts.

Somebody said the Britons might have been "covering up" against St. John's. They did cover their legs with modestly long "shorts" that reached to their knees.

Fred Rice, coach of the Catholic University Basket Ball Team, which lost nineteen straight games the past winter, recently was asked if he thought the team members were entitled to the university "letter." Rice, who has coached at C. U. for eighteen years, answered affirmatively with many statements, among which was: "These boys unquestionably excelled any group with which I have come in contact in point of courage and a will to fight on in the face of adversity and greater physical ability. Never once during the entire season did they quit, attempt to blame their fellow player and, because of their stout hearts, as the season wore on, they showed rapid improvement."

ACTIVE WEEK FOR SCHOOL TEAMS

Baseball and Track Booked; Six Nines to Make Debut.

SCHOLASTIC baseball for 1930 gets its big sendoff this week with nine games listed. Two high school teams will play their first games, another will play its second, while four prep nines will take the field for the first time. Only Western, which played its opener last Friday, and Business, which will not get started until April 23, will be idle.

Central and Eastern, the former making its debut, are each scheduled for two games, while Tech will play its season's inaugural on Saturday against the Catholic University Freshmen. Georgetown Prep will be the busiest among the prep school nines, also down on the books for two games during the next five days.

St. Alban's, which took a 7-to-6 thriller from Episcopal last week, will play Laurel on Tuesday, while Woodward will meet George Mason High School. Georgetown Prep and St. Alban's should stage an interesting battle on Friday when they clash, with the place at present undecided.

Central, Tech Open Track Activities.

Also included in the week's activities are two track meets. Central is preparing for its interclass meet, being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association, on Friday, while Tech will go to Alexandria for a dual meet with Episcopal High School on the same day. Great interest is being manifest in the family affair which Central will hold, with sixteen medals being at stake for the winners and second-place men in all events.

Eastern used an army of players in its debut against Episcopal High Saturday and will probably continue that policy in its games with Emerson and Georgetown Prep this week. Moreover, Thursday's game with the Georgetown Freshmen will be Central's first game, so that it is expected Coach Ty Rauber will endeavor to get a line on as many of his youngsters as possible.

Business Nine Looks Ready for Start.

Although starting only last week, Business already has a fairly good line on its recruits and is at present working with an infield which looks good. Chase, Snyder, Finley, and Jacobson are being used at different positions in the inner works, while the return of Lucas, who is ineligible, and Singman, who is rapidly recovering from a chipped bone in his foot, is eagerly awaited. When they return, Finley is expected to return to the catching post, with Chase going to first, Singman to third, Snyder to second, and either Jacobson or Lucas to short.

Louis Silverman, a right-hander, is impressing as a pitcher, while Garner and Loftus are also working on the mound. If the latter fails to last as a hurler, he will join the outfield candidates which already includes Duryee, Pretantimo, and Flynn.

Doeg Downs Van Ryn For New Orleans Title

New Orleans, April 6 (A.P.).—John H. Doeg, of Santa Monica, Calif., No. 3 national ranking tennis player, today won the singles championship over John Van Ryn, Orange, N. J., No. 5, in the invitation tournament of the New Orleans Country Club in a contest that was forced to five sets.

Ruth Injures Leg; May be Out Week

Hits Double, Single Before Wrenching Leg Muscle.

Gehrig Clouts Homer; Yanks Win, 12-7; Other Games.

DALLAS, Tex., April 6 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth wrenched a muscle in his right leg while rounding second base in the sixth inning of an exhibition game between the Yankees and Dallas Steers here today and will probably be out of action for a week. The injury was very painful. The Babe got a single and double in his two times at bat before retiring.

The Yankees broke loose in the sixth inning to score five runs and win, 12 to 7. The victory gave the Yanks a clean sweep in the two-game series here.

George Pipgrass pitched the entire game for the Yankees and was in danger only in the seventh inning, although he allowed a dozen hits. Lou Gehrig hit a home run in the second inning.

Macks Defeat Newark In Five Innings, 5 to 3.

Newark, N. J., April 6 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Newark Bears, of the International League, 5 to 3, here today in a contest that was called in the sixth inning on account of rain.

Dibrell Williams, rookie infielder from the Southern Association, clouted a home run off Al Mamaux with two men on the bags in the fourth inning to give the Athletics their winning margin.

Glenn Liebhardt, another youngster, pitched for the A's and kept nine Newark hits fairly well scattered. Andy Cohen, former Giant infielder, led the Bears at bat with a double and triple.

Virginia Nines Meet To Organize League

League baseball for amateur unlimited teams of northern Virginia will be revived tomorrow night when managers of teams will meet at 7:30 o'clock in the sports department of The Washington Post for the purpose of organizing a circuit to be supervised by the Capital City League. All unlimited teams in nearby Virginia are invited to attend this session.

Among the teams expected to be represented are the Del Ray A. C., Cherrydale Firemen, Jefferson District Firemen, Bauserman Motor Co., Anandale White Sox, Ballston, St. Mary's Celtics, Cardinal A. C. and Fairfax. Complete organizations of the league is expected to be completed tonight and all teams are requested to have one or more representatives present.

Salem's Kid Pitchers Aided Goslin to Find Batting Form

Goose, Expecting to Report, Hired Boys for Practice.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 6.—Judging from the manner in which he has clouted the ball since reporting to the Nationals last Wednesday, Outfielder Leon (Goose) Goslin is actually further ahead in his training than are many of his mates who have been drilling regularly ever since the first reporting date at the Biloxi camp. This fact has been puzzling the Washington players.

Goslin let the writer in on his secret this evening. "I knew that President Clark Griffith and I were going to come to terms some time," he said, "and so did not want to be caught napping and to be too far behind when finally I did sign up. I hired all the kid pitchers I could find at home in Salem and had them tossing them to me by the hour. I reckon I spent about $15 a day on these kids, besides the money for balls and bats that I either broke or had stolen. It was cash wel spent though, because I believe I got even more batting practice than I would if I had reported with the rest when first ordered."

Goslin, presumably, is training at his own expense as a result of his delay in coming to terms. However, as he is being used regularly, the club has to pay for his trips from city to city. At the rate he is ging, and he is fielding and throwing well, he is sure to be put back in good standing any day now. That means that he probably will have to bear his own expenses only for last Wednesday and Thursday, the first two days he was here, for the Nats have been, and will continued to be, traveling ever since.

Nats Are Anxious To Head Home.

Despite the opinion of many baseball fans that training trips are one big holiday for all concerned, with nice little jumps hither and yon to prevent any monotony, this is not the case. While the spring schedule takes the players lots of places, they do not have much time to see or do things, and there was general rejoicing here tonight as Manager Walter Johnson headed his athletes to a train bound in the general direction of home.

Four stops will be made en route to Washington, with the Boston Braves being met at Charlotte tomorrow; at Winston Salem, Tuesday; at Norfolk, Wednesday, and at Richmond Thursday. For tomorrow's fracas, Bob Burke and Myles Thomas likely will do the Nat flinging, opposing Harry Siebold and Bruce Cunningham, of the Redskins.

There have been many meetings of the Washington Club at which signals have been discussed and some few new ones have been added at each of the recent games. These have been gotten down pat by the regulars and beginning with the Tuesday game, all will be in effect, with those missing any due to get loud and public call downs.

Cold Keeps Judge Under Wraps.

Joe Judge, Nat first baseman, is finding it almost impossible to shake off the bad cold he picked up here nearly a week ago. He has been playing in recent games but declares that he has actually gotten dizzy when bending over for ground balls and that his two hits of yesterday were luck "and nothing else but," as he could hardly see the ball. He felt much better today, however.

Manager Walter Johnson, who has not seen Walter, jr., since the latter suffered two broken legs in an automobile accident, likely will leave the team at Norfolk and hustle home a day earlier, putting Capt. Judge in charge of the team at Richmond. After having had one of his injured legs rebroken three times in order to get it set properly, young Walter is now out of danger, although it is feared that his left leg, the one which has caused most of the trouble, may be slightly shorter than his right one.

Pitcher Ad Liska guarantees that he will be ready by the time the season opens. He performed well until the ninth against the Barons Saturday and then was fortunate to stumble over the line a winner. "I just wasn't quite as strong as I thought I was," he said this morning, "but I'm planning to work my head off during the next few days and I'm giving odds that I'll be ready to go the route the next time I'm called on."

There seems to have been quite a misunderstanding regarding the status of Outfielder George Loepp. The Baltimore Club insisted so strongly a day or so ago that they still held an option on Loepp's services that even Manager Walter Johnson believed it. Griffith, however, declared most emphatically tonight that the Nationals have paid in full for Loepp and that neither the Orioles nor any one else has any claims to him.

As befits the annual Grape Fruit League champions, the Boston Braves are traveling in style and carrying two umpires, Bill "Catfish" Klem, of the National League, and Tom Dunn, of the Eastern League.

Brown Goes Route After Poor Start

Shortstop Slams Out Home Run, Double and Single.

Three Double Plays Aid Nat Pitcher Against Boston.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 6.—Although the Nationals had been mowing down minor league opposition with regularity, there was some doubt in the camp here as to how they would stack up against a big league club. They removed this, for the time being, at least, by cracking out a 10-to-3 decision over the Boston Braves here this afternoon in the first of a five-game series scheduled with the Beaneaters.

At the start, things appeared rather drab from a Washington standpoint, for Lloyd Brown, who went the route, was anything but effective. He finally settled down after the third frame, however, granting but three hits over the remaining distance, and his mates rallied with their clubs to pound the combined slants of Ed Brandt and Percy Jones, two southpaws, for more than enough runs to win.

In addition to hitting, the Nats fielded brilliantly, sensational plays being contributed twice by Goslin and Loepp, while the Washington infield was almost airtight. All told, three double killings were turned in.

Cronin Batting Hero.

Joe Cronin was the Nat batting hero, cracking out a homer, double and single, with Sam Rice and Buddie Myer playing second fiddle. The former was credited with a double and single, while Myer hit for three bases once and for two sacks on another occasion. Goslin had to be satisfied with a triple which missed being a homer by a matter of inches. Rhiel and Welsh, with three safeties each, were high guns for the Braves.

Brown appeared to have just the brand of stuff which the Braves liked when he first toed the slab, and it was only due to superb fielding that he pulled out of the first three frames at the cost of one run for each one. Nuen, Dunlap and Welsh, the first three up, singled to open the game, netting one marker, and a great catch and equally brilliant peg by Goslin to nail a man at the plate pulled him out of this hole.

In the second, Rhiel led off with a single and scored on Maranville's double, the midget veteran reaching over the plate with the hit and run on. Then Smith walked and Brandt singled, filling the bases. A nice stop by Brown killed a man at the plate and the Myer to Cronin to Judge combination ended the round by turning Dunlap's roller into a double play. Welsh's single and Berger's double accounted for the alien tally in the next frame.

The Nats did not get in the ball game until the third, when, with one

Voigt, 3-Time Champion, Defends North-South Title

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6 (A.P.).—Qualifying play in the twenty-eighth annual North and South Amateur Golf Tournament will begin here tomorrow with George Voigt, of New York, defending the title he has won for three consecutive years.

More than 100 entries have been received. Outstanding challengers for Voigt's title are Eugene Homans, of Englewood, N. J., former Princeton star; C. Ross Somerville, London, Ontario, Canadian amateur champion in 1928, and William C. Fownes, jr., of Pittsburgh, former national amateur champion. Fownes was runner-up to Voigt last year in the North and South.

Tomorrow's 18-hole qualifying round will be followed by 18 holes of additional qualifying play on Tuesday. Match play will begin Wednesday, the championship match coming on Saturday.

It was not certain until tonight that John Dawson, of Chicago, medalist last year and runner-up in 1928, would enter the tournament. The amateur status of Dawson was questioned at the national amateur at Pebble Beach, Calif., last year and the Chicagoan withdrew from play.

He is employed by a sporting goods house and the question was raised as to whether selling golf merchandise constituted professionalism. Dawson decided not to seek to enter the North and South unless requested to do so by the tournament committee. On hearing of his attitude, the committee at once requested him to play and tonight announced he had entered. He is paired to start with Eddie Held, Canadian amateur champion, early tomorrow afternoon.

EAST'S RACING SEASON OFF TO SUCCESSFUL START

Salmon Tops Stables At Bowie

Man o' War Horses Show to Advantage in Stakes.

Workman Leads Jockeys With 4 Winning Mounts.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE first week of racing at Bowie, opening the Easter season for 1930, may be taken to indicate a successful racing year above the ordinary, for the attendance has smashed records at the southern Maryland track, even if the betting has fallen off. Walter J. Salmon quickly took the lead, and the quality of the Man o' War offspring has asserted itself again.

Battleship won the James Rowe Memorial Handicap in an effort that took courage, and Annapolis, his other Man o' War colt running at Bowie, won two races over stiff opposition. Mrs. W. J. Potter's Bocaratone won the other stake, the Inaugural Handicap.

There was a good deal of sentiment about the first running of the James Rowe Memorial. The son of the famous H. P. Whitney trainer came to see the race, in honor of the veteran and picturesque horseman who made three fortunes for prominent owners, and died a rich man, though starting as a jockey and having his cycle of hard knocks and vicissitudes. Jimmie, jr., did a graceful act in contributing a beautiful silver memorial cup to Trainer Pryce for the victory of Battleship, and this cup is to become a trophy of the memorial race at its subsequent renewals. Annapolis has shown improvment and reformed of his bad actions.

Bocaratone Surprise Winner.

Bocaratone, the other stake winner, came from New Orleans, where he was no particular sensation. His winning was a surprise, he having been almost entirely overlooked by the crowd which followed Rapid Transit and Pennant Lass. He paid 33 to 1. Vimont was the long shot of the first week, paying better than 30 to 1.

The sensation among the 2-year-olds down this way is Mrs. Morton L. Allen's Campfire colt, Vander Pool, unbeaten in four starts, three of which were at Miami, and his fourth at Bowie in an allowance race Friday, in which, after slipping back at the start and suffering by a weak ride, he won easily over a good field. The colt showed class, gameness and speed and may go on to stake successes.

Cog-Air kept up his reputation for winning twice at the meeting, but George W. Loft lost him to Ray Pollard by the claiming route for $6,000. Pollard got a bargain. Searington, also among the eight horses claimed at the meeting, joined the double-winner class.

Of the 35 races run at Bowie, eleven favorites won. Some of the other winners were well backed second choices. There have been few upsets or form reversals, that of Dinah Did Upset and Mockery being the most noticeable.

Workman Tops Jockeys.

Workman jumped into the lead among the jockeys, but closely followed by Robertson and Barnes, with three wins each to their credit. Workman rode four winners in the five days. Schaefer won two, Ponos two and Red Harvey two. The riding of the apprentice, Cimerak, New Orleans sensation, has attracted attention. He rode Bocaratone in the Inaugural Handicap. The smallest jockey at Bowie is J. Passer. He rides well and weighs 90 pounds. He had his photo taken with A. J. (Cy) Cummings, president of the Laurel track—and it looked like a mouse standing by a lion. Cummings is the largest man seen around the Maryland tracks.

Days of Washington, Jackson and Jefferson are recalled by the interest taken in racing by Vice President Curtis, who in his boyhood was catch-as-catch-can jockey. Mr. Curtis has been a frequent visitor to the Bowie track, and when he gets around good horses he is absorbed in them. A fine horse seems to fascinate him. He cares nothing about the betting end of the racing game, but when he saw the fleet 2-year-old Vanderpool the other day, all his Indian blood was aroused.

Interested in Battleship.

Saturday he was deeply interested in Battleship, the Man o' War colt, and he has on previous occasions admired the offspring of the superhorse. Mr. Curtis makes no show of his love of good horses, neither does he attempt to conceal it. He is just one of the throng, greeting his acquaintances in the clubhouse or on the lawn, program in hand, and a slap on the back for his intimates when the horse he has marked comes down in front. He prides his prowess at picking the winners.

The next stake to be run at Bowie is the Kindergarten for 2-year-olds on Wednesday. It looks like Vanderpool's stake, as Siskin, the fleet son of Epinard, will not start until the Havre de Grace Aberdeen Stakes on April 23, and Prince D'Amour, the other star juvenile, is reported slightly lame after a recent workout at Bowie.

The Glen Riddle Stable, now at Havre de Grace, has made numerous entries for the Pimlico stakes. He has not raced there since Crusader, which horse he believed to be overweighted in the Gold Cup, was beaten.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Bowie card today is featured by the Old Maryland Spring Purse, 7 furlongs, and the Parkway Purse, a mile and a sixteenth. This is the sixth day of the highly successful Bowie meeting, which comes to a close next Saturday, when the horses move on to Havre de Grace, where racing will step up a notch in importance, by reason of larger stakes, and the tests more marked by candidates for the Preakness and Derby.

Havre de Grace brings out a better class of 2-year-olds naturally, as it comes later in the season, trainers naturally being averse to showing their best juveniles as early as the Bowie season would demand.

The field in the Old Maryland today is just a little disappointing, as only six horses have been entered, and five stables represented. The Parkway has only six horses entered also, but the class is better and brings to the post Walter J. Salmon's Annapolis, a double winner at this track. The track is heavy after an all-day rain yesterday.

FIRST RACE—This is for 3-year-old maiden fillies. There seems to be little difference in what appears to be three or four of the best ones. PRINCESS HENRY is selected on her workouts. She has not been under colors since last fall at Bowie, when she was third to Yeggman, beaten a half-length. MOMBASA is regarded the contender. She started in the race won bw Dinah Did Upset at this meeting. She was surely outclassed, and her race can be regarded only as a conditioner. AZIZ, far down on the eligible list, is really as good as either of these, but a doubtful starter.

SECOND RACE—It looks like HOGAN'S ALLEY.. He made a poor showing in his start last week. But a horse is entitled to consideration on his best form, and when he beat Nicholson at Miami he earned the right to be well liked in this race. The Kilrane Stable's filly, VALLEY, has been burning the Bowie track in trials, and should be the contender. ONE CENT was fourth the other day to Burlap, and is approaching top form. There are a number of probabilities in the race. It will surfice to mention FAIR BOB, FIRE BELL, REA and PROPUS.

THIRD RACE—The Expectation is a half mile. The TRAVERS ENTRY of KENSINGTON and LITTLE AMERICA is selected to win. The first named beat Squall at Miami, has worked impressively at Bowie. LITTLE AMERICA was third in her only start at Miami. H. P. Whitney's pennant-swinging colt, EQUIPOISE, making his first start, may be a good one, and is rated second, to be on the safe side. GLIDELIA, a New Orleans winner, is dangerous. She hails from the Rancocas band, and might prove another Zublena surprise. WESTERNER was a flop in his first start, but well liked by the Dorwood people; BRANDON SAINT ran well in the South; TRAITOR was a Miami winner, and JUSTICIARY beat some good ones on the coast, so it looks like one guess is about as good as another.

FOURTH RACE—The BEDWELL ENTRY of RED BRIAR and FAIR ANITA looks good in the Old Maryland. The first named ran well as a 2-year-old and won one race. FAIR ANITA is a 5-year-old mare which takes care of herself among this clas of horses. KEYDET, a Maryland horse, was a double winner at New Orleans. Started once here, and was sixth to Villager. It may have been a tryout. WATER LAD has something coming to him. This may be his day.

FIFTH RACE—ANNAPOLIS stands out in the Parkway, and the Man o' War colt should make it three in a row at Bowie, for there is nothing better in this field than he has beaten at this track. He beat Strongheart in one race and Fairy Maiden and Ormonbird in the other. ORMONBIRD starts again and should be the contender. KADIKA has worked well, ran well in winter, and may be close today.

SIXTH RACE—OLD TIMES is picked to repeat. He beat Maxiva last week, leading all the way. SEARINGTON has won two Bowie races, and there is a possibility that he might make it three. GADALONG has been a disappointment, having been beaten by the long shot, Vimont, but he should get in the money again. He may be the favorite. He is a slow beginner.

SEVENTH RACE—HEDGEFENCE, a very good three-legged horse, is picked to win. His last start was at Bowie last November, when he won, and the old Whisk Broom II gelding has worked well for this race. THYMON and JACK HAWKSLEY look like the contenders.

TAKE ALLEY PRIZES.

Harry Wolfe and Snowden ran one-two in the class A duckpin sweepstakes at the Hyattsville Arcade Saturday night. Taylor, Tucker and Eaton finished in that order in the class B event. These stakes are held every Saturday night.

Many Entries Expected For A.A.U. Swimming

District A. A. U. officials are anticipating many entries for the 210-yard medley and fancy diving events of the championship swimming meet to be held on April 28 and 29, at the Ambassador Hotel pool. These events are among the most interesting in the water sports.

Entries are being received by D. Melville Carr, chairman of the swimming committee, District Association, A. A. U., whose address is First Aid and Life Saving, American National Red Cross, Seventeenth and D streets northwest. Mr. Carr also is supplying prospective entrants with entry blanks.

Tickets for the meet are now on sale at the Ambassador Hotel Health Club and leading sports stores, in addition to member clubs of the District association.

INDIAN HEAD READY.

The Indian Head Cardinal unlimited and junior nines are seeking games with Washington teams. Len Groves, at Indian Head 101-K-3 is scheduling games.

TECH AWAITS FIRST MEET FRIDAY

Track Interest High At All Schools, Kelley Finds.

By MIKE KELLEY
(Eastern High School Coach).

TECH HIGH SCHOOL pries the lid off the local public high school track season next Friday in a dual meet with Episcopal at Alexandria and a week later, on Friday, April 18, Eastern's squad goes into action with the same opponent.

Central is down for an interclass meet also on next Friday, with the competition limited to nonlettermen, and this affair, sponsored by the Central Parent-Teacher Association, is expected to provide the means of stimulating interest in the track activities of that school this year.

Western's squad will probably await the Maryland interscholastics on May 3 for its first serious competition of the season.

Central, Tech and Eastern will be represented in the Penn Relays on April 26. Central entry no doubt will be in the sprint relay, while Tech and Eastern hope to compete in the one-mile relay.

A glance at the winners of the one-mile relay for high schools in the championship class at Penn shows that "Bill" Foley's fours have twice showed their heels to all opposition First in 1901 and again in 1916. Central won the one-mile relay championship of America and the banners emblatic of these championships adorn the walls of the Mount Pleasant school along with countless other track trophies gained in the 30 or more years that "Bill" has been at the helm in track.

Maryland Meet Popular.

Maryland's big schoolboy meet on May 3, with athletes from all the leading prep and high schools in the South Atlantic section competing, should prove a banner attraction to track followers locally. Though called upon to face stern opposition from the prep school athletes, inasmuch as the meet is open to both high and prep schools, Washington high schools should be well up with the leaders.

Following this meet will be the annual "C" Club games on May 17, in the Central Stadium. This meet was first held in 1919 and has since been a yearly feature of the outdoor track season. For a long while it provided the local track boys their only opportunity for good competition locally, aside from the annual interhigh meet. Records set up at this meet are as convincing as those of any other similar affair in the country.

Interhigh Meet On May 23.

The interhigh championships are scheduled for Friday, May 23, in the Central Stadium.

Tech and Eastern have other engagements in dual and triangular competition. Tech, along with Maryland Freshmen, meets the Plebes at Annapolis on Saturday, May 10, while Easern and the Old Line Cubs have a dual meet scheduled for April 25. Central expects to send a few men to the Princeton interscholastics on May 10.

Summed up, the coming season promises the finest competition ever offered local track athletes and plenty of it. Each year of late, this splendid interhigh sport is obtaining more encouragement and is attracting many youths in our schools—youths who can't help but be benefited by participation, even though they may never win a race.

COLLEGE NINES FACE ATTRACTIVE WEEK

today at Raleigh will be followed by games with North Carolina University at Chapel Hill; Duke, at Durham, and Virginia, at Charlottesville. Duke is not a member of the league although a member of the Southern Conference. The Old Line squad will return home for a battle with North Carolina University at College Park on Friday.

Those making the Dixie invasion, accompanied by Coach Burton Shipley, are Radice, Berger, Chalmers and Gaylor, infielders; Sterling, infielder or outfielder; Higgins, catcher or outfielder; Capt. Hetzel, Tansill and Cronin, outfielders; Rosen, catcher, and Batson, Phipps, Hauver and Milburn, pitchers.

Gallaudet, which pounded out a 24-to-2 win over Maryland Normal Saturday, is scheduled for a single game, Coach Krug's nine meeting the Tank School Team from Fort Meade at Kendall Green on Wednesday. This will be the home opener for Gallaudet.

DULL PERIOD IN FISTIC CIRCLES

Fields, Carnera Bouts High Spots of Card for Week.

NEW YORK, April 6 (A.P.).—Rather slim pickings are in store for the fight fans of the United States this week with a nontitle bout for Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles, holder of the world's welterweight championship, and another appearance of the huge Primo Carnera as the high lights of the program.

Fields tackles Tommy Freeman, Erie, Pa., slugger, in a twelve-round bout at Cleveland Tuesday night. His title will not be at stake. Carnera, at Los Angeles, the same evening takes on Neil Clisby, Riverside, Calif., Negro, who weighs a mere 200 pounds. Clisby's record is just about as impressive as those of Carnera's previous opponents on his barnstorming tour. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

Other bouts on the national program are of no particular importance New York fans must confine their attention to the smaller arenas while the circus occupies Madison Square Garden. A three-day program of the national amateur championships supplants professional boxing in Boston.

Insect and Peewee Nines In League Meeting Tonight

Capital City Circuit Faces Period of Organization.

INITIAL steps toward the organization of the various classes of the Capital City Baseball League will be taken tonight when managers of insect and peewee teams will meet at the District Building in the Municipal Playground Department. Managers of all teams in these classes have been invited to attend.

Organization of the insect division will be started promptly at 8 o'clock. Representatives of the various teams have been requested to come early as the peewee section, which probably will be revived after several years' abandonment, will be organized immediately after the insect session. The formation of the peewee circuit depends upon the amount of interest shown at tonight's meeting.

Many applications for franchises have been received from insect teams and early prospects point to a season that would rival that of last year when ten teams staged a merry race with three finishing the season tied for the championship. In a play-off series, the Eastern All-Stars eliminated the Sam West and Georgetown nines.

Champions Are Now Midget Contenders.

The Eastern All-Stars have moved into midget ranks this season and will not defend their insect title. The Sam Wests have also moved upward a notch but Georgetown will be represented in this class again. The Lionel and Corinthian teams, which figured prominently last year, will be in the race again. The Burroughs A. C. and the Wonder Boys are slated for berths. The Medicos, composed largely of former Tris Speaker players, plan to compete, and Charley Smith has been collecting a young team to play under Auth colors. Brown's Corner, Cronin, St. Joseph's, Langdon, Columbias and other teams are expected to be represented.

The Lionel, Corinthian and Muddy Ruel teams are chief candidates for peewee berths. The Texacos, Comets, Aces, Montrose, Emerson, Georgetown and others are expected to apply for franchises.

The sessions tonight are the first of many scheduled this week. Tomorrow night, teams interested in forming the Virginia unlimited series will meet at 7:30 o'clock in the sports department of The Washington Post. Junior teams will meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the District Building. Washington unlimited teams will gather Friday night at 8 o'clock in the District Building, and the same night a meeting representative of all Montgomery County unlimited nines will be held in the sports department of The Post at 8 o'clock. Rules will be drafted and other business transacted at this latter session.

All teams interested in joining any of these divisions are invited to attend the meetings, at which all regulations and requirements will be explained.

Rockville A. A. Nine To Boost Merchants

When the Rockville A. A. Nine trots onto the field in its new uniforms, every prominent merchant in Rockville will have an individual "signboard" before the public.

In order to equip the team, the club officials succeeded in selling a uniform to each merchant and the name of each purchaser will be flashed across the back of the player wearing the uniform.

It is a unique way of securing uniforms for an amateur team and is likely to prove popular among sandlotters in this section.

MIDATLANTIC PROS MEET TONIGHT

Golf Competition May Be Cancelled Due to Wet Links.

THE Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association will hold its annual meeting tonight at the Indian Spring Club, at which time officers will be elected and a schedule drafted for the 1930 season. Competition scheduled this afernoon among the members over the Indian Spring course may have to be canceled due to the heavy rainfall.

Warner Mather, of Rogers Ford, Baltimore, is virtually assured of the presidency for the coming year. As first vice president at present, Mather is the logical hoice for the position.

Tonight's meeting will serve as a general get-together for the professionals of clubs in the Middle Atlantic section, many of whom having been scattered throughout the South during the off-season. Few changes have been made in professional ranks this year.

It is probable that an extensive schedule similar to that followed last year will be outlined tonight. Varied events were staged last year twice monthly, alternating between Baltimore and local courses.

Meet With Maryland Canceled by Catholic U.

Inability to muster a full team without use of freshmen has forced Catholic University to cancel a varsity track meet scheduled with Maryland University for next Wednesday, Coach Dorsey Griffith, of Catholic, announced last night.

Only seven members of the Catholic U. Track Squad, who are in condition to compete at this time, are in the sophomore, junior or senior classes, said Coach Griffith, and this number is entirely inadequate for competition in a regulation meet. The squad lost eleven men through graduation, illness and ineligibility. Under a Southern Conference rule Maryland can not compete in varsity sports against teams using freshmen.

Catholic will, however, go through with the other meets on its schedule, using freshmen, who are not barred by the other schools. Wake Forest (N. C.) College will send its track team to Brookland Stadium next Saturday to help the Cardinal cinder path team open its campaign.

CRONIN LEADS NATS IN ROUT OF BRAVES

dead, Myer tripled to deep left. He remained at third watching Judge die on a pop fly, but counted on Bluege's single to center. Cronin then picked out one to his liking and propelled it over the right field wall. This was a prodigious clout, especially for a right-handed hitter, as the fence is 20 feet high and 328 feet from the plate.

Cronin's blow knotted the count and the Nats went ahead in the next frame. With two gone, Rice doubled and Goslin scored him with a triple. This was a harder drive than Cronin's homer, the ball hitting on top of the fence near the scoreboard in center and bounding back on the field. Following a walk to Myer, Judge scored the Goose with a single off Brandt's glove.

There was no more scoring until the Nats' sixth, when Jones relieved Brandt on the hill. Five runs were made, doubling the Washington score. The contributing hits were singles by Loepp and Powell, doubles by Myer and Cronin, stolen bases by Goslin and Cronin, an error by Rhiel, a wild pitch and a passed ball which let Cronin score as Ruel walked.

Jones settled down after this round and, with Brown having found his bearings after the third session, there were no real threats over the balance of the route.

Officers Are Elected By Eastern Star Loop

Mabel Jenkins was reelected president of the Eastern Star Duckpin League at a meeting at Lucky Strike last night. Gladys Mills was elected vice president and Maude Youmans secretary-treasurer. Prizes were awarded and plans made for a dance at the Meridian Mansions on April 26, at which time trophies won in the recent tournament will be presented.

COLUMBIANS TO PLAY.

The Columbian Insects will meet the St. John's Prep Nine tomorrow on West Ellipse Diamond at 3:30 o'clock. Manager Harvey is booking games for the Columbians at North 9800.

HITTING THE TRAIL WITH THE MAJORS

of which Woody English, the only able-bodied regular Cub infielder, accounted for two. English also contributed a triple and a single. Other home runs were fashioned by Cuyler, who also got three singles; Tolson, Carlson and Hack Wilson. Carlson pitched four innings without being scored upon, and was succeeded by Guy Bush, who was bumped for seven hits and all the Hollywood runs. The Cubs left immediately after the contest for Kansas City, the first stop of the homeward journey.

Bean Defeats Former Indian Mates.

New Orleans, April 6 (A.P.).—The New Orleans Pelicans took advantage of weakness displayed by the Cleveland Indians, of the American League, in the eighth inning of their game here this afternoon, and defeated the major league team, 8 to 7.

Belve Bean, Pelicans hurler, plainly puzzled the Indians and except for an inning of bad errors, New Orleans completely outclassed the Indians. Bean had been farmed out to New Orleans by Cleveland only a couple of days ago. He held his former team mates t seven hits in seven innings.

Lopez, Gilbert Top Robin Hitters.

Macon, Ga., April 6 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins didn't play any baseball today but they kept a few pencils busy and got some encouraging results. They figured out the batting averages for the spring training games and found only Glenn Wright below the .300 mark among the regulars and from this they drew the conclusion that they will show the National League something about slugging.

Wally Gilbert, who has hit safely in the last eleven games, was shown to be the most consistent performer with a mark of .426, but Al Lopez, young Spanish catcher from Tampa went him one better with a .444 average.

Hilltop Boxers Guests Of Honor at Banquet

A banquet in honor of the 1929-1930 boxing team of Georgetown University will be held tonight at the Occidental Hotel, starting at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. Robert Moran and Dr. John Lyons, both of whom gave their services as examining physicians for college and amateur boxers here during the past winter season, are the sponsors.

Members of the team expected to attend are Capt. Charles Fish, Joe Davis, Gerard McAllister, Mike Tardugno, Ted Schwartz, Joe Madden, Henry Murphy, Jack Tierney, Leroy Bordeau and Don Donaldson. Coach Jim McNamara and Manager John Geary also have been invited.

Hornsby's Sore Heel To Be Examined Today

Chicago, April 6 (A.P.).—Rogers Hornsby, chief of the Chicago Cubs' band of cripples, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning for an examination of his ailing right heel.

The Rajah left Los Angeles Friday night on rather short notice, but not without taking time to say that nothing like a sore heel could keep him out of the National League champions' line-up for even a part of the season.

Program Planned At Logan Statue

Joint Ceremony Will Mark Change of Name of Iowa Circle.

The National Society of Society Dames of the Loyal Legion, the Illinois Society, and the Iowa Circle Citizens Association will hold a joint ceremony at 3:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon at the foot of Gen. Logan's statue when the name of Iowa Circle is changed to Logan Circle.

Representative William P. Holaday, of Illinois, will make the principal address, while the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, will pronounce the invocation. A band will provide music, and a member of the Illinois Society will sing.

As the concluding event of the program, members of the society will place wreaths on the statue. Other patriotic organizations have been invited to be present.

Crash Started in London.

Prof. Irving Fisher, in his book, "The Stock Market Crash—and After," says the late unpleasantness began, not in New York, but in London, that the crash was heavier in London than in New York, and that it wrought havoc in Paris and Berlin as well as on the American exchanges.

How to Keep Well

SCURVY STILL BOBS UP.

SCURVY has been killed off several times. Nevertheless, it continues to bob up. When the juice of limes and lemons came into general use we thought, "That ends scurvy." Few people know that about the only truly compulsory regulation of the eating in the history of society were the orders which compelled the use of fruit juices to prevent scurvy. Under the influence, direct or indirect, of that compulsion or prohibition, whatever you choose to call it, old-fashioned scurvy just about disappeared from the more enlightened parts of the world. But some scurvy was left to develop here and there. Then came Hess' valuable little book on scurvy. Again we said, "That makes a day. Tomorrow we will forget scurvy and take up the work of another day."

Then came Hojer, Hanke, Howe and Eddy telling us that, while there was no longer any of the old kind of scurvy, decaying teeth, bad gums and pyorrhea were really manifestations of scurvy. Whereupon, for the old-time research workers in scurvy, it was "back to the mines."

If all these disorders are the effects of mild, masked scurvy, diets must be recast. If twice as much fruit juice is required to prevent these tooth manifestations of scurvy as is needed to prevent the joint symptoms and other classical symptoms of the disorder, we must write new specifications for our menus.

It has been proved that eating of oranges and lemons will prevent scurvy. If twice the usually required dose is necessary to prevent decay of teeth and to prevent and cure pyorrhea and bleeding gums, a pretty severe demand will be written down against the supply of oranges and lemons. While but few people have suspicions of scurvy, decay of teeth and pyorrhea between them, are nearly universal. We must find some other foods to help out.

Dr. W. H. Eddy has been at work on a part of that problem. He finds bananas and string beans to be highly effective. That helps considerably. The experiment station record reports that Dr. Tso, a Chinaman, finds cabbage puree, turnip juice, and cabbage soup valuable. The vegetables he used were of the Chinese variety, and the methods of cooking may not be the same as ours.

It is known that cooking affects the vitamins which prevent scurvy to an exceptional degree. Cooking with soda rapidly and effectively destroys this vitamin. Prolonged cooking is very harmful to it. Cabbage cooked a few minutes contains the principle which protects against scurvy. Cabbage cooked but a few minutes retains much of it. Raw Cabbage is still richer in it. Tomato juice is a valuable source of supply. The juice of canned tomatoes is rich in it.

Lime juice should be restudied, making use of these newer methods.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

A period of headstrong and rather misdirected activity is predicted for this date. Beware of accidents and guard your health! Sportsmen and sports will be favorably affected by the influences.

The child born on this April 7th will have an observing nature, but will be rather too critical for its own peace of mind and happiness. It will not be attracted by the lighter side of life and will be interested in philosophy and metaphysics.

Nature was unkind to you when she gave you an ultra retiring personality, which overshadows and conceals so many of your stronger traits. Few defects hinder one more than that of shyness. It is foolish for you to feel any personal deficiency, for you were born with none. You can talk to your friends, but not to strangers, and you hold back from meeting new people. People are not criticizing you as often as you think they are. Your approach to others determines their approach to you.

Your remedy is to feel and to be superior. You lack both the nerve or temperament for bluffing, so you must be most accurate in your knowledge, clear in your thoughts, and firm in your convictions. You can then look any one in the eye and hold your own. You must not only have a greater belief in self, but in others—people are generally kind and considerate.

Your conscience is a hard task master for you, and you are very remorseful over your petty sins and omissions. On the whole, you lead an unselfish life, but you are holding back too much to realize in full all the pleasures and blessings which were put here for you to enjoy.

Successful people born April 7:
Francis C. Lowell—Manufacturer.
Charles S. Barnard—Philanthropist.
Lewis Nixon—Shipbuilder; designed battleship Oregon.
Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson—Archbishop of Canterbury, 1903-1928.
William A. Pinkerton—Detective.
William Wadsworth—Poet.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

PARK BILL INACTION IN VIRGINIA SCORED

Cooperation With Provisions of Federal Measure Is Urged in Arlington.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Richard L. Eacho, vice president of the "Back to the District Association," last night characterized it as an "outrageous shame" that nothing has been done or any assurance given that anything will be done before the next session of the legislature to carry out the provisions of the Capper-Cramton bill, when, it is said, its passage is practically assured.

"What has the Virginia Park and Planning Commission done since its creation more than four years ago? Nothing!" declared Mr. Eacho. "There have been many times when announcements were made that the commission would meet and not enough of its members would appear to hold a meeting," he said.

Addressing the gathering at the annual banquet of the Arlington County Civic Federation Saturday night at Arlington Hall, Mr. Eacho stated that Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, outlined what has been done by the Maryland Park and Planning Commission but that he was not able to say the same for Virginia.

"With the success that the Cramton bill met in the House and with the assurance of its passage in the Senate and the final signature of President Hoover, there is no greater reason why Arlington County should not again become a part of the District of Columbia," he went on.

"With the Federal Government about to acquire that area adjacent to the Highway Bridge as an airport and the completion of the Mount Vernon boulevard, it appears to me that our only assurance of seeing the shore of the Potomac River developed as proposed in the Cramton bill on the Virginia side is for the citizens of Arlington County to mass together and support the movement for going back into the District."

Mr. Eacho announced that the association's headquarters in the Rucker Building at Clarendon are open each night and citizens are welcome to come and get any data they wish and to discuss the questions with officials of the association.

Determined to carry on their campaign for a new county jail, the committee from the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, composed of Mrs. Crandal Mackey, chairman; Mrs. Bertha Kelley, and Mrs. Pauline Smith, will hold an "At Home Day" at the jail Wednesday.

The committee has appeared before the county board of supervisors at many of its meetings. It is pointed out that they are not asking for the construction of an elaborate building, but one where proper provisions can be made for the detention of both men and women and minors.

The campaign has been going on since 1925 and except for a special levy of 5 cents made last year, part of which has been spent in an effort to improve conditions, nothing has been done to the building.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields is and has always been in sympathy with the movement for the construction of an adequate jail, and especially proper quarters for the jailer and his family. The committee is hoping that the citizens will visit the jail Wednesday and see for themselves what is needed most in the county.

Attention of the taxpayers of Arlington County is called to the fact that all poll taxes must be paid on or before May 3 in order that persons otherwise qualified to vote can take part in the Democratic primary in August for the selection of a Democratic candidate for Congress from the Eighth District.

In the 1928 presidential election the total vote in the county exceeded 6,000. If all persons who are otherwise qualified to vote pay their poll taxes in time the total vote this year could exceed 10,000 with all voting.

J. E. Spaulding, chairman of the county Republican committee, will attend the special meeting of the Eighth District today in the George Mason Hotel at Alexandria. The meeting has been called by District Chairman John Grayson to formulate plans to carry on a campaign to oppose the successful candidate chosen in the Democratic primary in August.

Arrangements are being rapidly completed by the committee of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County for the birthday party to celebrate its seventh anniversary to be held at the New Idea Country Club, April 15, from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. The committee announces that reservations must be made not later than Wednesday of this week.

Those desiring to attend are requested to communicate with any of the following members of the committee: Mrs. Joseph Haley, chairman; Mrs. Claude S. Semones, Mrs. N. Rex Hunt, Mrs. H. P. Simpson, Mrs. J. H. Walton and Mrs. Florence E. Cannon. If the reservations warrant, special bus service will be provided from each of the three magisterial districts.

The Clarendon Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will meet Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. K. Kloman, 2 Fairfax place, Ashton Heights.

The vestry of St. George's Episcopal Church announces the appointment of the following laymen to represent the church at the council meeting at Warrenton, Va., May 21: C. P. Oliver, E. A. Meade.

The Woman's Club of Ashton Heights will meet tomorrow night at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to attend.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. John P. Mann, Glebe road near the Columbia pike.

Members of Camp Sequaga, conducted by Sullens College and near the college at Bristol, Va., will come to Arlington Hall tomorrow, where a dinner will be given tomorrow night. The group will be in charge of the camp director, Mrs. Maude Bogess. Following the dinner the evening will be spent with the singing of camp songs and performing many camp stunts.

Walter U. Varney, former corporation attorney of the Town of Potomac prior to its becoming a part of the City of Alexandria, is announced as the speaker at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Thomas Nelson Page School at Ballston tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the schoolhouse.

20,000,000 Perch Planted in Pool

Maryland CommissionAdds to Conowingo Supply of Game.

Baltimore, Md., April 6 (N Y W N S.).—Stocking the great pool at the Conowingo power plant, on the Susquehanna River, with 20,000,000 perch was begun yesterday by the Maryland Conservation Commission.

The perch came from the Severn River hatchery. During the last two years 30,000,000 of the perch and some 30,000 small mouth bass have been set free in the Conowingo pool. The department also distributed there last year 4,000,000 herring, supplied by the United States Bureau of Fisheries.

Stocking Conowingo pool is being carried out jointly by Maryland and Pennsylvania. The latter through N. R. Buller, commissioner of fisheries, has put in about 15,000,000 pike, sunfish and chapple.

FETE DATE SUITABLE TO HOOVER SOUGHT

WEEK OF APRIL 20 SET

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 6.—Officials of the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival are hopeful that the millions of trees in commercial orchards of the Shenandoah - Cumberland - Potomac district wil blossom at a time when President Hoover will have an open date, as he has expressed a desire to attend.

The invitation was extended personally to the President a day or two ago by Representative J. A. Garber, of the Seventh Virginia District, who suggested that Mr. Hoover visit Winchester Friday, April 25, and then go to his fishing lodge on the Rapidan River in Madison County, Va., for the week-end, but Mr. Garber was informed by the President that he has an engagement for that date. He added, however, that he would like greatly to attend the Shenandoah blossom festival and that it depended upon his program as already arranged.

It was indicated here today that if weather conditions remain normal the apple trees will be in bloom some time during the week of April 20-26, and hope was expressed that if the trees do burst into bloom that week the two-day festival may be set for dates that would be agreeable to the President. Experts warned, however, against assuming too much, saying that an unusually warm spell or a cold snap could easily advance or retard bud development. Officials of the festival organization said dates of the celebration probably will be announced the latter part of this week. Blossoms remain on the trees for nearly a week after popping open.

Among the celebrities who will take an active part in the "firemen's frolic," which will be the outstanding feature the first night, will be Lieut. Harry K. Thaw, of the Rouss Fire Company, who has notified Capt. Lee Lamp that he will be on hand for the parade.

Man Shoots Self In Burglar Hunt

Gun Fires Accidentally as Storekeeper Is Searching Place.

Elias Weinstein, 35 years old, owner of the Arlington Candy Co., Seventh and K streets southwest, accidentally shot himself in the left thigh yesterday while searching for a burglar in the store. His wound was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Mr. Weinstein, who lives at 5715 Colorado road northwest, visited the store, as is his custom every Sunday. He noticed a window opened and, believing that a burglar might be in the place, got his revolver.

He was touring the store, scanning every dark corner, when the revolver suddenly discharged. Police were notified and he was removed to the hospital.

Allen and Crowe Engage in Debate

O'Brien, 'King of Hoboes,' Also Argues at Meeting on Unemployment.

Discussion of unemployment and its relation to crime precipitated a debate yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Washington Open Forum in which Robert J. Allen, former Washington policemen, and Patrick J. Crowe, former bandit, and Daniel O'Brien, "king of the hoboes," participated.

O'Brien's statement at the meeting at 808 I street northwest that jails are for the poor and that the rich go unpunished resulted in a debate between him and Allen. The former Washington policeman said that while he assails the Washington Police Department, he has no sympathy with economic radicals.

Paul Dennie, chairman of the National Unemployment Conference, assailed Allen as a reactionary. President Linn A. E. Gale also participated in the argument.

DISTRICT TEACHERS TO MEET IN FAIRFAX

Annual Conference Will Be Held at Madison School Friday and Saturday.

LIQUOR ARRESTS MADE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The annual conference of the district H teachers association will be held at the Madison school Friday and Saturday. The meeting will begin at 11 o'clock Friday morning. Capt. John F. Bethune, mayor of Falls Church, will deliver the address of welcome with response by H. L. Moncure.

The afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock will be devoted to group meetings of teachers of the various grades. In the high school group commercial education will be stressed, in the grammar grades the teaching of outside reading by the pupils, in the intermediate group the correlation of social studies and phonics and in the one and two-room schools the combining and alternating of subjects will be given special consideration. Each of the groups will also consider physical and health education and tests and examination.

From 4 until 5 o'clock p. m. Friday the Virginia council of administrative women in education will meet to consider the teaching of writing, physical and health education and phonics.

The meeting Friday evening at 8 o'clock will consist of special entertainment numbers given by the Madison School pupils. Following this group meetings will be held. In each of the groups the subject of music will be considered by the teachers. Each group will also discuss questions peculiar to its grade. In the high school group vocational guidance, its use and management, will also be considered.

The general session will open Saturday at 11 o'clock in the morning, following which a speaker from the National Education Association will address the teachers. Wilber C. Hall, of Leesburg, delegate to the State Assembly from Loudoun County, has been invited to discuss the free text books for Virginia pupils. B. F. Walton has also been invited to address the meeting on the work of the local associations.

The March meeting of the Fairfax County School Board authorized the closing of schools in the county on Friday to allow the teachers to attend this meeting. The regular weekly school activities that are usually held on Friday have been advanced to Thursday.

The sheriff's office and Fairfax County police, assisted by Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams, visited the various public dance halls in the county Saturday night as part of the campaign against drunkenness and rowdyism at these places. At Lacey's dance hall, near Baileys Cross Roads, Joseph Hutton and Joseph Deance, of Washington, and W. V. Wright and C. Petticue, of Alexandria, were arrested for alleged drunkenness. They were taken before Justice of the Peace John Dowden at Baileys Cross Roads and fined $15 and costs.

The Fairfax County Board of Health has tentatively adopted an ordinance regulating the operation of farms devoted to hog raising, under authority granted it by the county board of supervisors in May, 1928, providing that any nuisance detrimental to the public health shall be abated after due notice. The sanitary authorities will determine the time limit of such abatement.

The action of the board was in response to the protests which have been filed with the supervisors and the county health unit by persons residing in the various neighborhoods where hogs are raised commercially. These protests date for a period of more than a year.

A hog farm is defined as any place where ten or more swine over 3 months old are fed for market purposes. When fed on manufacturers' waste products of food value it must be done on open platforms to prevent the spreading of the feed over adjacent grounds. These platforms must be of concrete with provision for drainage into septic tanks or cesspools, or into a stream having sufficient volume of water to take care of the waste without injurious pollution of such stream. The county board of health is to be the judge of this question.

The regulations require that the pens be cleaned daily and that every farm must have an adequate water supply to flush these platforms, and that they must use chloride of lime or other disinfectants to keep down odors and insect pests. If the feed is transported elsewhere it must be in tank wagons or in such manner as may be approved by the board of health. Several other provisions purporting to make the raising of hogs more sanitary and less of a nuisance were adopted.

The hog raisers claim that these regulations are too drastic in their provisions and to comply with them would soon force the farmers engaged in hog raising out of business. It is believed that the board of health will hold another meeting in the near future to reconsider the regulations.

The membership of the Fairfax County Board of Health consists of W. F. P. Reid, chairman of the board of supervisors, chairman ex-officio; Dr. Robert E. Feagans, county health officer; County Clerk F. W. Richardson; Dr. F. M. Brooks, Dr. William P. Capon and Dr. C. A. Ransom.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorow night in the schoolhouse at Franconia. Several questions in regard to the welfare of the county will be discussed. The Franconia School and Community League will act as hosts to the chamber.

The McLean Council, Order of Fraternal Americans, have organized a drill team which is holding rehearsals every Tuesday evening in order that the members might become perfected in the ritual. The officers of the team are S. W. Darne, president; James Burnes, vice president; Hershell Wright, conductor; Selden Burnes, warden; Raymond Ball, junior president; C. B. Money, chaplain; James Donaldson, Lynn Simpson, Ralph Darn, Richard Logan and Audrey Dailey, guards. Wallace Cummings is acting as drillmaster.

The Clifton Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will meet tomorrow night in the Masonic Hall at Clifton.

The Women's Study Class of the Zion Episcopal Church at Fairfax will meet tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock at the home of Mrs. F. Shield McCandlish. They will continue their study of the mission book entitled "Roads That Lead to God."

C. C. Carr, chairman of the school and community leagues of District H and Fairfax County has issued a letter to the officers of the various leagues calling their attention to the district meeting on May 2. This will be a meeting of the community and junior leagues of District H. A considerable portion of the meeting will be devoted to the outlining of objectives for the coming year. Each league is being urged to have its representatives attend this meeting, which is to be held in Lincoln, Va.

Herndon Chapter, Daughters of America, will meet this evening in Wilkins Hall.

The April meeting of the Vienna town council will be held in the town hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Herndon town conucil will not meet this evening, but will hold its meeting on April 14.

The Columbia Street Citizens Association, at Falls Church, will meet this evening with Joseph Smith.

A special meeting of the Annandale Pioneer Grange will be held tnis evening in the grange hall. Plans will be completed for entertaining the Mount Vernon Grange, which will be the guests of the grange on April 15.

The Accotink Lodge, No. 75, of Odd Fellows will hold its meeting tonight in the I. O. O. F. Hall.

At the last meeting of the Groveton Community Club a movement was launched with the idea of organizing a volunteer fire department in Mount Vernon district. A committee consisting of W. F. P. Reid and Herbert O. Blunt was appointed to investigate the feasibility of such a plan.

The School and Community League of Floris has elected Edward Wagstaff, president; Edgar E. Beard, vice president, and Richard Peck, secretary and treasurer.

Nation Will Pay Jefferson Honor

Founder of Democratic Party Will Be Ulogized 1,100 Meetings.

(Associated Press.)

Tributes to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, will be paid in every section of the United States next week at celebrations of the 187th anniversary of his birth.

The Democratic national committee announced last night that his birthday would be celebrated more widely this year than ever before. Reports received by the committee indicatd between 1,100 and 1,200 meetings would be held to commemorate the anniversary.

Since the birthday of Jefferson falls this year on next Sunday, most of the celebrations will be held the following Monday with a few scattered through the remainder of the week. In some States, the Democratic committee said, meetings will be held in every county.

A number of the addreases will be delivered over the radio, including that of Dr. Edward A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, who will speak at 10:30 p. m., April 14, over a nationwide hook-up arranged by the National Broadcasting System.

TWO POST PRINTERS IN UNION 50 YEARS

RECORDS ARE EXCEEDED

Continuous membership in the Columbia Typographical Union for more than 50 years is the record of two employes in the composing room of The Washington Post—Francis Benzler and James B. Clarke. Mr. Benzler became a member in 1879 and Mr. Clarke in 1877.

The man with the oldest membership is William W. Maloney, who has belonged to the union since 1861. He is probably the oldest of the "oldtimers," being more than 89 years old.

Many others have records of membership dating back to the late 60s and early 70s. More than twelve are still working at the trade, and others have only recently stopped work. Columbia Union has been in continuous existence since 1815, and probably is the oldest labor organization in the country. The records for the last 115 years are complete and are interesting to a high degree.

The list of "oldtimers," with the year they joined the union, include: 1870, James H. Alburtis; 1878, Harry E. Bartle; 1878, John R. Berg; 1876, John R. Boss; 1872, J. H. D. Buckley; 1872, George Burklin; 1880, Robert W. Burnside; 1870, William R. Chipley; 1880, Thomas H. Collins; 1872, Joseph E. Colton; 1880, Robert W. Congdon; 1880, John B. Dickman; 1878, Clayton A. Edelen; 1878, William J. Egbert; 1870, Joseph M. Eggleston; 1874, Thompson P. Elliott; 1874, Ernest J. Elwood; 1868, Jeremiah Fenton; 1879, Edward Y. Fisher; 1874, William Fleming; 1880, William J. Galbraith; 1880, Charles T. Graff; 1876, Horace A. Graham; 1879, William E. Grimes; 1867, Edward J. Handley; 1876, Clement T. Harding; 1879, Lorenzo C. Hover; 1877, Frank Hart; 1870, Edgar J. Heaton; 1871, John T. Heck; 1876, Clement C. Hipkins; 1879, Merwin G. Howe; 1880, James T. Huggins; 1874, Zachary T. Jenkins; 1871, James B. Kane; 1880, Samuel C. Kirby; 1861, William W. Maloney; 1878, Gerhardt A. Meyer; 1872, Frank F. S. Miller; 1874, Ambrose O'Keefe; 1880, John Sheridan; 1869, John W. Sherman; 1866, Joseph Silverberg; 1879, Robert F. Simms; 1876, Thomas C. Simpson; 1868, Wilmer W. Stanford; 1879, Charles F. Sullivan; 1880, James H. Thomas; 1879, Alfred Thomson; 1879, James A. D. Turner; 1874, Conrad T. Vogel; 1876, William S. Waudby; 1874, Arthur C. Webb; 1869, Ozias S. Webster; 1868, William J. Weiss; 1876, Frederick N. Whitehead; 1878, Frank C. Porter; 1879, John C Sullivan; 1878, John D. Ligon; 1878, Wellington F. Simonds; 1879, Johnson L. Garrett.

Chinese Tong Members In Capital for Meeting

Delegates of the On Leong Chinese Merchants Association arrived in the city yesterday for the opening of the annual convention, to be held today at the headquarters of the association, 344 Pennsylvania avenue.

More than 300 members from all parts of the country are expected to attend the sessions, which are likely to last more than a month. No adjournment will be taken until all the problems confronting the group are settled.

ALEXANDRIA SHRINE CLUB TO ENTERTAIN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Shrine Club will entertain the Master Masons of this city and vicinity Monday night in the George Mason Hotel, all Master Masons in good standing being invited to attend. George W. Zachary, president of the club, will preside, and an excellent program has been provided by the committee in charge.

A special number on the program will be provided by 25 girls from the Arlington Hall School, with Mrs. Sansbury, in songs and dance; Frank W. Noxon will show moving pictures of the Washington's Birthday parade last February 22 and Donald Jamieson will be heard in songs. The committee is composed of Nobles L. J. Miller, R. E. Remington and R. S. Sullivan.

The annual dance of the Shrine Club will be held in the George Mason Hotel Monday night, April 21, a Washington orchestra having been secured for the affair. A large number of nobles and their friends are expected to attend.

A Lenten preaching mission will be conducted at Sharon Chapel, on the Lincolnia road near Alexandria, beginning tonight and continuing each night through Friday, by the Rev. Arthur F. Roebuck, a student at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, whose home is in Grand Island, Nebr. The services will begin at 8 o'clock and the topics of his talks will be "Some Things Jesus Valued," "Choosing the Right," "The Active Christian," "In Joy or Sorrow" and "The Way." Special music has been provided for these services.

Old Sharon Mission is the oldest of all the missions connected with the Virginia Theological Seminary, having been founded in 1846. Among the well-known clergymen who in their student days were connected with the mission were Bishop Phillips Brooks, who is considered one of the greatest men the Episcopal Church has ever produced; the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, the present Bishop of Virginia; Bishop Remington, of the Missionary District of Eastern Oregon; Dr. W. Cosby Bell, a professor at the Theological Semonary; Dr. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, of New York City, and Dr. Berryman Green, dean of the theological seminary. The mission at present is in charge of Skardon d'Aubert, with W. L. Hargrave and James Valliant as assistants.

J. ("Prex") Wilson has been reappointed director of the municipal playground system and the municipal swimming pools and will begin at once preparations for the opening of these activities. This is the third year that Wilson has been in charge of the playground system, having been appointed when the city took over the conduct of the playgrounds. He is director of athletics at the George Mason High School, now a part of the Alexandria public school system.

Many applications already have been received from persons desiring positions as playgrounds instructors and life guards at the swimming pool. Wilson is expected to announce the personnel for the season shortly.

The unemployment situation in Alexandria is being relieved to some extent by the construction work on the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard, Vincent Schiavi, contractor for the grading work, now having 120 men on his pay roll and expects later to have at least 175. The maximum number of men employed will be reached in about two months, it is understood, and preference will be given to Alexandria men. Of the 120 now employed only 10 were brought from Buffalo by Mr. Schiavi.

While the contract for this work did not require its commencement until April 1, the favorable weather induced the contractor to begin sooner and it is now well under way. He has until May, 1931, to complete the work, but hopes to finish by January 1 of that year.

William E. Riner, aged 46 years, died suddenly Saturday in Baltimore, Md., and the body was brought to the funeral home of Cunningham Kennedy & Watkins, 809 Cameron street, pending funefal arrangements. He is survived by an uncle, John D. Matter, of this city, and has one brother living in Akron, Ohio.

Resignation Asked Of City Attorney

Bitter Fight for Control in Martinsburg Is Seen After Action.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 6.—That the fight for the control of the city government here is to be full of bitterness was evidenced today when the city council, Republican by 4 to 1, requested the resignation of City Attorney J. O. Henson, one of the most prominent attorneys of the State and a member of the code commission. Henson is also a Republican and is supporting Mayor George W. Appleby, jr., for reelection, while a majority of the council is backing one of its members, Councilman Chris H. Daily, also a Republican.

The fight started several weeks ago when the council refused to favor a list of election officers presented by Republican Chairman Benjamin Lyeth. The result was that the city attorney appealed the decision of the city fathers to the Supreme Court of West Virginia and won out, thus giving Chairman Lyeth, one of his supporters, control over the election machinery.

There are also two aspirants to the Democratic mayoralty nomination—C. P. Howell, a business man, and W. C. Morton, former superintendent of schools in the city. The fight between them, however, has been amicable thus far.

Clarksburg Man, 82, Drowned After Fall

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 6.—Doddridge County authorities today reported a verdict of accidental death in the case of James W. Davis, 82, whose lifeless body was found face downward in a shallow stream near his home near Center Point. It was concluded that he lost his balance, fell into the water and was drowned, being too feeble to lift himself out.

Three sons and four daughters survive him.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

FOX

"THE SKY HAWK." Fox adaptation of Llewellyn Hughes' story, "Chap Called Bardell," featuring John Garrick and Helen Chandler, supported by Gilbert Emery, Lumsden Hare, Billy Bevan and Daphne Pollard. Directed by John G. Blystone; air sequences supervised by Capt. Stanley Cornwell and Lieut. Peter Ginter. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL

To the best of my recollection, it has been some ten or twelve years since this sort of thing found its way to the silver sheet, and then, by comparison, only in a lamentably feeble form. D. W. Griffith, I recall, made an air-raid-over-London picture along about 1917 or '18 out of the film footages left over from "Hearts of the World." In its day it was a pretty potent thriller but, as I remember it, couldn't hold a candle to "The Sky Hawk."

This, of course, is due to the tremendous vitality, the realism and the terror brought to the current exhibit by the utilization of voice and sound which the perfection of the microphone has made possible. Whether, in the natural order of things, the cycle was due to recur again at just this time or not, "The Sky Hawk" would still be an immensely moving panorama of war's red scourge and the white flame of valor.

There can be no great claim to novelty either in the romantic or the heroic aspect of the plot. There have been other instances of renegades turned heroes and sweethearts remaining stanch, but from some source or other this picture, palpably "faked" in some of its vital episodes, gains a power and a punch that lay an audience limp. It presents the gallant spectacle of a crippled airman soaring aloft to give battle, single-handed, to a giant enemy Zeppelin intent on laying London waste, while the girl he has jilted follows his exploit from such vantage points below as her speedy roadster can reach.

Here is the sort of stuff that goose flesh, white hair and heart failure are made of! Yesterday afternoon's capacity audience proved it by bursting into applause at the slightest pretext and cheering lustily as occasion warranted.

John Garrick, a young man who scored in John McCormack's production of "Song o' My Heart," plays the part of the aviator and extracts every atom of effectiveness from it, even to singing a song or two in a rather good barytone voice. The girl is played by Helen Chandler, who looks enough like Josephine Dunn to be her twin. This picture will help to overcome any deficiency in popularity under which they may at the moment be laboring. The support is led by older players—mostly English—among whom Lumsden Hare, Gilbert Emery, Lennox Paule, Billy Bevan and Daphne Pollard are preeminent. Billy Bevan and Miss Pollard contribute no end of hilarious comedy.

The Fanchon & Marco production of "Kisses," the week's stage "idea," was greeted by enthusiasm no less than was accorded the picture. Alexander Callam, master of ceremonies, was heard in "A Cottage for Sale," in addition to announcing Will Cowan and Helen Aubrey, who sang and danced; Mitzi Mayfair, an exceptional acrobatic dancer; Dave Hacker, dancer; the line girls, including clever specialties, and Joe and Jane McKenna, whom I thought not so hot until they reached their burlesque adagio dance, when they became a riot—no less.

The Fox Movietone News, the orchestra's rendition of Luigini's "Ballet Egyptien," conducted by Mr. Brusiloff, and, if you are lucky, Mack Sennett's comedy, "Bulls and Bears," complete the high-voltage bill.

COLUMBIA

"ONLY THE BRAVE." A Paramount presentation of an original story by Keene Thompson, featuring Gary Cooper and Mary Brian, supported by Phillips Holmes. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

On the premise that none but the brave deserve the fair, Gary Cooper goes back to Civil War times for the background against which this engrossing theme is developed.

While "Only the Brave" is, perhaps, the first of the talking pictures with a locale in the South in those stirring times, it does not approach its illustrious predecessors either in magnitude of theme or splendor of treatment. However, the picture furnishes a pleasant evening's divertissement, plugged with haunting melodie of plantation days and some very clever dialogue.

The picture is one that offers Gary Cooper but slight opportunity to display any great degree of histrionism, although he carries his dominating role with characteristic competence. Nor is Mary Brian to be credited with an extraordinary characterization, yet she is entirely adequate as the Southern coquette. Miss Brian's dialect is a little too obviously assumed to create any great degree of conviction.

In the supporting roles, Phillips Holmes, as the Confederate suiter, is well done, but William LeMaire's delineation of the sentry is little short of inspired. Mr. LeMaire's observations on war and women, aided and abetted by a splendidly assumed Southern drawl, are responsible for the most hearty of the audience responses. Those few lines are worth the price of admission.

Chief among the subsidiaries is a Hal Roach "Our Gang" comedy, "A Tough Winter," with Stepin Fetchit, in which time-worn gags are used without any ostensible change. Harry Griffin, master of ceremonies in the current release of Screen Snapshots. A release of the Hearst Metrotone News and selections from the tuneful "Blossom Time," admirably played by the orchestra, under the direction of Claude Burrows, round out the program.

Hague Fight Aided By More Senators

15 Cooperate in Effort to Defeat Sex Inequality Code Adoption.

The list of senators who are cooperating with the Inter-American Commission of Women in an effort to defeat the nationality clause discriminating against women in the world code now before The Hague conference had grown to fifteen yesterday.

Headed by Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, eight more senators have joined the seven who previously announced their opposition to the basing of the nationality of a wife on that of her husband as proposed at the Conference for the Codification of International Law. They are Johnson, of California; Pittman, of Nevada; George, of Georgia; Wheeler, of Montana; Shipstead, of Minnesota; Connally, of Texas, and Shortridge, of California.

Cable reports yesterday from Miss Doris Stevens, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women committee now at The Hague, stated that the majority of the conference hold to the Old World standards, and the sex discrimination articles will be adopted unless further pressure is brought to bear by the United States.

PALACE

"THE BENSON MURDER CASE." Bartlett Cormack's adaptation for Paramount of the S. S. Van Dine novel of the same name, starring William Powell, supported by Eugene Pallette, Natalie Moorehead, William Boyd and E. H. Calvert. Directed by Frank Tuttle. Reviewed Saturday night.

A little more transparent, perhaps, than some of the tales by the same author that have gone before it, this latest of the Van Dine mysteries to reach the screen still will prove amply baffling to the layman. The fabric of the drama, however, is woven from yarns with which we are all fairly familiar. The characters involved, too, are not beyond the mental reach of most of us—in addition to the representation of the law, a bootlegger of the better sort, a broker who has sold out all of his friends in the stock market crash, the masculine pet of a wealthy dowager, the dowager herself and another lady, who has had to be nice to a lot of men, but now is able to be nice only to the ones she likes, are among the dramatic personnel. Not so hard a crowd to guess as we encountered, for example, in "The Bishop Murder Case," which, to my mind, still stands as the best of the line of "cases" concocted by Mr. Van Dine.

Since the Van Dine formula is one that concerns itself with dramatic fare for the logician rather than the lover of physical action, the worth of any of his plays depends more upon what the ear hears than what the eye sees. A great deal depends, then, upon the personnel of the cast and their command of phonetics.

Philo Vance, the amateur detective; Markham, district attorney, and Sergt. Heath are played, respectively, by William Powell, E. H. Calvert and Eugene Pallette. Splendidly articulate, all three, although my personal predilection still is for Basil Rathbone in the part of Vance. The William Boyd is the William Boyd of stage fame and not the William Boyd of "The Volga Boatman;" the shady lady who has so much to do with the possible motive for the murder of Benson, Natalie Moorehead. A long list of others are concerned, notable among them, Paul Lukas, whom you all but strap in the electric chair before the truth is known; May Beatty, his "heart;" Richard Tucker, as Benson, and a considerable number of others of lesser consequence. A very excellent group, indeed. Their skill is reflected in the suspense the picture occasions and the thrill it exerts.

On the stage, Al Evans again demonstrates his skill as a master of ceremonies and conductor by the manner in which he presides over the "Pearls" revue. In addition to leading the Palace Syncopators in his own arrangement of "A Parade in Blue," he introduces Shaw & Lee, comedians famous in vaudeville and musical comedy; Desha & Sansome, adagio dancers; Jerry Coe and his brothers, Larry and Harry, with piano accordeons, saxophones and intricate dances; the Chester Hale Girls and Tito Coral, Spanish barytone, whom he also accompanies on the piano. A colorful and fast-moving unit.

The Hearst Metrotone News, M-G-M silent news, orchestral overture, comprised of hits from "Strike Up the Band," and Charles Gaige's organ interludes complete a vigorous entertainment.

EARLE

"BLAZE OF GLORY." Sono-Art talking and singing picture, directed by Reynaud Hofman and George J. Crone. Starring Eddie Dowling (who also appears in person), supported by Betty Compson and Henry B. Walthal. Reviewed Saturday night by C. Ransom.

Eddie Dowling's appearance in the flesh and apparel of Eddie Dowling seems to be the highlight of public interest that keeps up a lively search for seats at the Earle. Advancing confidently on the runway, he gives liberally of his store of songs, jokes and reminiscences. He pleases almost everybody and gives no offense to those who fail to find him interesting, except in one joke that is not very pretty.

In the film, "Blaze o' Glory," Dowling plays the hero, a gassed soldier on trial for murder, whose prewar stage successes and martial adventures, as told to the jury by the attorney for the defense, form the body of the tale. It seems that on his return from overseas he shot a man who was making love to his wife, and that he wouldn't have done this so hastily if the war had not trained him to kill people.

The delicate hand of the pacifist propagandist will be at once apparent. Indeed, there is nothing secretive about his message. This is an open thrust from the far left of the range of pacifist doctrine. Movie critics are presumed to be political neutrals and this is no column for getting roused up over any views that may be expressed on the screen. But every cause has its foolish extremes, and it is no more than fair to give warning that this picture represents pacifism at its silliest. The story reeks from first to last with strained and unreal sentimentality, and all the favorite delusions of the doctrinaires are carefully nursed in. For instance, the hero, when he learns that the United States has entered the war, and he is eager to enlist, is asked by his sweetheart why he wants to be a soldier and kill and maim his fellow men. "Oh," he replies, "it's the bugles and the parades and the flags waving. Ever since I played with my toy soldiers as a little boy I've wanted to join the army."

That is a fair measure of the degree of understanding of what the war meant, or for that matter what life means, displayed by the devisers of "Blaze o' Glory." Yet, for any one who can accept the point of view complacently, it must appear to be pretty well done. There are scenes in trenches and shell holes that are cleverly worked out, and the passages in the courtroom are effective.

Henry B. Walthall does one of his best pieces of work as the attorney for the defense, deplorable though you may find his line of argument. Betty Compson is merely in the picture, as the sweetheart and wife.

For other refreshment there is a pleasing short comedy called "The Family Next Door," with Charles Ruggles in the lead; also the usual good news reel and the capable contribution of the orchestra.

Aged Man, Given Lift, Killed by Lumber Load

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 6.—Manus Ralston, 60 years old, Blue Ridge Mountain resident, met instant death on a mountain road 1 mile above Grottoes in east Rockinham yesterday when a load of lumber overturned upon him, according to word reaching here tonight. Ralston's body was not released for several hours, because of the absence of help in the vicinity.

Ben Fazier, driver of the wagon, was not hurt. He had given Ralston, who was walking to Grottoes, a "lift" only a short while before the accident. The check blocks on the wagon gave way in descending a steep grade and the horses were unable to check the downward rush of the wagon, the vehicle overturning. Funeral services were held for Ralston today.

METROPOLITAN

"UNDER A TEXAS MOON." Warner Bros. all-Technicolor comedy-melodrama with songs, starring Frank Fay, supported by Noah Beery, Raquel Torres, Tully Marshall, Armida and many others. Adapted from a story by Stewart Edward White; directed by Michael Curtiz. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

An episodic narrative that ranges from the genial absurdities of farcical comedy to the exaggerated heroics of melodramatic romance has here been accorded the advantages of music and color to lend it something of the impressiveness of authentic drama. For the greater part of the time it pretends to nothing beyond a delightful quality of drollery; when it essays the quickened situations and tense moments of melodrama, it does so with its tongue in its cheek and a leer on its lips—or maybe it is a smile. As Mr. Fay would say, "Quien sabe?"

The whimsical quality of the love adventures—and a few involving the gentler art of cattle rustling—of Senor Don Carlos Sabastian is admirably adapted to the lackadaisical style of Frank Fay, whose only previous screen appearance was as the master of ceremonies in "Show of Shows." Any one so intensely Nordic as Mr. Fay, with his red hair and freckles, could not by any possibility be made convincingly Latin in appearance, temperament or intonation. His Don Carlos, dandy, ladies' man and daredevil, is merely the familiar jester of vaudeville, tricked out in the 20-pound sombrero and picturesque brocaded velvets of the musical comedy Mexican. The creation is obviously all in fun and as a bit of agre
